By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Proposals for a heliport alongside the Larkspur ferry terminal were grounded last night, apparently for good.

The president of the bridge board, Stephan A. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, added that helicopters pose "noise problems" and would face the danger of high power lines crossing the 25-acre site at the mouth of the Corte Madera Creek.

Braccia, whose San Francisco firm is planning the ferry terminal, explained that the entire acreage will be needed to accommodate the terminal, parking for about 1,200 cars, feeder bus facilities and ferry maintenance shops.

The site long has been eyed as a heliport to replace the one at Richardson Bay, primarily on the ground it would attract more patronage by being closer to population centers. The same need, however, was what led the district to buy the parcel for $1,250,000.

The Marin County Aviation Commission recommended only last month that county supervisors ask the bridge district for a heliport as part of the ferry terminal.

The district's verdict on the heliport came at a meeting at Larkspur City Hall with city councilmen and planning commissioners to review plans for the $5 million terminal. Construction will begin next fall so it can open by the arrival of the first of the district's new ferries a year from July.

Despite claims by opponents of the terminal that it has widespread opposition, only about a half dozen private citizens showed up for the meeting. The rest of the 50 or so persons present were city and district officials, staff and wives.

Joi Losee, who months ago started campaigning for shifting the terminal to somewhere on Point San Quentin, was the only opponent who spoke. She has argued a Point San Quentin site would do less environmental damage, but district officials note that the point will be occupied by the prison long after the new ferry fleet arrives.

District officials said their plans were being presented to city officials for their "review." It was not mentioned, but a new state law exempts the district from city and county controls.

Mayor William G. Fleckles and other city officials said their main worry is how much congestion the terminal will add to East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a poor, two-lane city street.

Citr. Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst, however, said enough money may be raised to widen it to four lanes next year. (He told the Independent-Journal after the meeting that the city already has $235,000 accummulated toward the $500,000 project. The rest could come from a special assessment district or by redevelopment, he said.)

Bathurst acknowledged it still is uncertain when funds also will be made available by the state to widen the bottleneck at the railroad underpass. According to the Division of Highways,

Wounded Knee Indians Running Low On Medicine And Supplies

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — Food, fuel and medicine were in short supply today in this tiny hamlet on the sprawling Pine Ridge Indian reservation, which militant Indians have occupied for more than two weeks.

A near-blizzard cooled off the armed confrontation between the 200 Indians occupying Wounded Knee, site of a U.S. cavalry massacre of 200 to 300 Indians in 1890, and federal officials relaxed a blockade of 300 U.S. marshals and Indian police ringing the tiny Oglala Sioux village.

Federal agents appeared eager to take control of the village away from the militant American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders who have occupied the village since 16 days ago.

"If they weren't Indians we'd have moved in already," an FBI agent said early today. "If they were something like the KKK (Ku Klux Klan), we'd have moved in a long time ago."

But a Justice Department spokesman said there were no plans to storm the settlement.

The blockade of the village—a federal trading post—appeared to be succeeding.

Dennis Banks, an AIM leader, said fuel was "down to 10 per cent" in the settlement, and the militants were down to one meal a day—"mostly beans." Enough insulin for five sick persons had entered the settlement. Because of the weather, there was no indication when supplies would arrive.

Indians and government agents agreed to meet again today for the third straight day and Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton agreed to visit the hamlet "when they take the guns away from people's heads."

Council Action Hit As Adviser Resigns

By PATRICIA PERRY

Controversy over Corte Madera's redevelopment project to support Ernest W. Hahn's regional shopping center reached fever pitch last night, as the town council decided to permit anything from industry to offices or a private golf course on the Muzzi property marshlands.

The chairman of the citizen's general plan committee, attorney Joel Shawn, accused the council of letting "Hahn run this town," then stormed out of the meeting shouting: "I resign," after councilman Edward W. Colthurst told him to shut up.

Shawn's angry exit precipitated a mass exodus of the rest of the committee from the crowded council chambers.

Cause of the bitterness was an interim modification to the town's general plan, a key element in the redevelopment process, since any project must conform to the plan.

The town council denied the citzen's committee's request to procure all the marshland not needed for the shopping center as open space.

It voted 4 to 1, Councilman Robert J. Flahive dissenting, to designate some of the marshlands for commercial, business, administrative, light industrial and commercial recreation uses, adding that it intends to protect high natral habitat areas and buy as much as it can afford for public recreation.

Shawn questioned the need for the plan changes. "Why do you need revision tonight?" he asked. "It's because Hahn has a schedule he has to meet because he has commitments by stores that may bail out and go to Larkspur. I don't understand why the pressure . . . why does Hahn run this town?"

Councilman Colthurst angrily retorted: "I resent that — shut up."

Many of Shawn's colleagues on the citizen's committee, appointed by Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville last fall to work on revising the town's general plan, rose and left the meeting.

Town planning consultant Thomas Cooke last week had introduced changes in the original redevelopment project, which included realigning Hahn's multimillion-dollar Ma-

Cost Of Dying High As Living

By JEFF GREER
(Fourth of six articles)

Many families undergoing the first-time ordeal of arranging services for a deceased relative emerge with vivid impressions of the expense and the numerous decisions that must be made in a very brief time.

The high cost of dying is a child of the high cost of living, funeral directors and cemetery officials are quick to assert. And a welter of state law surrounds the whole business of service to the dead and the survivors.

In Marin County,the simplest burial or cremation is likely to cost between $600 and $1,000 except for indigent burials handled at the taxpayers' expense.

Families may choose among seven mortuaries in the county. They also use many other Bay Area mortuaries.

Funeral directors say most families base their choice of mortuary on prior experience with a particular chapel or by recommendations of family friends. Some may have attended a funeral there and liked the surroundings.

How does a family make funeral arrangements?

First comes a visit to the mortuary by one or more survivors. A funeral director meets them in a quiet office that often is deliberately like a home's livingroom.

The concept of the undertaker in a shiny black suit is obsolete. "Most of us avoid the somber look," explained one director. He was clad in light-colored sports jacket, bright tie, and contrasting trousers.

The funeral director first asks the family for information he must put on the death certificate, burial permit and other required documents. He then explains what state laws require him to do, what additional services are available and what it all will cost.

In the past, all funeral expenses were lumped into the price tag for the coffin — which may range from about $55 to more than $20,000. Marin funeral directors modernized procedures several years ago, to give itemized estimates separating the coffin cost, the services performed by the mortuary and "accommodations" such as the honorarium to officiating clergy, newspaper obituary notices, organist, and the like.

New state consumer protection and truth-in-lending laws that took effect in 1972 require all funeral directors to follow

U.S. Army Closes Out Viet Operation

SAIGON (UPI) — With a blare of oriental fanfare from a borrowed brass band, the U.S. Army in Vietnam (USARV) furled the battle flags of America's longest war and quietly closed its Indochina operations today.

A crowd of about 300, most of them Army officers in khaki uniforms, attended the 20-minute ceremony that ended almost eight years of a command that once controlled thousands of GIs throughout the country.

In keeping with the precedent- setting nature of the American withdrawal from the conflict, the ceremony broke with Army tradition of outdoor reviews and was held in a theater flanking the U.S. Military Assistance Command Vietnam (MACV) headquarters near Tan Son Nhut Air Base.

It leaves the 6,800 U.S. troops still in Vietnam under MACV command. Under terms of the Vietnam truce, they must leave by March 28.

USARV was a purely military command, formed to combat the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong armies. MACV was the command formed to channel American aid to the South Vietnamese armed forces, and its function was mostly advisory.

As the standdown ceremony took place, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, reported that the government today was releasing another 1,100 Communist prisoners of war.

The release site was on the banks of the Thach Han River in Quang Tri City, 435 miles north of Saigon. Hien said another 1,500 Communist POWs would be freed Friday and that South Vietnam expected to receive 380 of its captured soldiers in return.

The long-time USARV headquarters at the huge Long Binh base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, was turned over to South Vietnam late last year.

The only military trappings today were the band, borrowed from the South Vietnamese Air Force, a sparse 20-man guard of honor of American soldiers outside the theater and a color guard in chromed helmets on the stage.

Nixon Warns Against Continued Violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon voiced grave concern today over truce violations by the North Vietnamese and served notice that the violations would not be tolerated by the United States.

The President told a news conference: "I would only suggest that in the light of my actions over the last four years ... North Vietnam should not lightly disregard such expressions of concern."

He did not specify any further possible actions.

These were other highlights of a 45-minute meeting by Nixon with newsmen at the White House:

—He said he is naming David K. E. Bruce, one of the nation's foremost diplomats, to head the 20-member U.S. mission which will open a liaison office in Peking, probably about May 1. Bruce, former ambassador to Britain, (France and Germany, will be joined by two other China experts in the Peking post.

The others are Alfred Jenkins, director of Asian Communist Affairs for the State Department, and John Holdridge, a member of Henry A. Kissinger's national security council staff.

—The President said he will lift a 0.3 per cent tariff on imported beef in an effort to force down soaring meat prices, but he again absolutely ruled out price controls on agricultural and food products. He said if he believed controls would stop the price rises on food "I would impose them instantly" but added controls discourage production.

—He challenged Congress to take to the Supreme Court for a showdown their fight with him over his invoking of executive privilege. He accused the Senate of trying to hold as "hostage" his nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to be FBI director because Nixon has refused to allow his White House counsel, John W. Dean III, to testify at confirmation hearings.

—Nixon said he probably would make two trips out of the country during the year, but did not pinpoint the areas he will visit.

—Nixon said his decision to sell government stockpiles of the strategic materials would produce "some squeals" from American industrialists, but he contended that it would help control inflation.

The President said U.S. concern over the apparent violations of the cease-fire agreement by the Communists had been transmitted to Hanoi and "other interested parties."

The Nixon administration has been taking a relatively mild view of cease-fire violations, on the theory some incidents were bound to occur. But the infiltration of military supplies, the President made clear, was another matter.

The Pentagon said early this week that about 30,000 men and a large number of tanks were spotted on the Ho Chi Minh Trail headed toward —or into —South Vietnam.

Of the infiltration on the trail, Nixon said "that is much more important" than other kinds of violations.

According to the cease-fire agreement, the North Vietnamese would be allowed to bring into South Vietnam replacement of military supplies in order to keep their equipment at the level it was when the cease-fire took place. The agreement specifically prohibits infiltration of additional soldiers and any increase of military supplies.

San Rafael Hits Redevelop Offer

By NELS JOHNSON

A proposal by county supervisors to withdraw two court suits blocking San Rafael's redevelopment plans in return for veto power over some projects has sparked a city counter proposal that rejects the veto demand.

The counter proposal, the latest move in a series of attempts to settle a 10-month squabble over redevelopment, was drafted by city councilmen Monday behind closed doors and made public yesterday after being forwarded to county officials.

The counter proposal meets a county demand that a list of improvements now under consideration and their cost be submitted to supervisors. It also accepts supervisors insistence that redevelopment projects increase assessed valuation in the redevelopment area, or provide needed community amenities of general public benefit, or eliminate blight.

The only change made by the city in those criteria is deletion of county wording that would limit community amenity projects to those "which cannot be readily financed by conventional means."

Stripped from the county proposal by the city is the veto provision that would prevent the city redevelopment agency from selling bonds to finance projects beyond those now under consideration "until the county has reasonably determined that the projects comply" with one of the three criteria.

Instead the counter proposal would prevent sale of bonds to finance such additional projects "until the county has reasonably reviewed the projects" in the light of the three criteria.

The counter proposal requires that the county submit detailed objections to any project it finds unacceptable within 30 days for negotiation of differences. If differences over a project can't be ironed out, the city may proceed with that project regardless of county concerns and the county may "take whatever steps it deems

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Proposals for a heliport alongside the Larkspur ferry terminal were grounded last night, apparently for good.

The president of the bridge board, Stephan A. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, added that helicopters pose "noise problems" and would face the danger of high power lines crossing the 25-acre site at the mouth of the Corte Madera Creek.

The site long has been eyed as a heliport to replace the one at Richardson Bay, primarily on the ground it would attract more patronage by being closer to population centers. The same need, however, was what led the district to buy the parcel for $1,250,000.

The Marin County Aviation Commission recommended only last month that county supervisors ask the bridge district for a heliport as part of the ferry terminal.

The district's verdict on the heliport came at a meeting at Larkspur City Hall with city councilmen and planning commissioners to review plans for the $5 million terminal. Construction will begin next fall so it can open by the arrival of the first of the district's new ferries a year from July.

Despite claims by opponents of the terminal that it has widespread opposition, only about a half dozen private citizens showed up for the meeting. The rest of the 50 or so persons present were city and district officials, staff and wives.

Joi Losee, who months ago started campaigning for shifting the terminal to somewhere on Point San Quentin, was the only opponent who spoke. She has argued a Point San Quentin site would do less environmental damage, but district officials note that the point will be occupied by the prison long after the new ferry fleet arrives.

District officials said their plans were being presented to city officials for their "review." It was not mentioned, but a new state law exempts the district from city and county controls.

Mayor William G. Fleckles and other city officials said their main worry is how much congestion the terminal will add to East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a poor, two-lane city street.

Citr. Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst, however, said enough money may be raised to widen it to four lanes next year. (He told the Independent-Journal after the meeting that the city already has $235,000 accummulated toward the $500,000 project. The rest could come from a special assessment district or by redevelopment, he said.)

Bathurst acknowledged it still is uncertain when funds also will be made available by the state to widen the bottleneck at the railroad underpass. According to the Division of Highways,

Plans For Heliport At Ferry Terminal Grounded

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Proposals for a heliport alongside the Larkspur ferry terminal were grounded last night, apparently for good.

The president of the bridge board, Stephan A. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, added that helicopters pose "noise problems" and would face the danger of high power lines crossing the 25-acre site at the mouth of the Corte Madera Creek.

Braccia, whose San Francisco firm is planning the ferry terminal, explained that the entire acreage will be needed to accommodate the terminal, parking for about 1,200 cars, feeder bus facilities and ferry maintenance shops.

The site long has been eyed as a heliport to replace the one at Richardson Bay, primarily on the ground it would attract more patronage by being closer to population centers. The same need, however, was what led the district to buy the parcel for $1,250,000.

The Marin County Aviation Commission recommended only last month that county supervisors ask the bridge district for a heliport as part of the ferry terminal.

The district's verdict on the heliport came at a meeting at Larkspur City Hall with city councilmen and planning commissioners to review plans for the $5 million terminal. Construction will begin next fall so it can open by the arrival of the first of the district's new ferries a year from July.

Despite claims by opponents of the terminal that it has widespread opposition, only about a half dozen private citizens showed up for the meeting. The rest of the 50 or so persons present were city and district officials, staff and wives.

Joi Losee, who months ago started campaigning for shifting the terminal to somewhere on Point San Quentin, was the only opponent who spoke. She has argued a Point San Quentin site would do less environmental damage, but district officials note that the point will be occupied by the prison long after the new ferry fleet arrives.

District officials said their plans were being presented to city officials for their "review." It was not mentioned, but a new state law exempts the district from city and county controls.

Mayor William G. Fleckles and other city officials said their main worry is how much congestion the terminal will add to East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a poor, two-lane city street.

Citr. Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst, however, said enough money may be raised to widen it to four lanes next year. (He told the Independent-Journal after the meeting that the city already has $235,000 accummulated toward the $500,000 project. The rest could come from a special assessment district or by redevelopment, he said.)

Bathurst acknowledged it still is uncertain when funds also will be made available by the state to widen the bottleneck at the railroad underpass. According to the Division of Highways,

Wounded Knee Indians Running Low On Medicine And Supplies

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — Food, fuel and medicine were in short supply today in this tiny hamlet on the sprawling Pine Ridge Indian reservation, which militant Indians have occupied for more than two weeks.

A near-blizzard cooled off the armed confrontation between the 200 Indians occupying Wounded Knee, site of a U.S. cavalry massacre of 200 to 300 Indians in 1890, and federal officials relaxed a blockade of 300 U.S. marshals and Indian police ringing the tiny Oglala Sioux village.

Federal agents appeared eager to take control of the village away from the militant American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders who have occupied the village since 16 days ago.

"If they weren't Indians we'd have moved in already," an FBI agent said early today. "If they were something like the KKK (Ku Klux Klan), we'd have moved in a long time ago."

But a Justice Department spokesman said there were no plans to storm the settlement.

Dennis Banks, an AIM leader, said fuel was "down to 10 per cent" in the settlement, and the militants were down to one meal a day—"mostly beans." Enough insulin for five sick persons had entered the settlement. Because of the weather, there was no indication when supplies would arrive.

Indians and government agents agreed to meet again today for the third straight day and Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton agreed to visit the hamlet "when they take the guns away from people's heads."

Developer Given Full Rein At Marsh Center

Council Action Hit As Adviser Resigns

By PATRICIA PERRY

Controversy over Corte Madera's redevelopment project to support Ernest W. Hahn's regional shopping center reached fever pitch last night, as the town council decided to permit anything from industry to offices or a private golf course on the Muzzi property marshlands.

The chairman of the citizen's general plan committee, attorney Joel Shawn, accused the council of letting "Hahn run this town," then stormed out of the meeting shouting: "I resign," after councilman Edward W. Colthurst told him to shut up.

Shawn's angry exit precipitated a mass exodus of the rest of the committee from the crowded council chambers.

Cause of the bitterness was an interim modification to the town's general plan, a key element in the redevelopment process, since any project must conform to the plan.

The town council denied the citzen's committee's request to procure all the marshland not needed for the shopping center as open space.

It voted 4 to 1, Councilman Robert J. Flahive dissenting, to designate some of the marshlands for commercial, business, administrative, light industrial and commercial recreation uses, adding that it intends to protect high natral habitat areas and buy as much as it can afford for public recreation.

Shawn questioned the need for the plan changes. "Why do you need revision tonight?" he asked. "It's because Hahn has a schedule he has to meet because he has commitments by stores that may bail out and go to Larkspur. I don't understand why the pressure . . . why does Hahn run this town?"

Councilman Colthurst angrily retorted: "I resent that — shut up."

Many of Shawn's colleagues on the citizen's committee, appointed by Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville last fall to work on revising the town's general plan, rose and left the meeting.

Town planning consultant Thomas Cooke last week had introduced changes in the original redevelopment project, which included realigning Hahn's multimillion-dollar Ma-

PRIMER FOR SURVIVORS

Cost Of Dying High As Living

By JEFF GREER
(Fourth of six articles)

Many families undergoing the first-time ordeal of arranging services for a deceased relative emerge with vivid impressions of the expense and the numerous decisions that must be made in a very brief time.

The high cost of dying is a child of the high cost of living, funeral directors and cemetery officials are quick to assert. And a welter of state law surrounds the whole business of service to the dead and the survivors.

In Marin County,the simplest burial or cremation is likely to cost between $600 and $1,000 except for indigent burials handled at the taxpayers' expense.

Families may choose among seven mortuaries in the county. They also use many other Bay Area mortuaries.

Funeral directors say most families base their choice of mortuary on prior experience with a particular chapel or by recommendations of family friends. Some may have attended a funeral there and liked the surroundings.

How does a family make funeral arrangements?

First comes a visit to the mortuary by one or more survivors. A funeral director meets them in a quiet office that often is deliberately like a home's livingroom.

The concept of the undertaker in a shiny black suit is obsolete. "Most of us avoid the somber look," explained one director. He was clad in light-colored sports jacket, bright tie, and contrasting trousers.

The funeral director first asks the family for information he must put on the death certificate, burial permit and other required documents. He then explains what state laws require him to do, what additional services are available and what it all will cost.

In the past, all funeral expenses were lumped into the price tag for the coffin — which may range from about $55 to more than $20,000. Marin funeral directors modernized procedures several years ago, to give itemized estimates separating the coffin cost, the services performed by the mortuary and "accommodations" such as the honorarium to officiating clergy, newspaper obituary notices, organist, and the like.

New state consumer protection and truth-in-lending laws that took effect in 1972 require all funeral directors to follow

U.S. Army Closes Out Viet Operation

SAIGON (UPI) — With a blare of oriental fanfare from a borrowed brass band, the U.S. Army in Vietnam (USARV) furled the battle flags of America's longest war and quietly closed its Indochina operations today.

A crowd of about 300, most of them Army officers in khaki uniforms, attended the 20-minute ceremony that ended almost eight years of a command that once controlled thousands of GIs throughout the country.

In keeping with the precedent- setting nature of the American withdrawal from the conflict, the ceremony broke with Army tradition of outdoor reviews and was held in a theater flanking the U.S. Military Assistance Command Vietnam (MACV) headquarters near Tan Son Nhut Air Base.

It leaves the 6,800 U.S. troops still in Vietnam under MACV command. Under terms of the Vietnam truce, they must leave by March 28.

USARV was a purely military command, formed to combat the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong armies. MACV was the command formed to channel American aid to the South Vietnamese armed forces, and its function was mostly advisory.

As the standdown ceremony took place, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, reported that the government today was releasing another 1,100 Communist prisoners of war.

The release site was on the banks of the Thach Han River in Quang Tri City, 435 miles north of Saigon. Hien said another 1,500 Communist POWs would be freed Friday and that South Vietnam expected to receive 380 of its captured soldiers in return.

The long-time USARV headquarters at the huge Long Binh base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, was turned over to South Vietnam late last year.

The only military trappings today were the band, borrowed from the South Vietnamese Air Force, a sparse 20-man guard of honor of American soldiers outside the theater and a color guard in chromed helmets on the stage.

San Rafael Hits Redevelop Offer

By NELS JOHNSON

A proposal by county supervisors to withdraw two court suits blocking San Rafael's redevelopment plans in return for veto power over some projects has sparked a city counter proposal that rejects the veto demand.

The counter proposal, the latest move in a series of attempts to settle a 10-month squabble over redevelopment, was drafted by city councilmen Monday behind closed doors and made public yesterday after being forwarded to county officials.

The counter proposal meets a county demand that a list of improvements now under consideration and their cost be submitted to supervisors. It also accepts supervisors insistence that redevelopment projects increase assessed valuation in the redevelopment area, or provide needed community amenities of general public benefit, or eliminate blight.

The only change made by the city in those criteria is deletion of county wording that would limit community amenity projects to those "which cannot be readily financed by conventional means."

Stripped from the county proposal by the city is the veto provision that would prevent the city redevelopment agency from selling bonds to finance projects beyond those now under consideration "until the county has reasonably determined that the projects comply" with one of the three criteria.

Instead the counter proposal would prevent sale of bonds to finance such additional projects "until the county has reasonably reviewed the projects" in the light of the three criteria.

The counter proposal requires that the county submit detailed objections to any project it finds unacceptable within 30 days for negotiation of differences. If differences over a project can't be ironed out, the city may proceed with that project regardless of county concerns and the county may "take whatever steps it deems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon voiced grave concern today over truce violations by the North Vietnamese and served notice that the violations would not be tolerated by the United States.

The President told a news conference: "I would only suggest that in the light of my actions over the last four years ... North Vietnam should not lightly disregard such expressions of concern."

He did not specify any further possible actions.

These were other highlights of a 45-minute meeting by Nixon with newsmen at the White House:

—He said he is naming David K. E. Bruce, one of the nation's foremost diplomats, to head the 20-member U.S. mission which will open a liaison office in Peking, probably about May 1. Bruce, former ambassador to Britain, (France and Germany, will be joined by two other China experts in the Peking post.

The others are Alfred Jenkins, director of Asian Communist Affairs for the State Department, and John Holdridge, a member of Henry A. Kissinger's national security council staff.

—The President said he will lift a 0.3 per cent tariff on imported beef in an effort to force down soaring meat prices, but he again absolutely ruled out price controls on agricultural and food products. He said if he believed controls would stop the price rises on food "I would impose them instantly" but added controls discourage production.

—He challenged Congress to take to the Supreme Court for a showdown their fight with him over his invoking of executive privilege. He accused the Senate of trying to hold as "hostage" his nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to be FBI director because Nixon has refused to allow his White House counsel, John W. Dean III, to testify at confirmation hearings.

—Nixon said he probably would make two trips out of the country during the year, but did not pinpoint the areas he will visit.

—Nixon said his decision to sell government stockpiles of the strategic materials would produce "some squeals" from American industrialists, but he contended that it would help control inflation.

The President said U.S. concern over the apparent violations of the cease-fire agreement by the Communists had been transmitted to Hanoi and "other interested parties."

The Nixon administration has been taking a relatively mild view of cease-fire violations, on the theory some incidents were bound to occur. But the infiltration of military supplies, the President made clear, was another matter.

The Pentagon said early this week that about 30,000 men and a large number of tanks were spotted on the Ho Chi Minh Trail headed toward —or into —South Vietnam.

Of the infiltration on the trail, Nixon said "that is much more important" than other kinds of violations.

According to the cease-fire agreement, the North Vietnamese would be allowed to bring into South Vietnam replacement of military supplies in order to keep their equipment at the level it was when the cease-fire took place. The agreement specifically prohibits infiltration of additional soldiers and any increase of military supplies.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Vote Postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has postponed a vote on Dr. Ruth Farkas' nomination to be ambassador to Luxembourg until more details are known about her campaign contributions.

The Committee agreed to the delay yesterday at the request of Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo. McGee said he wants the General Accounting Office to provide full information on the amount, circumstances and timing of her donations to the Committee to Re-elect the President. Most of her $300,000 gift was provided after the Nov. 7 election, and at least part of it was not paid until after President Nixon's inauguration.

Irish Reforms

DUBLIN (UPI) — Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave led his newly elected coalition government into office today to begin work on the program of sweeping social reform he promised the Irish Republic.

Cosgrave, a 53-year-old lawyer, was elected premier yesterday by 72 votes to 70 after parliament voted former Prime Minister Jack Lynch out of office, thus officially ending 16 years of rule by the Fianna Fail party.

"My government will be a reforming government," Cosgrave told parliament. "We will put a program of sweeping social reforms into operation."

Tornado Victim

SPARTA, Tenn. (UPI) — One man was killed when a tornado ripped through White County early today and at least 45 families in two other middle Tennessee counties were forced to evacuate because of flash floods.

Sparta police said Jack Hill, a night watchman for a clothing manufacturer, was buried beneath debris in the plant. He died before reaching a hospital.

Tito Lauded

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union urged today that the Nobel Peace Prize go to President Tito of Yugoslavia, who was once denounced by Moscow as an outcast from world Communism.

Nikolai Tikhonov, chairman of the Soviet peace committee, wrote the Nobel prize committee in Oslo supporting the nomination of Tito for the peace prize, according to the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

Tito has been mentioned in several West European countries recently as a possible candidate.

Bomb Defused

BELFAST (UPI) — Soldiers defused a bomb in a downtown Belfast bar early today and the army warned shopkeepers to watch for more bombs. Six exploded yesterday, and a soldier was slightly injured defusing a seventh.

The explosions occurred in Belfast and on the border with the Irish republic. The only casualty was an army bomb disposal expert who was slightly hurt while defusing another bomb.

Peron's Plans

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan D. Peron, the 77-year-old former president whose backers swept the country's first presidential elections in 10 years, said last night he would leave the governing to his handpicked substitute, President-elect Hector J. Campora.

"I have done my part," Person said in an interview taped at his Madrid home and broadcast here. "Now the show is in his hands."

A Spanish newsman said Peron told him he would return to Argentina as soon as possible "if it is beneficial to the country."

Aid Talks Open

PARIS (UPI) — An American aid team arrived today to begin talks with North Vietnamese officials about economic assistance to Hanoi, diplomats said.

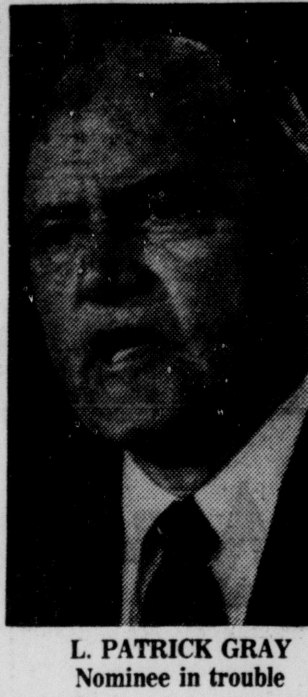
According to a White House announcement, the two sides will discuss the complete range of economic contacts between the two nations. There has been no indication how long the talks will last.

Education Gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four million gifts by private individuals and groups poured $1.5 billion to 1,080 U.S. colleges and universities during 1970-71.

Dean Will Talk By Letter Only

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's refusal to allow White House counsel John W. Dean to testify in person about his role in the probe of the Watergate political espionage case has put L. Patrick Gray's nomination as FBI director in trouble.



L. PATRICK GRAY
Nominee in trouble

Senate Democrats swiftly rejected yesterday Dean's offer to provide "all necessary and relevant information" in writing to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is considering Gray's nomination to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover. Committee members want Dean to explain about his handling of information given him by Gray about the FBI investigation.

The Democrats want Dean to appear in person. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said the committee "would be derelict in its duty to the Senate and the people of this country if it gives any further consideration to the Gray nomination" until Dean appears.

Comments in the House of Representatives were less restrained. Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., who opposed Nixon in Republican presidential primaries last year, said Dean's salary should be cut off "should his refusal continue."

And two Democrats who helped pass the Freedom of Information Act, Reps. John Moss., Calif., and William S. Moorhead, Pa., said Congress should arrest Dean for contempt of Congress and force a court test of executive privilege. Nixon had refused to allow Dean to testify in person on grounds of executive privilege.

Only eight votes are needed to defeat Gray's nomination in the committee, and even Republican committee member Edward J. Gurney of Florida acknowledged a vote to keep Gray's name from the Senate floor would be "very close."

Despite the impasse, Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., recalled Gray to testify next Tuesday at the hearings which have dealt chiefly with the FBI's handling of the probe into the breakin and bugging at Democratic National Headquarters last June.

17 Die As Terrorists Hit Pagoda Near Saigon

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Terrorist hand grenades exploded inside a crowded Buddhist pagoda near Saigon early today, killing 17 worshipers and wounding 81 others in the worst such incident since the Jan. 28 cease-fire.

In another reported Communist attack, South Vietnamese paratroopers were hit by more than 1,600 rounds of artillery, mortar and rocket shells on the Quang Tri northern front. Spokesmen said three troops were killed and 10 wounded.

There was no immediate report on the number of grenades hurled into the pagoda and none of the terrorists was known to have been captured, the Saigon command said.

The command reported that since the cease-fire, 319 civilians have been killed, 1,925 wounded and 987 abducted. Several hundred of those kidnaped were taken from a hamlet in the Central Highlands last month.

Hunters Killed

TEL AVIV (UPI) — A jeep carrying four hunters from an Arab village struck a mine on a dirt track Wednesday night near the Lebanese border, killing three of them and wounding another, the Israeli military command said today.

Prisoners Kept Tight Organization

HANOI (UPI) — American prisoners of war were so tightly organized within the so-called Hanoi Hilton prison camp they refused Wednesday to speak even of freedom except through their own camp commander.

Four POWs brought to a meeting to arrange details of their release shooed away American newsmen and curtly informed a U.S. officer on hand that only Col. John P. Flynn, the senior prisoner, could talk for them.

The prisoners were asked by North Vietnamese officers if they wished to return to their cells at the Hanoi Hilton, just across the street.

The four—two young men, two older POWs—said they so wished.

They could then be seen inside the prison compound, stopping at each window, apparently briefing the other prisoners of their meeting with the North Vietnamese and officials of the four-party Joint Military Commission (JMC), which includes American officers and the four-nation International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS).

Later, officials said, the prisoner release officials met with Flynn, 50, an Air Force colonel shot down Oct. 27, 1967.

The four prisoners seen up close by a small group of newsmen were curt with everyone, including the American representative of the JMC.

Brought to an office beside the Hanoi Hilton—officially called the Ly Nam De detention camp by the North Vietnamese—the men maintained throughout the short session that only Flynn could speak for the POWs.

Looking healthy, but unsmiling, dressed in grey pajamalike outfits with rubber sandals cut from discarded tires and inner tubes, the four men refused all direct contact with American newsmen, except to wave them away.

The brief incident appeared to back up earlier stories that tight discipline has been maintained in the American POW camps in North Vietnam.

New Auto Demands Outstripping Supply

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. auto industry, headed for its best first quarter in history, is finding it hard to keep up with customer demand for new cars.

So far this year, the four major auto companies have sold 1,749 cars — a hefty 17 per cent increase over the same period of 1972, which turned out to be a banner year. If they had a better supply, new car dealers say they could sell even more.

"We're producing every car we can produce in every line," says M.S. McLaughlin vice president of the corporate marketing staff for Ford Motor Co. "We'll be short of practically all our cars for the duration of this model year."

Top auto executives at the end of 1972 were predicting sales of domestic and imported cars would hit around 11 million in 1973. If the record pace set in the first two months of the year continues, sales could easily hit 12 million—a figure not even the most optimistic analyst would have put forward two months ago.

The record number of persons visiting new car showrooms is pushing sales to record levels. The new car inventory at the end of February was a 51-day supply, the lowest in eight years. And it comes at a time when carmakers usually are building up a supply for the traditionally strong spring sales.

General Motors topped the year-ago period by 33 per cent, American Motors increased its sales by 29 per cent, Ford by 25.1 per cent and Chrysler 11 per cent.

Commuter Train Has First Wreck

TUXEDO, Md. (UPI) — A high-speed Metroliner commuter train that runs between New York and Washington suffered the first wreck in its four-year history Wednesday, but there were no major injuries because the train was stopped at the time.

A caboose being pushed by a Penn Central locomotive was demolished, however, after it slammed into the rear of the four-car Metroliner carrying 130 passengers. Five crewmen and seven passengers were slightly injured.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Vote Postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has postponed a vote on Dr. Ruth Farkas' nomination to be ambassador to Luxembourg until more details are known about her campaign contributions.

The Committee agreed to the delay yesterday at the request of Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo. McGee said he wants the General Accounting Office to provide full information on the amount, circumstances and timing of her donations to the Committee to Re-elect the President. Most of her $300,000 gift was provided after the Nov. 7 election, and at least part of it was not paid until after President Nixon's inauguration.

Irish Reforms

DUBLIN (UPI) — Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave led his newly elected coalition government into office today to begin work on the program of sweeping social reform he promised the Irish Republic.

Cosgrave, a 53-year-old lawyer, was elected premier yesterday by 72 votes to 70 after parliament voted former Prime Minister Jack Lynch out of office, thus officially ending 16 years of rule by the Fianna Fail party.

"My government will be a reforming government," Cosgrave told parliament. "We will put a program of sweeping social reforms into operation."

Tornado Victim

SPARTA, Tenn. (UPI) — One man was killed when a tornado ripped through White County early today and at least 45 families in two other middle Tennessee counties were forced to evacuate because of flash floods.

Sparta police said Jack Hill, a night watchman for a clothing manufacturer, was buried beneath debris in the plant. He died before reaching a hospital.

Tito Lauded

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union urged today that the Nobel Peace Prize go to President Tito of Yugoslavia, who was once denounced by Moscow as an outcast from world Communism.

Nikolai Tikhonov, chairman of the Soviet peace committee, wrote the Nobel prize committee in Oslo supporting the nomination of Tito for the peace prize, according to the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

Tito has been mentioned in several West European countries recently as a possible candidate.

Bomb Defused

BELFAST (UPI) — Soldiers defused a bomb in a downtown Belfast bar early today and the army warned shopkeepers to watch for more bombs. Six exploded yesterday, and a soldier was slightly injured defusing a seventh.

The explosions occurred in Belfast and on the border with the Irish republic. The only casualty was an army bomb disposal expert who was slightly hurt while defusing another bomb.

Peron's Plans

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan D. Peron, the 77-year-old former president whose backers swept the country's first presidential elections in 10 years, said last night he would leave the governing to his handpicked substitute, President-elect Hector J. Campora.

"I have done my part," Person said in an interview taped at his Madrid home and broadcast here. "Now the show is in his hands."

A Spanish newsman said Peron told him he would return to Argentina as soon as possible "if it is beneficial to the country."

Aid Talks Open

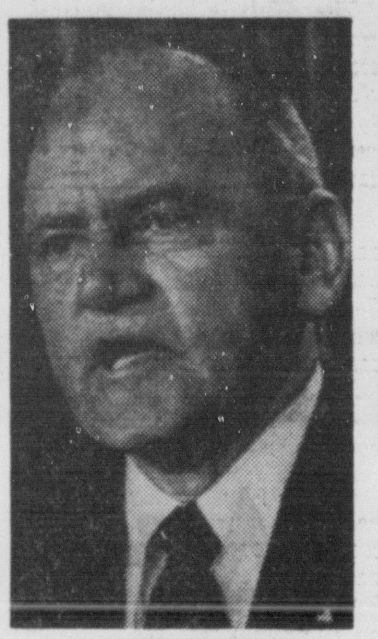
PARIS (UPI) — An American aid team arrived today to begin talks with North Vietnamese officials about economic assistance to Hanoi, diplomats said.

According to a White House announcement, the two sides will discuss the complete range of economic contacts between the two nations. There has been no indication how long the talks will last.

Education Gifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four million gifts by private individuals and groups poured $1.5 billion to 1,080 U.S. colleges and universities during 1970-71.

Dean Will Talk By Letter Only



L. PATRICK GRAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's refusal to allow White House counsel John W. Dean to testify in person about his role in the probe of the Watergate political espionage case has put L. Patrick Gray's nomination as FBI director in trouble.

Senate Democrats swiftly rejected yesterday Dean's offer to provide "all necessary and relevant information" in writing to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is considering Gray's nomination to succeed the late J. Edgar Hoover. Committee members want Dean to explain about his handling of information given him by Gray about the FBI investigation.

The Democrats want Dean to appear in person. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said the committee "would be derelict in its duty to the Senate and the people of this country if it gives any further consideration to the Gray nomination" until Dean appears.

Comments in the House of Representatives were less restrained. Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., who opposed Nixon in Republican presidential primaries last year, said Dean's salary should be cut off "should his refusal continue."

And two Democrats who helped pass the Freedom of Information Act, Reps. John Moss., Calif., and William S. Moorhead, Pa., said Congress should arrest Dean for contempt of Congress and force a court test of executive privilege. Nixon had refused to allow Dean to testify in person on grounds of executive privilege.

Only eight votes are needed to defeat Gray's nomination in the committee, and even Republican committee member Edward J. Gurney of Florida acknowledged a vote to keep Gray's name from the Senate floor would be "very close."

Despite the impasse, Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., recalled Gray to testify next Tuesday at the hearings which have dealt chiefly with the FBI's handling of the probe into the breakin and bugging at Democratic National Headquarters last June.

17 Die As Terrorists Hit Pagoda Near Saigon

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Terrorist hand grenades exploded inside a crowded Buddhist pagoda near Saigon early today, killing 17 worshipers and wounding 81 others in the worst such incident since the Jan. 28 cease-fire.

In another reported Communist attack, South Vietnamese paratroopers were hit by more than 1,600 rounds of artillery, mortar and rocket shells on the Quang Tri northern front. Spokesmen said three troops were killed and 10 wounded.

There was no immediate report on the number of grenades hurled into the pagoda and none of the terrorists was known to have been captured, the Saigon command said.

The command reported that since the cease-fire, 319 civilians have been killed, 1,925 wounded and 987 abducted. Several hundred of those kidnaped were taken from a hamlet in the Central Highlands last month.

Hunters Killed

TEL AVIV (UPI) — A jeep carrying four hunters from an Arab village struck a mine on a dirt track Wednesday night near the Lebanese border, killing three of them and wounding another, the Israeli military command said today.

Prisoners Kept Tight Organization

HANOI (UPI) — American prisoners of war were so tightly organized within the so-called Hanoi Hilton prison camp they refused Wednesday to speak even of freedom except through their own camp commander.

Four POWs brought to a meeting to arrange details of their release shooed away American newsmen and curtly informed a U.S. officer on hand that only Col. John P. Flynn, the senior prisoner, could talk for them.

The prisoners were asked by North Vietnamese officers if they wished to return to their cells at the Hanoi Hilton, just across the street.

The four—two young men, two older POWs—said they so wished.

They could then be seen inside the prison compound, stopping at each window, apparently briefing the other prisoners of their meeting with the North Vietnamese and officials of the four-party Joint Military Commission (JMC), which includes American officers and the four-nation International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS).

Later, officials said, the prisoner release officials met with Flynn, 50, an Air Force colonel shot down Oct. 27, 1967.

The four prisoners seen up close by a small group of newsmen were curt with everyone, including the American representative of the JMC.

Brought to an office beside the Hanoi Hilton—officially called the Ly Nam De detention camp by the North Vietnamese—the men maintained throughout the short session that only Flynn could speak for the POWs.

They vehemently refused to have their pictures taken. One yelled at an American television cameraman trying to focus on the POW, "get that thing out of here."

Looking healthy, but unsmiling, dressed in grey pajamalike outfits with rubber sandals cut from discarded tires and inner tubes, the four men refused all direct contact with American newsmen, except to wave them away.

The brief incident appeared to back up earlier stories that tight discipline has been maintained in the American POW camps in North Vietnam.

New Auto Demands Outstripping Supply

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. auto industry, headed for its best first quarter in history, is finding it hard to keep up with customer demand for new cars.

So far this year, the four major auto companies have sold 1,749 cars — a hefty 17 per cent increase over the same period of 1972, which turned out to be a banner year. If they had a better supply, new car dealers say they could sell even more.

"We're producing every car we can produce in every line," says M.S. McLaughlin vice president of the corporate marketing staff for Ford Motor Co. "We'll be short of practically all our cars for the duration of this model year."

Top auto executives at the end of 1972 were predicting sales of domestic and imported cars would hit around 11 million in 1973. If the record pace set in the first two months of the year continues, sales could easily hit 12 million—a figure not even the most optimistic analyst would have put forward two months ago.

The record number of persons visiting new car showrooms is pushing sales to record levels. The new car inventory at the end of February was a 51-day supply, the lowest in eight years. And it comes at a time when carmakers usually are building up a supply for the traditionally strong spring sales.

General Motors topped the year-ago period by 33 per cent, American Motors increased its sales by 29 per cent, Ford by 25.1 per cent and Chrysler 11 per cent.

Commuter Train Has First Wreck

TUXEDO, Md. (UPI) — A high-speed Metroliner commuter train that runs between New York and Washington suffered the first wreck in its four-year history Wednesday, but there were no major injuries because the train was stopped at the time.

A caboose being pushed by a Penn Central locomotive was demolished, however, after it slammed into the rear of the four-car Metroliner carrying 130 passengers. Five crewmen and seven passengers were slightly injured.

MARCH OF DIMES FUNDS IN ACTION

Three-day-old Spencer Sanborn sleeps snugly in an isolette in Marin General Hospital's intensive care nursery, watched over by both human and electronic guardians. Nurse Carol Werschky reads the printout from electrocardiogram monitoring equipment, purchased with a $3,500 grant from the North Bay March of Dimes Chapter. Spencer, the son of Beverly and Allen Sanborn of 725 Sunset Parkway, Novato, was born five weeks prematurely on Saturday, and developed a mild case of hyaline membrane disease — to which premature babies are particularly subject. Oxygen was pumped into his isolette to help him breathe until his lungs matured, and the monitors picked up hints of changes in heart rate, and detected electrolyte disorders. Spencer has already gained an ounce in weight, and today the hospital reported he's out of his isolette, breathing ordinary air.

College Plan Hearing Is Set

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has set a hearing on the Sonoma State College area master plan for April 24 at 7:30 p.m.

The county planning commission has recommended land around the campus remain in a zone that permits building houses on less than an acre.

College officials and the Rohnert Park City Council had asked the zoning be restricted to one house per 10 acres and said they would protest the higher density at the hearing before the supervisors. Both groups argued that it is vital to preserve open space to keep the rural atmosphere at the college and as a buffer as Rohnert Park grows.

Whistlestop Calling For Kitchen Aid

The Whistlestop, the first county-wide senior citizens center, has the room for it, and the older members of the community have the need for it, but the center so far has no kitchen facilities.

"Old age itself is not preventable," said Edward Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council which operates the center, "but some of its problems are. There has been a great deal of demand among seniors for low-cost, nutritious meals."

A group of local citizens headed by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, working with council president Ernest N. Kettenhofen, is taking steps to do something about the problem.

They have undertaken a three-phase campaign to come up with money, equipment and labor to build a kitchen at the Whistlestop, located in the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad depot in San Rafael.

Their goal is to raise $7,500, or its equivalent in equipment construction supplies and labor. They already have pledges for $1,800 and promises for labor, some equipment and supplies, but they need more help before construction begins, tentatively by mid-April, said Ryken.

Ryken said cash donations for the kitchen may be made to the center. Volunteers also are needed to do electrical work, plumbing, carpentry and painting. The kitchen will need eating utensils, pots and pans and commercial equipment that meets health department standards.

After the kitchen is built, volunteers will be needed to assist in preparing menus and serving meals.

The kitchen committee will meet at 8 a.m. Wednesday at the Whistlestop and the meeting is open to anyone who would like to help.

"We plan to be in business and serving meals by late May or early June," Ryken said.

Senior Citizens Enterprises, a private division of the council, will operate the kitchen and will employ between seven and 20 seniors working with a licensed dietitian.

Meals will cost about $1, not to exceed $1.25, said Ryken.

The Marin County Peace Officers' Association will hold its first membership meeting of 1973 on March 21 at 7:30 p.m. at New Joe's Restaurant in Corte Madera. Cocktail hour will begin at 6:30, announced Arthur S. Olson, president.

CENTER

rin Mall to cross the railroad tracks onto the Muzzi property, thus leaving the wildlife-rich marsh to the north as open space.

Cooke also suggested moving the rapid transit route from the railroad right-of-way to the median of Highway 101, although he noted the Golden Gate Bridge District might not like the idea.

He also recommended that a loop road around the shopping center be constructed, instead of extending San Clemente Drive along the railroad right-of-way.

All these were changes requested by Shawn's planning group.

But another change Cooke suggested at last week's council meeting — that all of the marsh not used for the center be procured through purchase or dedication as open space — was altered last night.

Town Atty. Albert Bianchi warned councilmen that flatly designating the Muzzi property as open space or natural habitat areas would be inviting an inverse condemnation suit, unless "additional language" made it clear that no restriction upon private use before public acquisition was intended.

Cooke showed revised redevelopment project plans which pictured commercial recreational use on filled areas of the Muzzi lands adjacent to the shopping center, with some existing dikes removed to revive salt marshes on the bayfront lands. He called the modifications "a good compromise."

Councilman Flahive pleaded with fellow councilmen to commit some of the redevelopment agency's bond money to buying land for open space.

"If we adopt this we may be in the middle of constructing the shopping center and a proposal comes up for developing something on the marshlands and we won't have the money to purchase the property," he said. "I thought we were going to consider buying the land with redevelopment bonds."

Councilman Colthurst countered that the total bond issue ought to be kept low so other taxing agencies wouldn't suffer. "We've been tiptoeing around redevelopment," he complained, "If we keep kicking the bond issue up we'll have the Larkspur School District, the College District and Dick Godino (the assistant county counsel) down here complaining."

Mayor Norville said there are many other areas of open space in Corte Madera that need public acquisition, too.

"Everybody in the county comes and says this marshland is a unique area," he said, "but nobody brings money. How far can we go in buying? It's a dilemma . . . I'd rather be on the side of paying bills quickly."

Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff told Flahive he admired his "idealistic philosophy" of using redevelopment bond money to buy the marshlands, but said he doesn't want the whole redevelopment project "flipped over because we got too ambitious."

Councilman Heber C. Leney said he's been told that none of the marshland was buildable," so what are we worrying about anyway?"

Cooke said there is 100 feet of mud below the Muzzi property, and site preparation for development would be very expensive.

"By permitting a limited amount of development on the area which has a high potential, you have established a reasonable return," said Cooke, "and acquisition cost of the rest should be relatively reasonable."

Norville, Wagstaff, Leney and Colthurst voted in favor of the general plan modifications. Flahive voted against.

The council adjourned, then, sitting as the Corte Madera Redevelopment Agency, authorized town manager Ronald E. Bartels to get sox estimates from professional appraisers on appraising all the lands within the redevelopment project.

The town's public hearing on the entire redevelopment project is set for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Three Face Charge Of Conspiracy

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Anselmo man and two companions have been arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Richard S. Goldsmith on charges of conspiring to embezzle from a bank to play the stock market.

George Thomas McIntosh, 32, of 282 Butterfield Road, an assistant trust officer for the Bank of California; Jorge Rivas, 34, of San Francisco, and Wallace J. Von Eisiminger, 43, a Los Angeles publicist, were arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents over last weekend.

A bank audit disclosed that $60,000 was missing from trust accounts, according to Charles W. Bates, chief of the San Francisco Federal Bureau of Investigation office.

FBI agents said in an affidavit that the three made $10,000 each since last Sept. 15 by using the funds to play the stock market. The charges filed covered only two checks from one trust account — a $3,000 check drawn Sept. 15 and a $20,000 check drawn Feb. 9. Rivas is an assistant secretary in the bank's trust department.

McIntosh was released on $10,000 personal recognizance bond when he appeared before Goldsmith on Monday. The three are to return to Goldsmith's court March 30 for preliminary hearing.

Weapons Charge Is Denied By San Rafael Man

Gibson was arrested by San Rafael police at Third Street and Tamalpais Avenue shortly after they found John G. Anderson, 47, bleeding from wounds in his chest and abdomen in his apartment at 321 Paloma Street.

Police said the two apparently quarreled over a car Anderson had not returned on time to a mutual friend.

Two Youths Arrested In Burglary

Two Marin youths were arrested yesterday in connection with the Sunday burglary of $678 worth of goods from a Tiburon antique store, Tiburon police said today.

Booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of burglary were Thomas Joseph Tully, 19, of 15 Bridge Road, Larkspur, and Todd Ashley Beeson, 20, of 99 West Shore Road, Belvedere.

Both posted $1,000 bail and were to appear Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Tiburon police said officers were called to the Pandemonium Store, an antique shop on Paradise Drive, at 11:52 p.m. Sunday by a night watchman.

As they drove up, police said, one of two trucks parked near the store drove away. The other truck, which apparently had stalled, was found to contain two antique phonographs and two wine casks from the store, officers said. The truck was registered to Beeson.

Officers said they stopped the other truck, driven by Tully, later that night, but made no arrest at the time.

After investigating, however, warrants were issued for both youths and Marin sheriff's deputies, acting on a tip, found them in Tully's truck in Bolinas at 9 p.m. yesterday and arrested them.

Still missing in the burglary, police said, are three knives, a belt and a purse with a total value of $133.

FERRY

it will not consider the bottleneck until fiscal 1978-79.

Fleckles said he feared "we'll have a smashing success with only a two-lane road, and we'll have one helluva mess." He added that if the bridge district would lend the city $150,000 interest free to improve access to the terminal he would "shut up right now." He got no response.

Bathurst, estimating the cost of widening the railroad underpass at up to $250,000, said he expected the Northwestern Pacific Railroad to indicate within three to four months whether it will abandon the line south of San Rafael. The cost of eliminating the bottleneck would be cut if the line were abandoned, he said.

The district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, warned against pressuring the railroad to abandon the line before the district acquires other lines already abandoned. The district hopes to use the lines for rapid transit.

A spokesman for the state Department of Fish and Game, L. Frank Goodson, cautioned that marshland around the terminal is "an extremely valuable fish and wildlife area, and we are very concerned about any development proposed in this area."

He denied Braccia's statement that other consultants doing the environmental impact study already had discussed the terminal with the Department of Fish and Game. "I know of no contact," Goodson said.

District officials said that the environmental impact study being made of the terminal will be completed in June.

necessary," according to the counter proposal.

The counter proposal is in substantial agreement with the county proposal on other matters. Both put a $6 million ceiling on redevelopment bonds and a seven-year limitation on their use. Also acceptable to both sides is a complicated formula for repaying taxing agencies whose assessed valuation will be frozen so that any increase can serve to finance redevelopment bonds.

Included with the city's counter proposal is a list of 14 projects costing an estimated $4,625,000 that are now under consideration as redevelopment improvements. A $2.3 million "development assistance fund" is also proposed "to acquire privately owned parcels for assemblage purposes as well as to acquire parcels individually for future private development," according to the document.

The city, which has agreed to limit bond sales to $6 million, has proposed a $6.925 million program to allow itself flexibility in deciding which projects will actually proceed, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

Deleted from the project list are three improvements previously mentioned by the city but opposed by the county — expansion of Albert Park, a city hall addition and creation of a central city firehouse.

Projects proposed by the city are a Fourth Street demonstration project near A and Court streets, $300,000; parking, sidewalk and undergrounding improvements on Third and Second Streets from Grand Avenue to East Street, $350,000; widening Fourth Street from G to Second streets and widening G Street from Fourth to Second Streets, $300,000; right-of-way acquisition for connection of Lindaro Street to Lootens Place, $100,000; right-of-way acquisition from Fourth Street to the parking lot at Third Street and Lootens Place, $200,000; improvement of off-street parking on Third Street including parking between A and B streets, $500,000, and parking facilities near Fifth Street and Lootens Place, $200,000.

Also shoreline park, $600,000; canal improvements, $300,000; undergrounding on Francisco Boulevard, $675,000; intersection improvements at Bellam Boulevard and Jacoby Street and widening of Jacoby Street between Bellam Boulevard and Simms Street, $200,000; recreation center near Albert Field, $350,000; construction of new road from A Street to Bellam Boulevard, $250,000, and providing another connection with and across Highway 17 between Bellam Boulevard and Point San Quentin, $300,000.

The proposed projects may or may not be implemented, according to the counter proposal, since they may be "altered, modified or deleted from the redevelopment program," which may be expanded to include projects not mentioned.

"This counter proposal is a restatement of policy of what we intend to do," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini, who predicted it will be acceptable to the county. Redevelopment boosters, however, have made similar claims for past proposals which proved unacceptable.

It was uncertain today whether or not county supervisors will consider the counter proposal on Tuesday.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Alice Gerstle Levison

Memorial service for Alice Gerstle Levison, 99-year-old member of the family which gave Gerstle Park to the city of San Rafael, will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Temple Emanu-El in San Francisco.

Mrs. Levison died Tuesday, 16 days short of her 100th birthday, at the San Francisco home where she had lived for 71 years.

She was the last surviving child of Lewis and Hannah Gerstle, who reared their seven children in San Francisco and at Violet Terrace, as their summer estate in San Rafael was known.

Violet Terrace was purchased by the Gerstles in 1881, a house on land once part of the Mexican land grant, Rancho Punta de Quentin. In memory of the happy times at the estate, the Gerstles' children gave the property as a memorial to their mother when she died in 1930.

When Mr. and Mrs. Levison celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, instead of receiving a present, Mrs. Levison gave playground equipment to the park.

Levison, executive of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. and founder and president of both the San Francisco Symphony and San Francisco Opera Association, died in 1947 at the age of 86.

Still witty and bright, last year Mrs. Levison held court for hundreds of relatives and friends when she observed her 99th birthday.

Mrs. Levison served as president of the Mount Zion Hospital auxiliary for many years and also as president of the now defunct Emanu-El Residence Club.

When she was well over 90, she was asked by the University of California's Bancroft Library to tape her memoirs as part of the library's history collection. She is said to have been very frank about early San Francisco residents.

Mrs. Levison is survived by four sons, John, Robert and George Levison and Charles Lane; eight grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

The family prefers contributions to the Alice Gerstle Levison Memorial Fund for Gerstle Park, in care of the mayor's office, city hall, San Rafael.

FRANCES LIETZ

Frances Crowley Lietz, member of a pioneer Marin County family, died yesterday in a Calistoga hospital after a brief illness. She was 77.

Mrs. Lietz was born in Nicasio, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Miller. Her grandfather, James Miller, settled in the Las Gallinas Valley in 1845, and became a friend of San Rafael pioneer Don Timoteo Murphy.

The three-story mansion, Miller Hall, became a showplace in what is now Marinwood, and James Miller donated the land on which the historic Dixie schoolhouse originally stood.

Mrs. Lietz's late uncle William J. Miller built another showplace mansion at Fifth Avenue and B Street, San Rafael, that later served as the Elks Lodge before it was replaced by the Bank of Marin.

Mrs. Lietz attended San Francisco Normal College, and then taught in the schoolhouse her father had helped build. In 1922, she married Byron Coit, who died in 1941. She later married Adolph Lietz of San Rafael, who died in 1957.

Mrs. Lietz moved to St. Helena in 1970, and to Calistoga last September.

She is survived by one son, Charles Coit of Calistoga and four grandchildren.

She was a member of St. Raphael Catholic Church and of the altar guild in San Rafael.

A graveside service will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow in Holy Cross Cemetery, St. Helena. The Morrison Funeral Chapel of St. Helena is in charge of arrangements.

The family prefers memorial donations to the St. Helena Catholic Church.

LOUISE BEYHAN

Louise B. Beyhan, mother of Ann DeMartini of Tiburon, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital following a two-month illness. She was 83.

A native of New York, Mrs. Beyhan had been visting her daughter here for about one year.

She was a member of senior citizens groups in Mill Valley, San Francisco, Atlanta, Ga., and Baltimore, Md. She had maintained continuous memberships in all the clubs for the past 20 years.

In addition to Mrs. DeMartini, she is survived by a son, Samuel Beyhan of Atlanta, Ga. She also leaves four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral and burial will be Saturday in Albion, N.Y.

rin Mall to cross the railroad tracks onto the Muzzi property, thus leaving the wildlife-rich marsh to the north as open space.

Cooke also suggested moving the rapid transit route from the railroad right-of-way to the median of Highway 101, although he noted the Golden Gate Bridge District might not like the idea.

He also recommended that a loop road around the shopping center be constructed, instead of extending San Clemente Drive along the railroad right-of-way.

All these were changes requested by Shawn's planning group.

But another change Cooke suggested at last week's council meeting — that all of the marsh not used for the center be procured through purchase or dedication as open space — was altered last night.

Town Atty. Albert Bianchi warned councilmen that flatly designating the Muzzi property as open space or natural habitat areas would be inviting an inverse condemnation suit, unless "additional language" made it clear that no restriction upon private use before public acquisition was intended.

Cooke showed revised redevelopment project plans which pictured commercial recreational use on filled areas of the Muzzi lands adjacent to the shopping center, with some existing dikes removed to revive salt marshes on the bayfront lands. He called the modifications "a good compromise."

Councilman Flahive pleaded with fellow councilmen to commit some of the redevelopment agency's bond money to buying land for open space.

"If we adopt this we may be in the middle of constructing the shopping center and a proposal comes up for developing something on the marshlands and we won't have the money to purchase the property," he said. "I thought we were going to consider buying the land with redevelopment bonds."

Councilman Colthurst countered that the total bond issue ought to be kept low so other taxing agencies wouldn't suffer. "We've been tiptoeing around redevelopment," he complained, "If we keep kicking the bond issue up we'll have the Larkspur School District, the College District and Dick Godino (the assistant county counsel) down here complaining."

Mayor Norville said there are many other areas of open space in Corte Madera that need public acquisition, too.

"Everybody in the county comes and says this marshland is a unique area," he said, "but nobody brings money. How far can we go in buying? It's a dilemma . . . I'd rather be on the side of paying bills quickly."

Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff told Flahive he admired his "idealistic philosophy" of using redevelopment bond money to buy the marshlands, but said he doesn't want the whole redevelopment project "flipped over because we got too ambitious."

Councilman Heber C. Leney said he's been told that none of the marshland was buildable," so what are we worrying about anyway?"

Cooke said there is 100 feet of mud below the Muzzi property, and site preparation for development would be very expensive.

"By permitting a limited amount of development on the area which has a high potential, you have established a reasonable return," said Cooke, "and acquisition cost of the rest should be relatively reasonable."

Norville, Wagstaff, Leney and Colthurst voted in favor of the general plan modifications. Flahive voted against.

The council adjourned, then, sitting as the Corte Madera Redevelopment Agency, authorized town manager Ronald E. Bartels to get sox estimates from professional appraisers on appraising all the lands within the redevelopment project.

The town's public hearing on the entire redevelopment project is set for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Three Face Charge Of Conspiracy

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Anselmo man and two companions have been arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Richard S. Goldsmith on charges of conspiring to embezzle from a bank to play the stock market.

George Thomas McIntosh, 32, of 282 Butterfield Road, an assistant trust officer for the Bank of California; Jorge Rivas, 34, of San Francisco, and Wallace J. Von Eisiminger, 43, a Los Angeles publicist, were arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents over last weekend.

A bank audit disclosed that $60,000 was missing from trust accounts, according to Charles W. Bates, chief of the San Francisco Federal Bureau of Investigation office.

FBI agents said in an affidavit that the three made $10,000 each since last Sept. 15 by using the funds to play the stock market. The charges filed covered only two checks from one trust account — a $3,000 check drawn Sept. 15 and a $20,000 check drawn Feb. 9. Rivas is an assistant secretary in the bank's trust department.

McIntosh was released on $10,000 personal recognizance bond when he appeared before Goldsmith on Monday. The three are to return to Goldsmith's court March 30 for preliminary hearing.

Weapons Charge Is Denied By San Rafael Man

Gibson was arrested by San Rafael police at Third Street and Tamalpais Avenue shortly after they found John G. Anderson, 47, bleeding from wounds in his chest and abdomen in his apartment at 321 Paloma Street.

Police said the two apparently quarreled over a car Anderson had not returned on time to a mutual friend.

Two Youths Arrested In Burglary

Two Marin youths were arrested yesterday in connection with the Sunday burglary of $678 worth of goods from a Tiburon antique store, Tiburon police said today.

Booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of burglary were Thomas Joseph Tully, 19, of 15 Bridge Road, Larkspur, and Todd Ashley Beeson, 20, of 99 West Shore Road, Belvedere.

Both posted $1,000 bail and were to appear Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Tiburon police said officers were called to the Pandemonium Store, an antique shop on Paradise Drive, at 11:52 p.m. Sunday by a night watchman.

As they drove up, police said, one of two trucks parked near the store drove away. The other truck, which apparently had stalled, was found to contain two antique phonographs and two wine casks from the store, officers said. The truck was registered to Beeson.

Officers said they stopped the other truck, driven by Tully, later that night, but made no arrest at the time.

After investigating, however, warrants were issued for both youths and Marin sheriff's deputies, acting on a tip, found them in Tully's truck in Bolinas at 9 p.m. yesterday and arrested them.

Still missing in the burglary, police said, are three knives, a belt and a purse with a total value of $133.

FERRY

it will not consider the bottleneck until fiscal 1978-79.

Fleckles said he feared "we'll have a smashing success with only a two-lane road, and we'll have one helluva mess." He added that if the bridge district would lend the city $150,000 interest free to improve access to the terminal he would "shut up right now." He got no response.

Bathurst, estimating the cost of widening the railroad underpass at up to $250,000, said he expected the Northwestern Pacific Railroad to indicate within three to four months whether it will abandon the line south of San Rafael. The cost of eliminating the bottleneck would be cut if the line were abandoned, he said.

The district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, warned against pressuring the railroad to abandon the line before the district acquires other lines already abandoned. The district hopes to use the lines for rapid transit.

A spokesman for the state Department of Fish and Game, L. Frank Goodson, cautioned that marshland around the terminal is "an extremely valuable fish and wildlife area, and we are very concerned about any development proposed in this area."

He denied Braccia's statement that other consultants doing the environmental impact study already had discussed the terminal with the Department of Fish and Game. "I know of no contact," Goodson said.

District officials said that the environmental impact study being made of the terminal will be completed in June.

necessary," according to the counter proposal.

The counter proposal is in substantial agreement with the county proposal on other matters. Both put a $6 million ceiling on redevelopment bonds and a seven-year limitation on their use. Also acceptable to both sides is a complicated formula for repaying taxing agencies whose assessed valuation will be frozen so that any increase can serve to finance redevelopment bonds.

Included with the city's counter proposal is a list of 14 projects costing an estimated $4,625,000 that are now under consideration as redevelopment improvements. A $2.3 million "development assistance fund" is also proposed "to acquire privately owned parcels for assemblage purposes as well as to acquire parcels individually for future private development," according to the document.

The city, which has agreed to limit bond sales to $6 million, has proposed a $6.925 million program to allow itself flexibility in deciding which projects will actually proceed, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

Deleted from the project list are three improvements previously mentioned by the city but opposed by the county — expansion of Albert Park, a city hall addition and creation of a central city firehouse.

Projects proposed by the city are a Fourth Street demonstration project near A and Court streets, $300,000; parking, sidewalk and undergrounding improvements on Third and Second Streets from Grand Avenue to East Street, $350,000; widening Fourth Street from G to Second streets and widening G Street from Fourth to Second Streets, $300,000; right-of-way acquisition for connection of Lindaro Street to Lootens Place, $100,000; right-of-way acquisition from Fourth Street to the parking lot at Third Street and Lootens Place, $200,000; improvement of off-street parking on Third Street including parking between A and B streets, $500,000, and parking facilities near Fifth Street and Lootens Place, $200,000.

Also shoreline park, $600,000; canal improvements, $300,000; undergrounding on Francisco Boulevard, $675,000; intersection improvements at Bellam Boulevard and Jacoby Street and widening of Jacoby Street between Bellam Boulevard and Simms Street, $200,000; recreation center near Albert Field, $350,000; construction of new road from A Street to Bellam Boulevard, $250,000, and providing another connection with and across Highway 17 between Bellam Boulevard and Point San Quentin, $300,000.

The proposed projects may or may not be implemented, according to the counter proposal, since they may be "altered, modified or deleted from the redevelopment program," which may be expanded to include projects not mentioned.

"This counter proposal is a restatement of policy of what we intend to do," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini, who predicted it will be acceptable to the county. Redevelopment boosters, however, have made similar claims for past proposals which proved unacceptable.

It was uncertain today whether or not county supervisors will consider the counter proposal on Tuesday.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Alice Gerstle Levison

Memorial service for Alice Gerstle Levison, 99-year-old member of the family which gave Gerstle Park to the city of San Rafael, will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Temple Emanu-El in San Francisco.

Mrs. Levison died Tuesday, 16 days short of her 100th birthday, at the San Francisco home where she had lived for 71 years.

She was the last surviving child of Lewis and Hannah Gerstle, who reared their seven children in San Francisco and at Violet Terrace, as their summer estate in San Rafael was known.

Violet Terrace was purchased by the Gerstles in 1881, a house on land once part of the Mexican land grant, Rancho Punta de Quentin. In memory of the happy times at the estate, the Gerstles' children gave the property as a memorial to their mother when she died in 1930.

When Mr. and Mrs. Levison celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, instead of receiving a present, Mrs. Levison gave playground equipment to the park.

Levison, executive of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. and founder and president of both the San Francisco Symphony and San Francisco Opera Association, died in 1947 at the age of 86.

Still witty and bright, last year Mrs. Levison held court for hundreds of relatives and friends when she observed her 99th birthday.

Mrs. Levison served as president of the Mount Zion Hospital auxiliary for many years and also as president of the now defunct Emanu-El Residence Club.

When she was well over 90, she was asked by the University of California's Bancroft Library to tape her memoirs as part of the library's history collection. She is said to have been very frank about early San Francisco residents.

Mrs. Levison is survived by four sons, John, Robert and George Levison and Charles Lane; eight grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

The family prefers contributions to the Alice Gerstle Levison Memorial Fund for Gerstle Park, in care of the mayor's office, city hall, San Rafael.

FRANCES LIETZ

Frances Crowley Lietz, member of a pioneer Marin County family, died yesterday in a Calistoga hospital after a brief illness. She was 77.

Mrs. Lietz was born in Nicasio, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Miller. Her grandfather, James Miller, settled in the Las Gallinas Valley in 1845, and became a friend of San Rafael pioneer Don Timoteo Murphy.

The three-story mansion, Miller Hall, became a showplace in what is now Marinwood, and James Miller donated the land on which the historic Dixie schoolhouse originally stood.

Mrs. Lietz's late uncle William J. Miller built another showplace mansion at Fifth Avenue and B Street, San Rafael, that later served as the Elks Lodge before it was replaced by the Bank of Marin.

Mrs. Lietz attended San Francisco Normal College, and then taught in the schoolhouse her father had helped build. In 1922, she married Byron Coit, who died in 1941. She later married Adolph Lietz of San Rafael, who died in 1957.

Mrs. Lietz moved to St. Helena in 1970, and to Calistoga last September.

She is survived by one son, Charles Coit of Calistoga and four grandchildren.

She was a member of St. Raphael Catholic Church and of the altar guild in San Rafael.

A graveside service will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow in Holy Cross Cemetery, St. Helena. The Morrison Funeral Chapel of St. Helena is in charge of arrangements.

The family prefers memorial donations to the St. Helena Catholic Church.

LOUISE BEYHAN

Louise B. Beyhan, mother of Ann DeMartini of Tiburon, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital following a two-month illness. She was 83.

A native of New York, Mrs. Beyhan had been visting her daughter here for about one year.

She was a member of senior citizens groups in Mill Valley, San Francisco, Atlanta, Ga., and Baltimore, Md. She had maintained continuous memberships in all the clubs for the past 20 years.

In addition to Mrs. DeMartini, she is survived by a son, Samuel Beyhan of Atlanta, Ga. She also leaves four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral and burial will be Saturday in Albion, N.Y.

Two Youths Arrested In Burglary

Two Marin youths were arrested yesterday in connection with the Sunday burglary of $678 worth of goods from a Tiburon antique store, Tiburon police said today.

Booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of burglary were Thomas Joseph Tully, 19, of 15 Bridge Road, Larkspur, and Todd Ashley Beeson, 20, of 99 West Shore Road, Belvedere.

Both posted $1,000 bail and were to appear Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Tiburon police said officers were called to the Pandemonium Store, an antique shop on Paradise Drive, at 11:52 p.m. Sunday by a night watchman.

As they drove up, police said, one of two trucks parked near the store drove away. The other truck, which apparently had stalled, was found to contain two antique phonographs and two wine casks from the store, officers said. The truck was registered to Beeson.

Officers said they stopped the other truck, driven by Tully, later that night, but made no arrest at the time.

After investigating, however, warrants were issued for both youths and Marin sheriff's deputies, acting on a tip, found them in Tully's truck in Bolinas at 9 p.m. yesterday and arrested them.

Still missing in the burglary, police said, are three knives, a belt and a purse with a total value of $133.

FERRY

it will not consider the bottleneck until fiscal 1978-79.

Fleckles said he feared "we'll have a smashing success with only a two-lane road, and we'll have one helluva mess." He added that if the bridge district would lend the city $150,000 interest free to improve access to the terminal he would "shut up right now." He got no response.

Bathurst, estimating the cost of widening the railroad underpass at up to $250,000, said he expected the Northwestern Pacific Railroad to indicate within three to four months whether it will abandon the line south of San Rafael. The cost of eliminating the bottleneck would be cut if the line were abandoned, he said.

The district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, warned against pressuring the railroad to abandon the line before the district acquires other lines already abandoned. The district hopes to use the lines for rapid transit.

A spokesman for the state Department of Fish and Game, L. Frank Goodson, cautioned that marshland around the terminal is "an extremely valuable fish and wildlife area, and we are very concerned about any development proposed in this area."

He denied Braccia's statement that other consultants doing the environmental impact study already had discussed the terminal with the Department of Fish and Game. "I know of no contact," Goodson said.

District officials said that the environmental impact study being made of the terminal will be completed in June.

necessary," according to the counter proposal.

The counter proposal is in substantial agreement with the county proposal on other matters. Both put a $6 million ceiling on redevelopment bonds and a seven-year limitation on their use. Also acceptable to both sides is a complicated formula for repaying taxing agencies whose assessed valuation will be frozen so that any increase can serve to finance redevelopment bonds.

Included with the city's counter proposal is a list of 14 projects costing an estimated $4,625,000 that are now under consideration as redevelopment improvements. A $2.3 million "development assistance fund" is also proposed "to acquire privately owned parcels for assemblage purposes as well as to acquire parcels individually for future private development," according to the document.

The city, which has agreed to limit bond sales to $6 million, has proposed a $6.925 million program to allow itself flexibility in deciding which projects will actually proceed, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

Deleted from the project list are three improvements previously mentioned by the city but opposed by the county — expansion of Albert Park, a city hall addition and creation of a central city firehouse.

Projects proposed by the city are a Fourth Street demonstration project near A and Court streets, $300,000; parking, sidewalk and undergrounding improvements on Third and Second Streets from Grand Avenue to East Street, $350,000; widening Fourth Street from G to Second streets and widening G Street from Fourth to Second Streets, $300,000; right-of-way acquisition for connection of Lindaro Street to Lootens Place, $100,000; right-of-way acquisition from Fourth Street to the parking lot at Third Street and Lootens Place, $200,000; improvement of off-street parking on Third Street including parking between A and B streets, $500,000, and parking facilities near Fifth Street and Lootens Place, $200,000.

Also shoreline park, $600,000; canal improvements, $300,000; undergrounding on Francisco Boulevard, $675,000; intersection improvements at Bellam Boulevard and Jacoby Street and widening of Jacoby Street between Bellam Boulevard and Simms Street, $200,000; recreation center near Albert Field, $350,000; construction of new road from A Street to Bellam Boulevard, $250,000, and providing another connection with and across Highway 17 between Bellam Boulevard and Point San Quentin, $300,000.

The proposed projects may or may not be implemented, according to the counter proposal, since they may be "altered, modified or deleted from the redevelopment program," which may be expanded to include projects not mentioned.

"This counter proposal is a restatement of policy of what we intend to do," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini, who predicted it will be acceptable to the county. Redevelopment boosters, however, have made similar claims for past proposals which proved unacceptable.

It was uncertain today whether or not county supervisors will consider the counter proposal on Tuesday.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Alice Gerstle Levison

Memorial service for Alice Gerstle Levison, 99-year-old member of the family which gave Gerstle Park to the city of San Rafael, will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Temple Emanu-El in San Francisco.

Mrs. Levison died Tuesday, 16 days short of her 100th birthday, at the San Francisco home where she had lived for 71 years.

She was the last surviving child of Lewis and Hannah Gerstle, who reared their seven children in San Francisco and at Violet Terrace, as their summer estate in San Rafael was known.

Violet Terrace was purchased by the Gerstles in 1881, a house on land once part of the Mexican land grant, Rancho Punta de Quentin. In memory of the happy times at the estate, the Gerstles' children gave the property as a memorial to their mother when she died in 1930.

When Mr. and Mrs. Levison celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, instead of receiving a present, Mrs. Levison gave playground equipment to the park.

Levison, executive of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. and founder and president of both the San Francisco Symphony and San Francisco Opera Association, died in 1947 at the age of 86.

Still witty and bright, last year Mrs. Levison held court for hundreds of relatives and friends when she observed her 99th birthday.

Mrs. Levison served as president of the Mount Zion Hospital auxiliary for many years and also as president of the now defunct Emanu-El Residence Club.

When she was well over 90, she was asked by the University of California's Bancroft Library to tape her memoirs as part of the library's history collection. She is said to have been very frank about early San Francisco residents.

Mrs. Levison is survived by four sons, John, Robert and George Levison and Charles Lane; eight grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

The family prefers contributions to the Alice Gerstle Levison Memorial Fund for Gerstle Park, in care of the mayor's office, city hall, San Rafael.

FRANCES LIETZ

Frances Crowley Lietz, member of a pioneer Marin County family, died yesterday in a Calistoga hospital after a brief illness. She was 77.

Mrs. Lietz was born in Nicasio, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Miller. Her grandfather, James Miller, settled in the Las Gallinas Valley in 1845, and became a friend of San Rafael pioneer Don Timoteo Murphy.

The three-story mansion, Miller Hall, became a showplace in what is now Marinwood, and James Miller donated the land on which the historic Dixie schoolhouse originally stood.

Mrs. Lietz's late uncle William J. Miller built another showplace mansion at Fifth Avenue and B Street, San Rafael, that later served as the Elks Lodge before it was replaced by the Bank of Marin.

Mrs. Lietz attended San Francisco Normal College, and then taught in the schoolhouse her father had helped build. In 1922, she married Byron Coit, who died in 1941. She later married Adolph Lietz of San Rafael, who died in 1957.

Mrs. Lietz moved to St. Helena in 1970, and to Calistoga last September.

She is survived by one son, Charles Coit of Calistoga and four grandchildren.

She was a member of St. Raphael Catholic Church and of the altar guild in San Rafael.

A graveside service will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow in Holy Cross Cemetery, St. Helena. The Morrison Funeral Chapel of St. Helena is in charge of arrangements.

The family prefers memorial donations to the St. Helena Catholic Church.

LOUISE BEYHAN

Louise B. Beyhan, mother of Ann DeMartini of Tiburon, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital following a two-month illness. She was 83.

A native of New York, Mrs. Beyhan had been visting her daughter here for about one year.

She was a member of senior citizens groups in Mill Valley, San Francisco, Atlanta, Ga., and Baltimore, Md. She had maintained continuous memberships in all the clubs for the past 20 years.

In addition to Mrs. DeMartini, she is survived by a son, Samuel Beyhan of Atlanta, Ga. She also leaves four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral and burial will be Saturday in Albion, N.Y.

W. E. GOGGINS

Funeral for William E. Goggins of Mill Valley, a retired engineer and father of Mill Valley photographer J. Pat Goggins, will be Saturday in Bismarck, N.D.

Goggins, 63, died Tuesday at a local hospital of a lingering illness aggravated by chronic pneumonia and heavy smoking, according to his son.

He was born in Williston, N.D., and worked for 25 years as an engineer for the Northern Improvement Co. and 20 years for the Montana Highway Department. He retired in 1971 and moved to Marin, living at 475 Throckmorton Avenue, Mill Valley.

Goggins fulfilled a life-long dream last year when he journeyed to Ireland and visited his ancestral home.

His wife, Catherine, died five years ago in North Dakota.

In addition to his son in Mill Valley, Goggins is survived by another son, William Goggins of Green Bay, Wis.

ADA WILLIAMS

Ada K. Williams, a resident of Tiburon for four years, died yesterday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. She was 86.

Mrs. Williams, a housewife, had resided at 2290 Spanish Trail Road.

She is survived by a daughter, Aline W. Kirchhoff of Tiburon.

Private funeral will be held tomorrow at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley. Burial will be at the U.S. Cemetery in Wilmington, N.C.

Defense In Magee Trial Rests Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The defense rested yesterday at Ruchell Magee's murder-kidnaping trial after a month-long effort to show the convict had no choice but to participate in the 1970 Marin Hall of Justice escape attempt that ended in four deaths.

Magee, 33, the "other defendant" in the Angela Davis case, spent two days testifying from the defense table that he did not shoot Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley.

He also told the jury that he joined the escape attempt because it was his only chance for freedom after years of unavailing legal efforts to reverse what he thought was an unjust 1963 robbery-kidnaping conviction.

His attorneys, including former Attorney Gen. Ramsey Clark, called psychiatric witnesses who said Magee's long years in prison and his belief that the system offered no hope had left him with a "diminished capacity" to understand his acts on Aug. 7, 1970.

Magee, who was testifying in Haley's court, joined the two other convicts and an accomplice who took the judge and four other persons as hostages in an effort to escape. Haley and the other three kidnapers were killed in a gun battle outside the court.

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris began calling rebuttal witnesses after the defense rested and Superior Court Judge Morton R. Colvin denied a defense motion for a mistrial on grounds of suppressed evidence.

Defense attorney Robert D. Carrow of Novato contended that a piece of adhesive tape used to bound a sawed-off shotgun to Haley's neck was suppressed by the prosecution until this week. Harris said it was lost for two years and made available when it was found.

Gary W. Thomas, a municipal judge who was crippled in the shoot-out, testified that Magee held the shotgun and it was no longer taped to Haley's neck when the judge was killed. Magee said the gun was still taped to the judge's neck when he was slain.

A Marin County criminalist,. called by the defense, said he couldn't tell if the tape had been cut, pulled apart by hand, or torn apart by the weapon's recoil.

Kentfield Youth Given Five Weekends In Jail

An 18-year-old Kentfield youth, who thought jail would be "the worst possible thing to hand down to me," has been ordered to serve five weekends in jail for battery on a sheriff's deputy hospitalized after a scuffle with the youth.

Despite Mak H. Wood's claim that jail time would make him hate authority, Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court ordered him to jail, fined him $302, ordered him to undergo therapy for a drinking problem and suspended his driver's license for 90 days.

Menary had promised the youth no more than 15 days in jail when he pleaded no contest last month to the battery charge and guilty to a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving. The district attorney recommended six months in jail.

Wood was arrested Nov. 19 by Larkspur police at College and Magnolia Avenues in Kentfield after the sheriff's deputy was kicked in the chest and began suffering spasms. He was taken to Marin General Hospital for treatment while Wood was transported to jail.

The deputy had gone to the area on a complaint that a car was spinning its wheels on the grass at Adaline E. Kent Elementary School. Wood's car was seen crossing the center line on College Avenue and stopped, the deputy said.

Defense In Magee Trial Rests Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The defense rested yesterday at Ruchell Magee's murder-kidnaping trial after a month-long effort to show the convict had no choice but to participate in the 1970 Marin Hall of Justice escape attempt that ended in four deaths.

Magee, 33, the "other defendant" in the Angela Davis case, spent two days testifying from the defense table that he did not shoot Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley.

He also told the jury that he joined the escape attempt because it was his only chance for freedom after years of unavailing legal efforts to reverse what he thought was an unjust 1963 robbery-kidnaping conviction.

His attorneys, including former Attorney Gen. Ramsey Clark, called psychiatric witnesses who said Magee's long years in prison and his belief that the system offered no hope had left him with a "diminished capacity" to understand his acts on Aug. 7, 1970.

Magee, who was testifying in Haley's court, joined the two other convicts and an accomplice who took the judge and four other persons as hostages in an effort to escape. Haley and the other three kidnapers were killed in a gun battle outside the court.

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris began calling rebuttal witnesses after the defense rested and Superior Court Judge Morton R. Colvin denied a defense motion for a mistrial on grounds of suppressed evidence.

Defense attorney Robert D. Carrow of Novato contended that a piece of adhesive tape used to bound a sawed-off shotgun to Haley's neck was suppressed by the prosecution until this week. Harris said it was lost for two years and made available when it was found.

Gary W. Thomas, a municipal judge who was crippled in the shoot-out, testified that Magee held the shotgun and it was no longer taped to Haley's neck when the judge was killed. Magee said the gun was still taped to the judge's neck when he was slain.

A Marin County criminalist,. called by the defense, said he couldn't tell if the tape had been cut, pulled apart by hand, or torn apart by the weapon's recoil.

Kentfield Youth Given Five Weekends In Jail

An 18-year-old Kentfield youth, who thought jail would be "the worst possible thing to hand down to me," has been ordered to serve five weekends in jail for battery on a sheriff's deputy hospitalized after a scuffle with the youth.

Despite Mak H. Wood's claim that jail time would make him hate authority, Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court ordered him to jail, fined him $302, ordered him to undergo therapy for a drinking problem and suspended his driver's license for 90 days.

Menary had promised the youth no more than 15 days in jail when he pleaded no contest last month to the battery charge and guilty to a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving. The district attorney recommended six months in jail.

Wood was arrested Nov. 19 by Larkspur police at College and Magnolia Avenues in Kentfield after the sheriff's deputy was kicked in the chest and began suffering spasms. He was taken to Marin General Hospital for treatment while Wood was transported to jail.

The deputy had gone to the area on a complaint that a car was spinning its wheels on the grass at Adaline E. Kent Elementary School. Wood's car was seen crossing the center line on College Avenue and stopped, the deputy said.

Calaveras County Dog Trespassing Case Ends

SAN ANDREAS, Calif. (UPI) — A guilty plea on a reduced charge brings the celebrated Calaveras County "dog trespassing" case to an end today.

Roger Herd, owner of the wayward Labrador retriever Maggie, whose love of a local judge's yard started it all, has bargained for a reduction in charges and has agreed to plead guilty to a legal "infraction," his attorney said yesterday.

Herd was charged with two misdemeanors, carrying a possible jail sentence, after Maggie was caught "trespassing" in Justice Court Judge Howard Blewett's yard.

The fact that Blewett's yard was involved and he went ahead and presided at a preliminary hearing for Herd brought on the editorial wrath of a local newspaper publisher, charging conflict of interest.

(The publisher is Oscar A. Mellin, father of Lois Truett of Novato, whose husband, Harold, is Marin County Public defender.)

The strongly-worded editorial, in turn, enraged the local district attorney and resulted with the publisher facing contempt of court proceedings. The contempt was dismissed by another judge, but has spurred at least one state legislator to introduce a bill insuring that it doesn't happen again.

Now, according to attorney George Huberty, the district attorney has agreed to drop one of the misdemeanor charges against Herd and reduce the other to a mere "infraction," with a maximum penalty of a $50 fine.

$2 Million Suit Against Playboy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actress Joey Heatherton sued Playboy for $2 million Wednesday, charging the magazine harmed her "good name and reputation" by printing a photo of her with her breasts exposed.

Miss Heatherton said she had a written agreement with the producers of the movie "Bluebeard," from which the photo was taken, giving her exclusive rights to the picture. She said she never gave Playboy permission to print it.

Calaveras County Dog Trespassing Case Ends

SAN ANDREAS, Calif. (UPI) — A guilty plea on a reduced charge brings the celebrated Calaveras County "dog trespassing" case to an end today.

Roger Herd, owner of the wayward Labrador retriever Maggie, whose love of a local judge's yard started it all, has bargained for a reduction in charges and has agreed to plead guilty to a legal "infraction," his attorney said yesterday.

Herd was charged with two misdemeanors, carrying a possible jail sentence, after Maggie was caught "trespassing" in Justice Court Judge Howard Blewett's yard.

The fact that Blewett's yard was involved and he went ahead and presided at a preliminary hearing for Herd brought on the editorial wrath of a local newspaper publisher, charging conflict of interest.

(The publisher is Oscar A. Mellin, father of Lois Truett of Novato, whose husband, Harold, is Marin County Public defender.)

The strongly-worded editorial, in turn, enraged the local district attorney and resulted with the publisher facing contempt of court proceedings. The contempt was dismissed by another judge, but has spurred at least one state legislator to introduce a bill insuring that it doesn't happen again.

Now, according to attorney George Huberty, the district attorney has agreed to drop one of the misdemeanor charges against Herd and reduce the other to a mere "infraction," with a maximum penalty of a $50 fine.

English At Drake High Is Defended

By DAVID DIETZ

The English Department at Sir Francis Drake High School rose to its own defense last night amid a flap over a test that some parents considered obscene and others found either vulgar or a poor English sample.

Two representatives of the department, joined by Dr. Thomas M. Lorch, educational leader at the San Anselmo school, engaged in a reasoned and polite exchange with another large turnout of parents.

During three hours of discussion at the school's English Resources Center, the evolution, substance and aims of the English curriculum were described, parents alternately questioned and defended the program and Lorch indicated more meetings of its type are to come.

The session arose from a meeting of the Tamalpais High School District board March 5 at which Drake's English curriculum became as much a focus of attention as a controversial test administered to freshmen English students last month.

The test called upon students to examine the attitudes of a writer describing sexual activities at a party, and to assess the sense of events as part of an educational program that school officials say is intended to boost a student's control of language.

As at the March 5 meeting, the direction and focus of the English curriculum drew more comment last night than the examination.

Katherine M. Blickhahn, English Department chairman, and Albert L. Lavin, teacher and former supervisor of English for the Tam District, said the curriculum, based on what they described as a "discourse-centered" program, is aimed at giving students more than a conventional review of literature.

Miss Blickhahn called in a "process of discovery" of all forms of writing "to make language real rather than artificial." A "give and take in the classroom," she said, is the "purpose of language."

"We are surrounded with messy and imprecise language," she said, "and we want students to come to grips with that."

Both Miss Blickhahn and Lavin claimed good results from the program, despite parents' remarks of a faculty indifference to basic grammar and spelling.

While Miss Blickhahn denied the department ignored such conventions, she said correction of grammar and spelling on student work should not be done "at the expense of more important things.

"The purpose of writing is to say something to somebody," she remarked. If a paper is covered with grammar and spelling corrections, she added, this tends to discourage students.

Overall, the meeting produced a clash of educational values between speakers who opted for traditional teaching versus those who saw substantial benefit from the curriculum currently being offered. Miss Blickhahn identified a gap in understanding of new methods against the old.

"You tell me other children are learning by your methods, but mine are not," said a parent. "What I want to know is how you can help me" to help them.

Other parents drew applause when they mentioned new-found motivation in speaking and writing on the part of their young people. And one speaker said that perhaps the shortcomings in grammar and spelling on the part of some students should be laid at the door of the grammar schools, and not the high schools.

Still others decried a lack of parental interest in a child's education until controversy erupts.

Lavin said in response to some concerns that the faculty could "do a bit more for students to make them test-wise."

Boy Is Injured As Bike, Car Hit

Mark Kenneth Patton 9, suffered cuts and bruises of face, arms and legs in a car-bicycle collision Tuesday at the Roger Wilco parking lot, 2045 Novato Boulevard, city police reported yesterday.

Officers said a bicycle driven by Mark and a car driven by Shirley Mae Sexton, 40, of 42 Santa Maria Drive, Novato, collided at 6:15 p.m. and the boy slid beneath the car.

He was reported in satisfactory condition today at Novato General Hospital.

Marin City Pair Denies Guilt On Burglary Charge

Two Marin City youths said to have broken into an occupied home in Homestead Valley Friday pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony burglary charge.

Calvin Andrew Eskue, 19, and James Edward Morgan, 18, were arrested fleeing from the home of John M. Tate at 9 Castle Rock Drive by sheriff's deputies called by a babysitter.

Patricia M. O'Callaghan, 19, the sitter, told deputies she heard talking outside the house about 12:15 a.m., then a crash as the front door crashed in.

She said she leard laughter when she asked if anyone was there. Deputies said they saw the two flee when they began checking cars on Sequoia Valley Road.

Prints were found on stereo equipment stacked outside the residence, deputies said.

Prison Gets Claim In Convict's Death

Relatives of a convict who died last month in San Quentin Prison yesterday handed a $325,000 claim for wrongful death to prison authorities.

Thomas A. Horn, 26, of Los Angeles, was found dead in an adjustment center cell on Feb. 6, the day after he was transferred to San Quentin from the California Medical Facility at Vacaville because he feared for his life.

At Vacaville, Horn had been stabbed 21 times with a fork-like instrument on Jan. 22. Prison authorities said Horn apparently had recovered from the wounds, but an autopsy revealed he died of internal bleeding stemming from the January attack.

Lee DeBord, San Quentin information officer, said the claim submitted by Horn's mother, Elizabeth Horn, and sister, Trudy Johnston, would be forwarded to the state prison board in Sacramento.

At a press conference outside the prison gate, the women and their attorney charged that Horn had been denied placement in the San Quentin hospital after the transfer. They said he was placed in a bare "strip cell" in the adjustment center after his moustache was forcibly shaved off by guards.

Prison officials said Horn was placed in the adjustment center cell because he had threatened to tear up a regular cell.

Horn, serving sentences of six months to 15 years for burglary and grand theft, had been in a preparole program at Vacaville. His stabbing was blamed on a dispute with two members of the racist Aryan Brotherhood, DeBord reported. Horn reportedly had dropped out of the group.

Bay Sanctuary Reopening Set

The Richardson Bay waterfowl sanctuary will be reopened to public use March 31, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Elvis J. Stahr, president of the National Audubon Society, said most of the birds using the area in winter have departed for northern breeding grounds.

The sanctuary, traditionally closed during the winter months, is operated by the society.

Hearing Set On Stolen Car Charge

A preliminary hearing on March 27 was set yesterday for 22-year-old Mark Allen Warner of San Anselmo, who is charged with stealing a car in San Anselmo.

English At Drake High Is Defended

By DAVID DIETZ

The English Department at Sir Francis Drake High School rose to its own defense last night amid a flap over a test that some parents considered obscene and others found either vulgar or a poor English sample.

Two representatives of the department, joined by Dr. Thomas M. Lorch, educational leader at the San Anselmo school, engaged in a reasoned and polite exchange with another large turnout of parents.

During three hours of discussion at the school's English Resources Center, the evolution, substance and aims of the English curriculum were described, parents alternately questioned and defended the program and Lorch indicated more meetings of its type are to come.

The session arose from a meeting of the Tamalpais High School District board March 5 at which Drake's English curriculum became as much a focus of attention as a controversial test administered to freshmen English students last month.

The test called upon students to examine the attitudes of a writer describing sexual activities at a party, and to assess the sense of events as part of an educational program that school officials say is intended to boost a student's control of language.

As at the March 5 meeting, the direction and focus of the English curriculum drew more comment last night than the examination.

Katherine M. Blickhahn, English Department chairman, and Albert L. Lavin, teacher and former supervisor of English for the Tam District, said the curriculum, based on what they described as a "discourse-centered" program, is aimed at giving students more than a conventional review of literature.

Miss Blickhahn called in a "process of discovery" of all forms of writing "to make language real rather than artificial." A "give and take in the classroom," she said, is the "purpose of language."

"We are surrounded with messy and imprecise language," she said, "and we want students to come to grips with that."

Both Miss Blickhahn and Lavin claimed good results from the program, despite parents' remarks of a faculty indifference to basic grammar and spelling.

While Miss Blickhahn denied the department ignored such conventions, she said correction of grammar and spelling on student work should not be done "at the expense of more important things.

"The purpose of writing is to say something to somebody," she remarked. If a paper is covered with grammar and spelling corrections, she added, this tends to discourage students.

Overall, the meeting produced a clash of educational values between speakers who opted for traditional teaching versus those who saw substantial benefit from the curriculum currently being offered. Miss Blickhahn identified a gap in understanding of new methods against the old.

"You tell me other children are learning by your methods, but mine are not," said a parent. "What I want to know is how you can help me" to help them.

Other parents drew applause when they mentioned new-found motivation in speaking and writing on the part of their young people. And one speaker said that perhaps the shortcomings in grammar and spelling on the part of some students should be laid at the door of the grammar schools, and not the high schools.

Still others decried a lack of parental interest in a child's education until controversy erupts.

Lavin said in response to some concerns that the faculty could "do a bit more for students to make them test-wise."

Boy Is Injured As Bike, Car Hit

Mark Kenneth Patton 9, suffered cuts and bruises of face, arms and legs in a car-bicycle collision Tuesday at the Roger Wilco parking lot, 2045 Novato Boulevard, city police reported yesterday.

Officers said a bicycle driven by Mark and a car driven by Shirley Mae Sexton, 40, of 42 Santa Maria Drive, Novato, collided at 6:15 p.m. and the boy slid beneath the car.

He was reported in satisfactory condition today at Novato General Hospital.

Marin City Pair Denies Guilt On Burglary Charge

Two Marin City youths said to have broken into an occupied home in Homestead Valley Friday pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony burglary charge.

Calvin Andrew Eskue, 19, and James Edward Morgan, 18, were arrested fleeing from the home of John M. Tate at 9 Castle Rock Drive by sheriff's deputies called by a babysitter.

Patricia M. O'Callaghan, 19, the sitter, told deputies she heard talking outside the house about 12:15 a.m., then a crash as the front door crashed in.

She said she leard laughter when she asked if anyone was there. Deputies said they saw the two flee when they began checking cars on Sequoia Valley Road.

Prints were found on stereo equipment stacked outside the residence, deputies said.

Prison Gets Claim In Convict's Death

Relatives of a convict who died last month in San Quentin Prison yesterday handed a $325,000 claim for wrongful death to prison authorities.

Thomas A. Horn, 26, of Los Angeles, was found dead in an adjustment center cell on Feb. 6, the day after he was transferred to San Quentin from the California Medical Facility at Vacaville because he feared for his life.

At Vacaville, Horn had been stabbed 21 times with a fork-like instrument on Jan. 22. Prison authorities said Horn apparently had recovered from the wounds, but an autopsy revealed he died of internal bleeding stemming from the January attack.

Lee DeBord, San Quentin information officer, said the claim submitted by Horn's mother, Elizabeth Horn, and sister, Trudy Johnston, would be forwarded to the state prison board in Sacramento.

At a press conference outside the prison gate, the women and their attorney charged that Horn had been denied placement in the San Quentin hospital after the transfer. They said he was placed in a bare "strip cell" in the adjustment center after his moustache was forcibly shaved off by guards.

Prison officials said Horn was placed in the adjustment center cell because he had threatened to tear up a regular cell.

Horn, serving sentences of six months to 15 years for burglary and grand theft, had been in a preparole program at Vacaville. His stabbing was blamed on a dispute with two members of the racist Aryan Brotherhood, DeBord reported. Horn reportedly had dropped out of the group.

Bay Sanctuary Reopening Set

The Richardson Bay waterfowl sanctuary will be reopened to public use March 31, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Elvis J. Stahr, president of the National Audubon Society, said most of the birds using the area in winter have departed for northern breeding grounds.

The sanctuary, traditionally closed during the winter months, is operated by the society.

Hearing Set On Stolen Car Charge

A preliminary hearing on March 27 was set yesterday for 22-year-old Mark Allen Warner of San Anselmo, who is charged with stealing a car in San Anselmo.

Police arrested him March 7 on suspicion of taking a car parked March 4 on Los Angeles Boulevard.

Powers Of Coast Control Unit Said Not Fearsome

By MARY LEYDECKER

MENLO PARK — "More fear than fact" has gone into speculation about powers of the new California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission, according to Melvin B. Lane, chairman of the infant agency.

Lane, who headed the Bay Conservation and Development Commission for more than seven years, expressed his thoughts about his new post in an interview in his office at Sunset Magazine and Books, where he is in charge of the book operation.

"The objective (of the commission created by the passage of Proposition 20 last Fall) is not to destroy our economic system," Lane said.

Further, he does not view the commission's role in charting the future of California's coastline as finding a "balance or "compromise between conservation and development."

Rather, Lane sees the commission's job over the next three years as drawing up a plan which will note uses for the coast "which will provide the greatest public benefits" and then setting limits.

He explained the kind of limits he meant by giving an example from another field of public concern.

"There are some kinds of fish that you can catch a certain number of each year, and they'll be back in greater numbers the next year . . . but you have to set a limit. Otherwise, each fisherman will set his own limit, and especially if there are 19 other fisherman, and he doesn't know what they're doing," the supply will be exhausted.

"Hopefully, we'll have as much freedom as possible within limits," Lane said about controls over the coastline.

There is no money now to buy land for public use, but Lane is strongly opposed to any kind of inverse condemnation where property is taken by completely restricting its use.

He foresees, though, that beaches designated in the plan as ideal for public use will be purchased by state, local or conservation agencies.

This is the way BCDC was most effective, Lane said.

"We didn't purchase a single piece of land, but we pointed the way for other groups to purchase property for parks," he said.

As for private rights versus those of the public, Lane recognizes that circumstances have changed in recent years.

"Fifty years ago we assumed the owner had all the rights . . . now he has the burden of proof to show why he has the right to cut down a tree," he said.

Lane said he does not think it is unfair to ask a private owner, for example, to provide a public access to a beach, any more than to require a developer to provide property for a school or open space.

As for fears about undue authority of the commission, which will have control of all coastal property 1,000 feet back from the mean high tide mark, Lane thinks they're mostly unfounded.

"If an area, for example is zoned for warehouses, and most of the lots are filled with warehouses, we're not going to try to stop a guy who wants to build another one on an empty lot," he explained.

In order to cut down resistance to the commission's work, Lane said each arduous step toward producing a plan for the coast will be accompanied by public hearings and invitations to property owners, conservationists and others to attend.

During the three years alloted to complete the plan, Lane did predict that some developments will be held up. "You can't debate the use of the land, if some guy's building a high-rise on it," he said.

Concerning the makeup of the statewide commission, which he heads, and the subordinate regional commissions, Lane described the personnel as of "very high caliber."

Reports that some of the members in various areas are "developer oriented" don't bother Lane, because he believes the commissions "generally reflect the sentiments of the public" and that various viewpoints should be represented.

MELVIN B. LANE
Benefits, limits

As for the big job of setting forth "the best uses of the coast for the public," Lane believes a plan, like the one the BCDC prepared for San Francisco Bay, can be prepared which will include various kinds of uses, including commercial and parks.

Nor does he believe the commission has come into existence too late to be effective. "They're further down the line than we are, certainly, (in development in Southern California), but even in the south there are still miles and miles of good beaches," both there and in the north.

Pollution Linked To Auto Accidents

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Traffic accidents occur more frequently in Los Angeles during periods of thick smog and high carbon monoxide levels, a state Public Health Department study showed Wednesday.

Norman Perkins, who conducted the analysis, said the results reaffirm research findings showing a "strong statistical link" between accidents and air pollutants produced by motor vehicles.

Coast Control Chief Sees Beaches Saved

The passage of Proposition 20 last fall, which created six regional and one statewide coastal commission, provided the only means to protect California's coastline, the new executive director of the state commission said last night.

Joseph E. Bodovitz, formerly executive director for the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, likened the new body for which he works to the BCDC, in a speech to the Marin Conservation League's annual dinner at Dominic's Restaurant.

Like that commission, he said, the new California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission is charged with drawing up a plan for the coast, as the BCDC did for San Francisco Bay.

In the meantime a permit system to restrict development pending the plan is not "the lawyers' full employment act of 1972," Bodovitz said jokingly.

Although a number of law suits already has been filed, mainly seeking exemption from such permits, Bodovitz predicted that the commissions can gain time to save for public use miles of beaches, including many areas in Southern California.

He said one of the "toughest issues" facing the commissions is the energy crisis, with location of power plants, offshore oil drilling and ports for giant tankers being matters likely to cause controversy.

He urged conservationists to keep the coastal commissions' work from becoming "a dull and uninteresting exercise."

Also speaking at the dinner was Richard W. Wilson, member of the statewide commission, who urged a return to family farms and decried a modern "society ruled by appetite."

MIAMI (UPI) — American Communist leader Angela Davis left Havana en route back to the United States Tuesday night after a two-month visit to Cuba, Radio Havana reported Wednesday.

Powers Of Coast Control Unit Said Not Fearsome

By MARY LEYDECKER

MENLO PARK — "More fear than fact" has gone into speculation about powers of the new California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission, according to Melvin B. Lane, chairman of the infant agency.

Lane, who headed the Bay Conservation and Development Commission for more than seven years, expressed his thoughts about his new post in an interview in his office at Sunset Magazine and Books, where he is in charge of the book operation.

"The objective (of the commission created by the passage of Proposition 20 last Fall) is not to destroy our economic system," Lane said.

Further, he does not view the commission's role in charting the future of California's coastline as finding a "balance or "compromise between conservation and development."

Rather, Lane sees the commission's job over the next three years as drawing up a plan which will note uses for the coast "which will provide the greatest public benefits" and then setting limits.

He explained the kind of limits he meant by giving an example from another field of public concern.

"There are some kinds of fish that you can catch a certain number of each year, and they'll be back in greater numbers the next year . . . but you have to set a limit. Otherwise, each fisherman will set his own limit, and especially if there are 19 other fisherman, and he doesn't know what they're doing," the supply will be exhausted.

"Hopefully, we'll have as much freedom as possible within limits," Lane said about controls over the coastline.

There is no money now to buy land for public use, but Lane is strongly opposed to any kind of inverse condemnation where property is taken by completely restricting its use.

He foresees, though, that beaches designated in the plan as ideal for public use will be purchased by state, local or conservation agencies.

This is the way BCDC was most effective, Lane said.

"We didn't purchase a single piece of land, but we pointed the way for other groups to purchase property for parks," he said.

As for private rights versus those of the public, Lane recognizes that circumstances have changed in recent years.

"Fifty years ago we assumed the owner had all the rights . . . now he has the burden of proof to show why he has the right to cut down a tree," he said.

Lane said he does not think it is unfair to ask a private owner, for example, to provide a public access to a beach, any more than to require a developer to provide property for a school or open space.

As for fears about undue authority of the commission, which will have control of all coastal property 1,000 feet back from the mean high tide mark, Lane thinks they're mostly unfounded.

"If an area, for example is zoned for warehouses, and most of the lots are filled with warehouses, we're not going to try to stop a guy who wants to build another one on an empty lot," he explained.

In order to cut down resistance to the commission's work, Lane said each arduous step toward producing a plan for the coast will be accompanied by public hearings and invitations to property owners, conservationists and others to attend.

During the three years alloted to complete the plan, Lane did predict that some developments will be held up. "You can't debate the use of the land, if some guy's building a highrise on it," he said.

Concerning the makeup of the statewide commission, which he heads, and the subordinate regional commissions, Lane described the personnel as of "very high caliber."

Reports that some of the members in various areas are "developer oriented" don't bother Lane, because he believes the commissions "generally reflect the sentiments of the public" and that various viewpoints should be represented.

As for the big job of setting forth "the best uses of the coast for the public," Lane believes a plan, like the one the BCDC prepared for San Francisco Bay, can be prepared which will include various kinds of uses, including commercial and parks.

Nor does he believe the commission has come into existence too late to be effective. "They're further down the line than we are, certainly, (in development in Southern California), but even in the south there are still miles and miles of good beaches," both there and in the north.

Pollution Linked To Auto Accidents

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Traffic accidents occur more frequently in Los Angeles during periods of thick smog and high carbon monoxide levels, a state Public Health Department study showed Wednesday.

Norman Perkins, who conducted the analysis, said the results reaffirm research findings showing a "strong statistical link" between accidents and air pollutants produced by motor vehicles.

Coast Control Chief Sees Beaches Saved

The passage of Proposition 20 last fall, which created six regional and one statewide coastal commission, provided the only means to protect California's coastline, the new executive director of the state commission said last night.

Joseph E. Bodovitz, formerly executive director for the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, likened the new body for which he works to the BCDC, in a speech to the Marin Conservation League's annual dinner at Dominic's Restaurant.

Like that commission, he said, the new California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission is charged with drawing up a plan for the coast, as the BCDC did for San Francisco Bay.

In the meantime a permit system to restrict development pending the plan is not "the lawyers' full employment act of 1972," Bodovitz said jokingly.

Although a number of law suits already has been filed, mainly seeking exemption from such permits, Bodovitz predicted that the commissions can gain time to save for public use miles of beaches, including many areas in Southern California.

He said one of the "toughest issues" facing the commissions is the energy crisis, with location of power plants, offshore oil drilling and ports for giant tankers being matters likely to cause controversy.

He urged conservationists to keep the coastal commissions' work from becoming "a dull and uninteresting exercise."

Angela Returning

MIAMI (UPI) — American Communist leader Angela Davis left Havana en route back to the United States Tuesday night after a two-month visit to Cuba, Radio Havana reported Wednesday.

Corte Madera Subdivision Denied Pipeline Extension

The controversial Madera del Presidio subdivision in Corte Madera, already beset by legal difficulties, suffered a new setback yesterday when the Marin Municipal Water District board failed to approve a pipeline extension to carry water to the development.

The four-man board — depleted by the resignation of one director — deadlocked 2-2 on the extension request from the project's developer to serve 128 townhouses and apartments in Unit No. 1 of the 528-unit development.

Directors John M. MacPhail Jr. and Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. voted in favor of the extension, while directors Ronald T. Stafford and Jack R. Felson opposed it, a split that has repeatedly manifested itself in issues before the board.

"I think you've just bought yourself a lawsuit," Martinelli told Stafford and Felson when the vote was completed.

Earlier, the district's legal counsel, Robert W. Elliott, had warned he would find it difficult to defend the board in any lawsuit brought by the developer (Cal-West Communities) if the extension were turned down.

"It would be hard to argue against the applicant's contention that he has been discriminated against," Elliott said.

Attorney Leland H. Jordan, representing Cal-West, told the board it would be discriminatory to deny the extension to Madera del Presidio on the basis of a water shortage.

After denying the Madera del Presidio request, the board went on to approve extensions for several other large developments, including the 127-unit Canon Village in Fairfax, 83-unit Sessions Rise apartment complex in San Rafael, the 79-unit Venetia Cove condominium development near the Civic Center and an office unit in Corte Madera.

The vote on all was 2-1, with Stafford voting no on all and Felson abstaining on all.

Dixie Board Looks At Computers

Dean Brown, senior research engineer at the Stanford Research Institute, told the board that portable computers the size of typewriters may be used to teach children a wide range of subjects, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The board listened with interest, Campbell said, as Dean explained how cassette computers relay video questions and answers to children who punch out queries on a typewriter-like console.

"The board made no commitment, but it may be on the horizon," Campbell said, adding one computer rents for about $250 monthly and can serve up to 50 children.

The Dixie School District Board also:

REPORT — Told Campbell to prepare a report on how teachers use minimum days, for a presentation next fall.

FUNDS — Said the district will apply for about $70,000 in state remedial reading and early childhood funds next year.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Said summer school will begin June 25 and end July 27, and authorized a number of positions and salary rates for summer employees.

GIFTS — Accepted a couch and refrigerator for Don Timoteo School and 12 trees for planting at Lucas Valley School.

PERSONNEL — Hired Rubin D. Mansfield as a mechanic at $705 per month.

TEACHING INTERNS — Signed an agreement with Lone Mountain College enabling students Penny Reynolds, Chris Tarantino, and Doris Morgan to teach for brief periods in district classrooms.

CANDIDATES NIGHT — Said a candidates night for district school board hopefuls will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Miller Creek School in Marinwood.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. March 28 in the district office.

Ice Cream Wagon Tour Is Planned

Incumbent councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, seeking election to his first full term on the San Rafael City Council, will tour the San Rafael Canal area in an ice cream wagon Saturday afternoon.

Mulryan will speak and pass out ice cream cones at 1 p.m. at Medway Road and Belvedere Street; 1:45 p.m. at Fairfax and Canal streets and 2:30 p.m. at Bellam Boulevard and Larkspur streets.

Water Panel To Delay On Fluoridation

Faced with a new roadblock on the road to fluoridation, directors of the Marin Municipal Water District board decided yesterday to spend no more money to prepare for fluoridating district water until it has received a permit to do so from the state Board of Public Health.

Fluoridation, approved by voters last November, was to have gone into effect in the district April 1, but the district board agreed that it will have to be postponed because the state health board on Monday declined to grant a permit.

The Marin Municipal Water District Board also:

DISTRICT A — Tentatively agreed that Improvement District A, formed to plan for a consolidated waste treatment system for Southern Marin, should continue operation until it has completed its work. The district was scheduled to be disbanded in June. Directors asked the district's manager, John T. Schulte, to prepare a report on what work still remains to be done and how long it will take, then report back.

ASSISTANCE — Approved a resolution applying for $6,500 in federal disaster funds to replace 300 feet of pipeline destroyed by a slide on Linda Vista Drive in Mill Valley in mid-January.

SEMINAR — Agreed to send Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger to the Environmental Protection Agency's water and wastewater management seminar in Seattle next month.

NEW IMAGE — Tabled a suggestion from Seeger that the district seek consultants to make proposals as to how the district can improve its image by changing the color of its vehicles, developing a logo and new signs and letterheads, among other things.

PUMP — Voted to pay $1,887 to Pacific Pumping Co. for a booster pump.

MEETING — Adjourned to 5 p.m. March 22.

Sewer Cave-In Halts Running Of Cable Cars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Cable cars will not clang their way up and down California Street for at least a week.

An old underground sewer system at California and Front streets caved in Wednesday, putting the line out of commission.

The Department of Public Works said repairs would begin Friday.

The three-foot by five-foot sewer line collapsed after a fire hydrant sprang a leak on Tuesday, dumping about eight million gallons of water into the system.

Tam Group Will Play At Convention

Robert Greenwood, music teacher at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley, will direct the Tamalpais Chamber Orchestra at the state convention of the Music Educators Association April 16 in San Francisco.

The Tamalpais group is one of three state chamber music ensembles selected to perform. The orchestra also will perform at 8 p.m. April 12 at the Mill Valley Methodist Church.

Santa Cruz Slay Suspect Indicted

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Herbert W. Mullin, 25, was indicted Wednesday for the Garden of Eden slayings of four long-haired youths and six other recent murders in Santa Cruz County.

The suspect, a drug-oriented college dropout, was ordered to appear in Superior Court Friday for arraignment. A grand jury heard 17 witnesses and deliberated 10 minutes before handing out the indictment.

Corte Madera Subdivision Denied Pipeline Extension

The controversial Madera del Presidio subdivision in Corte Madera, already beset by legal difficulties, suffered a new setback yesterday when the Marin Municipal Water District board failed to approve a pipeline extension to carry water to the development.

The four-man board — depleted by the resignation of one director — deadlocked 2-2 on the extension request from the project's developer to serve 128 townhouses and apartments in Unit No. 1 of the 528-unit development.

Directors John M. MacPhail Jr. and Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. voted in favor of the extension, while directors Ronald T. Stafford and Jack R. Felson opposed it, a split that has repeatedly manifested itself in issues before the board.

"I think you've just bought yourself a lawsuit," Martinelli told Stafford and Felson when the vote was completed.

Earlier, the district's legal counsel, Robert W. Elliott, had warned he would find it difficult to defend the board in any lawsuit brought by the developer (Cal-West Communities) if the extension were turned down.

"It would be hard to argue against the applicant's contention that he has been discriminated against," Elliott said.

Attorney Leland H. Jordan, representing Cal-West, told the board it would be discriminatory to deny the extension to Madera del Presidio on the basis of a water shortage.

After denying the Madera del Presidio request, the board went on to approve extensions for several other large developments, including the 127-unit Canon Village in Fairfax, 83-unit Sessions Rise apartment complex in San Rafael, the 79-unit Venetia Cove condominium development near the Civic Center and an office unit in Corte Madera.

The vote on all was 2-1, with Stafford voting no on all and Felson abstaining on all.

Dixie Board Looks At Computers

Dean Brown, senior research engineer at the Stanford Research Institute, told the board that portable computers the size of typewriters may be used to teach children a wide range of subjects, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The board listened with interest, Campbell said, as Dean explained how cassette computers relay video questions and answers to children who punch out queries on a typewriter-like console.

"The board made no commitment, but it may be on the horizon," Campbell said, adding one computer rents for about $250 monthly and can serve up to 50 children.

The Dixie School District Board also:

REPORT — Told Campbell to prepare a report on how teachers use minimum days, for a presentation next fall.

FUNDS — Said the district will apply for about $70,000 in state remedial reading and early childhood funds next year.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Said summer school will begin June 25 and end July 27, and authorized a number of positions and salary rates for summer employees.

GIFTS — Accepted a couch and refrigerator for Don Timoteo School and 12 trees for planting at Lucas Valley School.

PERSONNEL — Hired Rubin D. Mansfield as a mechanic at $705 per month.

TEACHING INTERNS — Signed an agreement with Lone Mountain College enabling students Penny Reynolds, Chris Tarantino, and Doris Morgan to teach for brief periods in district classrooms.

CANDIDATES NIGHT — Said a candidates night for district school board hopefuls will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Miller Creek School in Marinwood.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. March 28 in the district office.

Ice Cream Wagon Tour Is Planned

Incumbent councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, seeking election to his first full term on the San Rafael City Council, will tour the San Rafael Canal area in an ice cream wagon Saturday afternoon.

Mulryan will speak and pass out ice cream cones at 1 p.m. at Medway Road and Belvedere Street; 1:45 p.m. at Fairfax and Canal streets and 2:30 p.m. at Bellam Boulevard and Larkspur streets.

Water Panel To Delay On Fluoridation

Faced with a new roadblock on the road to fluoridation, directors of the Marin Municipal Water District board decided yesterday to spend no more money to prepare for fluoridating district water until it has received a permit to do so from the state Board of Public Health.

Fluoridation, approved by voters last November, was to have gone into effect in the district April 1, but the district board agreed that it will have to be postponed because the state health board on Monday declined to grant a permit.

The Marin Municipal Water District Board also:

DISTRICT A — Tentatively agreed that Improvement District A, formed to plan for a consolidated waste treatment system for Southern Marin, should continue operation until it has completed its work. The district was scheduled to be disbanded in June. Directors asked the district's manager, John T. Schulte, to prepare a report on what work still remains to be done and how long it will take, then report back.

ASSISTANCE — Approved a resolution applying for $6,500 in federal disaster funds to replace 300 feet of pipeline destroyed by a slide on Linda Vista Drive in Mill Valley in mid-January.

SEMINAR — Agreed to send Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger to the Environmental Protection Agency's water and wastewater management seminar in Seattle next month.

NEW IMAGE — Tabled a suggestion from Seeger that the district seek consultants to make proposals as to how the district can improve its image by changing the color of its vehicles, developing a logo and new signs and letterheads, among other things.

PUMP — Voted to pay $1,887 to Pacific Pumping Co. for a booster pump.

MEETING — Adjourned to 5 p.m. March 22.

Sewer Cave-In Halts Running Of Cable Cars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Cable cars will not clang their way up and down California Street for at least a week.

An old underground sewer system at California and Front streets caved in Wednesday, putting the line out of commission.

The Department of Public Works said repairs would begin Friday.

The three-foot by five-foot sewer line collapsed after a fire hydrant sprang a leak on Tuesday, dumping about eight million gallons of water into the system.

Tam Group Will Play At Convention

Robert Greenwood, music teacher at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley, will direct the Tamalpais Chamber Orchestra at the state convention of the Music Educators Association April 16 in San Francisco.

The Tamalpais group is one of three state chamber music ensembles selected to perform. The orchestra also will perform at 8 p.m. April 12 at the Mill Valley Methodist Church.

Santa Cruz Slay Suspect Indicted

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Herbert W. Mullin, 25, was indicted Wednesday for the Garden of Eden slayings of four long-haired youths and six other recent murders in Santa Cruz County.

The suspect, a drug-oriented college dropout, was ordered to appear in Superior Court Friday for arraignment. A grand jury heard 17 witnesses and deliberated 10 minutes before handing out the indictment.

Corte Madera Subdivision Denied Pipeline Extension

The controversial Madera del Presidio subdivision in Corte Madera, already beset by legal difficulties, suffered a new setback yesterday when the Marin Municipal Water District board failed to approve a pipeline extension to carry water to the development.

The four-man board — depleted by the resignation of one director — deadlocked 2-2 on the extension request from the project's developer to serve 128 townhouses and apartments in Unit No. 1 of the 528-unit development.

Directors John M. MacPhail Jr. and Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. voted in favor of the extension, while directors Ronald T. Stafford and Jack R. Felson opposed it, a split that has repeatedly manifested itself in issues before the board.

"I think you've just bought yourself a lawsuit," Martinelli told Stafford and Felson when the vote was completed.

Earlier, the district's legal counsel, Robert W. Elliott, had warned he would find it difficult to defend the board in any lawsuit brought by the developer (Cal-West Communities) if the extension were turned down.

"It would be hard to argue against the applicant's contention that he has been discriminated against," Elliott said.

Attorney Leland H. Jordan, representing Cal-West, told the board it would be discriminatory to deny the extension to Madera del Presidio on the basis of a water shortage.

After denying the Madera del Presidio request, the board went on to approve extensions for several other large developments, including the 127-unit Canon Village in Fairfax, 83-unit Sessions Rise apartment complex in San Rafael, the 79-unit Venetia Cove condominium development near the Civic Center and an office unit in Corte Madera.

The vote on all was 2-1, with Stafford voting no on all and Felson abstaining on all.

Dixie Board Looks At Computers

Dean Brown, senior research engineer at the Stanford Research Institute, told the board that portable computers the size of typewriters may be used to teach children a wide range of subjects, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell.

The board listened with interest, Campbell said, as Dean explained how cassette computers relay video questions and answers to children who punch out queries on a typewriter-like console.

"The board made no commitment, but it may be on the horizon," Campbell said, adding one computer rents for about $250 monthly and can serve up to 50 children.

The Dixie School District Board also:

REPORT — Told Campbell to prepare a report on how teachers use minimum days, for a presentation next fall.

FUNDS — Said the district will apply for about $70,000 in state remedial reading and early childhood funds next year.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Said summer school will begin June 25 and end July 27, and authorized a number of positions and salary rates for summer employees.

GIFTS — Accepted a couch and refrigerator for Don Timoteo School and 12 trees for planting at Lucas Valley School.

PERSONNEL — Hired Rubin D. Mansfield as a mechanic at $705 per month.

TEACHING INTERNS — Signed an agreement with Lone Mountain College enabling students Penny Reynolds, Chris Tarantino, and Doris Morgan to teach for brief periods in district classrooms.

CANDIDATES NIGHT — Said a candidates night for district school board hopefuls will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Miller Creek School in Marinwood.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. March 28 in the district office.

Ice Cream Wagon Tour Is Planned

Incumbent councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, seeking election to his first full term on the San Rafael City Council, will tour the San Rafael Canal area in an ice cream wagon Saturday afternoon.

Mulryan will speak and pass out ice cream cones at 1 p.m. at Medway Road and Belvedere Street; 1:45 p.m. at Fairfax and Canal streets and 2:30 p.m. at Bellam Boulevard and Larkspur streets.

Water Panel To Delay On Fluoridation

Faced with a new roadblock on the road to fluoridation, directors of the Marin Municipal Water District board decided yesterday to spend no more money to prepare for fluoridating district water until it has received a permit to do so from the state Board of Public Health.

Fluoridation, approved by voters last November, was to have gone into effect in the district April 1, but the district board agreed that it will have to be postponed because the state health board on Monday declined to grant a permit.

The Marin Municipal Water District Board also:

DISTRICT A — Tentatively agreed that Improvement District A, formed to plan for a consolidated waste treatment system for Southern Marin, should continue operation until it has completed its work. The district was scheduled to be disbanded in June. Directors asked the district's manager, John T. Schulte, to prepare a report on what work still remains to be done and how long it will take, then report back.

ASSISTANCE — Approved a resolution applying for $6,500 in federal disaster funds to replace 300 feet of pipeline destroyed by a slide on Linda Vista Drive in Mill Valley in mid-January.

SEMINAR — Agreed to send Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger to the Environmental Protection Agency's water and wastewater management seminar in Seattle next month.

NEW IMAGE — Tabled a suggestion from Seeger that the district seek consultants to make proposals as to how the district can improve its image by changing the color of its vehicles, developing a logo and new signs and letterheads, among other things.

PUMP — Voted to pay $1,887 to Pacific Pumping Co. for a booster pump.

MEETING — Adjourned to 5 p.m. March 22.

Sewer Cave-In Halts Running Of Cable Cars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Cable cars will not clang their way up and down California Street for at least a week.

An old underground sewer system at California and Front streets caved in Wednesday, putting the line out of commission.

The Department of Public Works said repairs would begin Friday.

The three-foot by five-foot sewer line collapsed after a fire hydrant sprang a leak on Tuesday, dumping about eight million gallons of water into the system.

Tam Group Will Play At Convention

Robert Greenwood, music teacher at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley, will direct the Tamalpais Chamber Orchestra at the state convention of the Music Educators Association April 16 in San Francisco.

The Tamalpais group is one of three state chamber music ensembles selected to perform. The orchestra also will perform at 8 p.m. April 12 at the Mill Valley Methodist Church.

Santa Cruz Slay Suspect Indicted

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Herbert W. Mullin, 25, was indicted Wednesday for the Garden of Eden slayings of four long-haired youths and six other recent murders in Santa Cruz County.

The suspect, a drug-oriented college dropout, was ordered to appear in Superior Court Friday for arraignment. A grand jury heard 17 witnesses and deliberated 10 minutes before handing out the indictment.

Dying, Like Living, Is Expensive

the procedure that Marin directors already used.

After getting a general idea of how elaborate a service the family desires, the funeral director ushers them into the coffin room.

There the family faces an array of coffins that one visitor described as "like an auto showroom." Each open coffin usually contains a card describing the materials in the coffin and its cost.

The least expensive, cloth-covered, flat-topped wooden box costs about $50. Massive bronze or silver-plated, ornamented constructions may cost $3,000 or more.

Marin funeral directors stock only the most frequently chosen models, usually two dozen or so styles including richly finished hardwood coffins and the pastel-painted metal boxes often favored for women's burials.

They can obtain special glass-topped caskets or a huge cast and sculptured bronze model costing more than $20,000.

"The only one I ever saw buried in one of those was a millionaire newspaper publisher — William Randolph Hearst," remarked one funeral director.

"One casket company came out with a line of plastic ones, but they were too cold-looking," he added.

State law requires a sealed coffin if the body is to be transported outside the county. Funeral directors also try to dissuade families from using the cheapest coffin, if the body is to be present at any service.

A coffin is not required by law for either burial or cremation, but funeral directors stress the need for a suitable container in which to move the body.

The coffin rooms also contain racks of burial suits for men and women. In many cases a person who was ill has no remaining garments that fit properly.

"We offer the clothes as a service to the families," one mortician explained. "We don't make any profit on them."

"There is about a 100 per cent markup on caskets," another director said —except for tiny ones for still-born infants, which often are given to the bereaved families at no cost.

The mortuaries' bills — in addition to the coffin — reflect not only the services performed but the high overhead of business, funeral directors stress.

The average mortuary needs three persons on duty 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Upkeep of the chapels, grounds, embalming rooms and other facilities is expensive. So are hearses, ambulances to pick up bodies, and limousines to transport families and flowers.

One director ticked off the costs: "Hearses are about $16,000 and are good for only two or three years; the family car is $10,000, and the flower car, $4,000."

The ambulance "costs $4,200, and the compact car I use for taking the death certificates and papers around to the doctor and the Civic Center cost about $1,900," he said.

Marin mortuaries save the taxpayers the expense of a county morgue, he added, since their facilities are used by the county coroner.

The "direct minimum service," in which the documents are processed, the body is cleaned up and delivered to graveside or the crematorium without any other services is likely to cost from $250 up.

The cost of a cemetery plot, or cremation with inurnment or scattering of the ashes will bring the bare minimum to about $600.

Use of the mortuary's chapel, services in a church, or elaborate funeral processions and graveside rites will add to the expense.

Bay Area families, social workers, union leaders and others reacted to the expenses of dying by forming the Bay Area Funeral Society in 1955. Any family may apply to the society at Post Office Box 264, Berkeley, and pay a $15 membership fee for the entire family.

The society provides pre-planned, minimum services costing about $125 and up, depending on the funeral director chosen. Only one Marin County director cooperates with the society. He refused comment on other directors' criticisms that the society does not provide any less expensive service than nonmembers may obtain.

The society arrangements include a simple coffin and transportation of the body to the cemetery or crematory. Not provided are use of the mortuary chapel, embalming, burial or cremation.

For another $25, the society will arrange scattering ashes at sea.

Public opinion and the writings of Jessica Mitford and others have put morticians under a cloud, accused of taking advantage of the bereaved to reap financial benefit. That hasn't happened in Marin, according to the state Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers, which polices mortuaries and cemeteries.

In Sacramento, Daniel Buck, the board's executive secretary, said "the funeral industry has been highly criticized, but the new laws have gone a long way to correct problems. The laws allow the family to make up their own minds exactly how much they can do. . .We've had little or no trouble in Marin."

(Next — Disposal of the body.)

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, March 15, the 74th day of 1973 with 291 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Mercury. The evening star is Saturn.

Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States, was born March 15, 1767.

On this day in history:

In 1916, Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding 12,000 U.S. troops, was ordered to proceed to Mexico and capture revolutionary leader Pancho Villa.

In 1953, Russian Premier Georghi Malenkov, successor to Josef Stalin, claimed international disputes could be settled by peaceful means.

In 1970, Maj. Gen. Samuel Koster resigned as superintendent of West Point after he had been charged with suppressing information about alleged killing of civilians in Vietnam.

A thought for the day: British poet Alfred Lord Tennyson said, "In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

the procedure that Marin directors already used.

After getting a general idea of how elaborate a service the family desires, the funeral director ushers them into the coffin room.

There the family faces an array of coffins that one visitor described as "like an auto showroom." Each open coffin usually contains a card describing the materials in the coffin and its cost.

The least expensive, cloth-covered, flat-topped wooden box costs about $50. Massive bronze or silver-plated, ornamented constructions may cost $3,000 or more.

Marin funeral directors stock only the most frequently chosen models, usually two dozen or so styles including richly finished hardwood coffins and the pastel-painted metal boxes often favored for women's burials.

They can obtain special glass-topped caskets or a huge cast and sculptured bronze model costing more than $20,000.

"The only one I ever saw buried in one of those was a millionaire newspaper publisher — William Randolph Hearst," remarked one funeral director.

"One casket company came out with a line of plastic ones, but they were too cold-looking," he added.

State law requires a sealed coffin if the body is to be transported outside the county. Funeral directors also try to dissuade families from using the cheapest coffin, if the body is to be present at any service.

A coffin is not required by law for either burial or cremation, but funeral directors stress the need for a suitable container in which to move the body.

The coffin rooms also contain racks of burial suits for men and women. In many cases a person who was ill has no remaining garments that fit properly.

"We offer the clothes as a service to the families," one mortician explained. "We don't make any profit on them."

"There is about a 100 per cent markup on caskets," another director said —except for tiny ones for still-born infants, which often are given to the bereaved families at no cost.

The mortuaries' bills — in addition to the coffin — reflect not only the services performed but the high overhead of business, funeral directors stress.

The average mortuary needs three persons on duty 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Upkeep of the chapels, grounds, embalming rooms and other facilities is expensive. So are hearses, ambulances to pick up bodies, and limousines to transport families and flowers.

One director ticked off the costs: "Hearses are about $16,000 and are good for only two or three years; the family car is $10,000, and the flower car, $4,000."

The ambulance "costs $4,200, and the compact car I use for taking the death certificates and papers around to the doctor and the Civic Center cost about $1,900," he said.

Marin mortuaries save the taxpayers the expense of a county morgue, he added, since their facilities are used by the county coroner.

The "direct minimum service," in which the documents are processed, the body is cleaned up and delivered to graveside or the crematorium without any other services is likely to cost from $250 up.

The cost of a cemetery plot, or cremation with inurnment or scattering of the ashes will bring the bare minimum to about $600.

Use of the mortuary's chapel, services in a church, or elaborate funeral processions and graveside rites will add to the expense.

Bay Area families, social workers, union leaders and others reacted to the expenses of dying by forming the Bay Area Funeral Society in 1955. Any family may apply to the society at Post Office Box 264, Berkeley, and pay a $15 membership fee for the entire family.

The society provides preplanned, minimum services costing about $125 and up, depending on the funeral director chosen. Only one Marin County director cooperates with the society. He refused comment on other directors' criticisms that the society does not provide any less expensive service than nonmembers may obtain.

The society arrangements include a simple coffin and transportation of the body to the cemetery or crematory. Not provided are use of the mortuary chapel, embalming, burial or cremation.

For another $25, the society will arrange scattering ashes at sea.

Public opinion and the writings of Jessica Mitford and others have put morticians under a cloud, accused of taking advantage of the bereaved to reap financial benefit. That hasn't happened in Marin, according to the state Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers, which polices mortuaries and cemeteries.

In Sacramento, Daniel Buck, the board's executive secretary, said "the funeral industry has been highly criticized, but the new laws have gone a long way to correct problems. The laws allow the family to make up their own minds exactly how much they can do. . .We've had little or no trouble in Marin."

Today is Thursday, March 15, the 74th day of 1973 with 291 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Mercury. The evening star is Saturn.

Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States, was born March 15, 1767.

On this day in history:

In 1916, Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding 12,000 U.S. troops, was ordered to proceed to Mexico and capture revolutionary leader Pancho Villa.

In 1953, Russian Premier Georghi Malenkov, successor to Josef Stalin, claimed international disputes could be settled by peaceful means.

In 1970, Maj. Gen. Samuel Koster resigned as superintendent of West Point after he had been charged with suppressing information about alleged killing of civilians in Vietnam.

A thought for the day: British poet Alfred Lord Tennyson said, "In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, March 15, the 74th day of 1973 with 291 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Mercury. The evening star is Saturn.

Andrew Jackson, seventh President of the United States, was born March 15, 1767.

On this day in history:

In 1916, Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding 12,000 U.S. troops, was ordered to proceed to Mexico and capture revolutionary leader Pancho Villa.

In 1953, Russian Premier Georghi Malenkov, successor to Josef Stalin, claimed international disputes could be settled by peaceful means.

In 1970, Maj. Gen. Samuel Koster resigned as superintendent of West Point after he had been charged with suppressing information about alleged killing of civilians in Vietnam.

A thought for the day: British poet Alfred Lord Tennyson said, "In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

Homeowners Censure Marin City Council

The Marin City Homeowners and Improvement Association has denounced the Marin City Council for attempting to speak for the entire community.

"The council cannot speak for all the people here because no homeowners are represented on it," said Alvis Allen, association president.

What apparently brought about the denunciation, agreed on at a special meeting of the group Tuesday, was the council's recent request that Marion Taylor, the county public health nurse who serves Marin City, be replaced. The council said Miss Taylor, 64, could no longer perform her duties adequately because "she is too old."

In response, the homeowners sent a letter to the nurse, praising her efforts and expressing "complete faith and confidence" in her ability "to carry on the important work. . .of caring for and giving advice to men, women and children.

"We trust you will continue your work in the community until you feel your retirement is necessary and hope you will continue to share with us a portion of your knowledge even after you retire," the homeowners wrote.

Allen said the resolution censuring the council noted that that body has no legal status and is not empowered by the county or state to handle community matters.

The homeowners group also said the council has "no bargaining power with county or state officials" and "is not an official Marin City group."

In other business, the homeowners seated the following new officers for two-year terms: Shirley Roberts, corresponding secretary; Lucille Holloway, garden club chairman, and Ruby Jefferson, historian.

Burglary Suspect Seeks To Switch Site Of Trial

A request to move from Marin the trial of a Fairfax man arrested with two San Anselmo police officers in a burglary investigation, was made yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

A hearing on the bid is to be set, possibly next week.

Gaile O'Connor, deputy public defender representing Warren Charles Osborne, said that "extensive pretrial publicity" in the Independent-Journal has made it impossible for Osborne to receive a fair trial.

Judge David Menary Jr. said the request should be aired during a one-day hearing on nine other motions.

The burglary trial of Osborne, former Sgt. Edwin Souza Silvia, 38, and former reserve officer Eugene Charles Saporetti, 24, is scheduled for April 9.

However, the three have filed a total of 10 motions, most challenging the legality of the investigation leading to their arrests and the rulings of the municipal court judge that heard the preliminary hearing.

Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani and Capt. G. Albert Howenstein arrested the three Dec. 11 after a probation officer, who had been riding on patrol with Silvia, told the chief the sergeant had asked him to join in the burglary of a store.

Nine television sets valued at $1,223 were taken from the Sears Roebuck catalog store in the Redhill Shopping Center and found in the homes of the three.

Members of the San Anselmo Open Space Bond Campaign Committee will speak at 8 p.m. Monday at the Larry Mastin home, 5 Traxler Road; 8 p.m. Tuesday at the John Skinner home, 180 Oak Springs Drive, and 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Thomas Peacock home, 43 Durham Road.

Committee members will discuss the bond issue and show slides of the city's open lands.

Shoreline Schools To Lose Leader

Charles E. McCully, first superintendent of the Shoreline Unified School District, will hand in his resignation to the district board tonight, effective June 30.

McCully reported yesterday he will become superintendent of the Albany City Unified School District at a salary of $25,500 a year, compared to $24,500 at Shoreline.

He will be leaving to head a larger district, 2,500 students plus adult education and children's center, as compared to 970 students in the Shoreline district.

McCully, 35, has been superintendent of the Shoreline district since October, 1968, taking the post before the district was in operation.

The district was formed by combining the former West Marin Elementary, Tomales Elementary, Bodega Bay Elementary and Tomales Hgh School Districts.

McCully was chairman of the screening committee for a superintendent when the board in a surprise move bypassed the five finalists and chose him.

In July 1971, when the district had financial difficulties, McCully declined a pay raise, but in November 1971, the board gave him $1,500 a year more.

Before becoming superintendent, McCully had been a deputy superintendent in the Marin County schools office for two-and-a-half years and a principal at Kenwood Elementary School in Sonoma County. He previously taught in Canton, Ohio, and Sebastopol. He was graduated from Ohio University in 1960 and received his master's degree at San Francisco State College in 1965.

Questionnaires Are Circulated

The questionnaire, covering such matters as tourism, utilities, zoning, agriculture and environment, will be distributed to residents and mailed to nonresident property owners, according to chairman Louis Steinberg.

The deadline for returning the questionnaires is March 26 and Steinberg asked that residents cooperate by meeting the deadline.

FDA Member To A Post In HEW

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles E. Edwards, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), has been selected by President Nixon to be assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Edwards, 49, a native of Overton, Neb., will succeed Dr. Merlin K. Duval Jr., who resigned last Dec. 15. Edward has been head of the FDA, a branch of HEW, since Dec. 1, 1969. Before joining the government he was vice president of a medical firm in Chicago.

Questionnaires Are Circulated

The Point Reyes Station planning group began distributing questionnaires yesterday to residents to get opinions to be used in preparing an area master plan.

The questionnaire, covering such matters as tourism, utilities, zoning, agriculture and environment, will be distributed to residents and mailed to nonresident property owners, according to chairman Louis Steinberg.

The deadline for returning the questionnaires is March 26 and Steinberg asked that residents cooperate by meeting the deadline.

Homeowners Censure Marin City Council

The Marin City Homeowners and Improvement Association has denounced the Marin City Council for attempting to speak for the entire community.

"The council cannot speak for all the people here because no homeowners are represented on it," said Alvis Allen, association president.

What apparently brought about the denunciation, agreed on at a special meeting of the group Tuesday, was the council's recent request that Marion Taylor, the county public health nurse who serves Marin City, be replaced. The council said Miss Taylor, 64, could no longer perform her duties adequately because "she is too old."

In response, the homeowners sent a letter to the nurse, praising her efforts and expressing "complete faith and confidence" in her ability "to carry on the important work. . .of caring for and giving advice to men, women and children.

"We trust you will continue your work in the community until you feel your retirement is necessary and hope you will continue to share with us a portion of your knowledge even after you retire," the homeowners wrote.

Allen said the resolution censuring the council noted that that body has no legal status and is not empowered by the county or state to handle community matters.

The homeowners group also said the council has "no bargaining power with county or state officials" and "is not an official Marin City group."

In other business, the homeowners seated the following new officers for two-year terms: Shirley Roberts, corresponding secretary; Lucille Holloway, garden club chairman, and Ruby Jefferson, historian.

Burglary Suspect Seeks To Switch Site Of Trial

A request to move from Marin the trial of a Fairfax man arrested with two San Anselmo police officers in a burglary investigation, was made yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

A hearing on the bid is to be set, possibly next week.

Gaile O'Connor, deputy public defender representing Warren Charles Osborne, said that "extensive pretrial publicity" in the Independent-Journal has made it impossible for Osborne to receive a fair trial.

Judge David Menary Jr. said the request should be aired during a one-day hearing on nine other motions.

The burglary trial of Osborne, former Sgt. Edwin Souza Silvia, 38, and former reserve officer Eugene Charles Saporetti, 24, is scheduled for April 9.

However, the three have filed a total of 10 motions, most challenging the legality of the investigation leading to their arrests and the rulings of the municipal court judge that heard the preliminary hearing.

Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani and Capt. G. Albert Howenstein arrested the three Dec. 11 after a probation officer, who had been riding on patrol with Silvia, told the chief the sergeant had asked him to join in the burglary of a store.

Nine television sets valued at $1,223 were taken from the Sears Roebuck catalog store in the Redhill Shopping Center and found in the homes of the three.

Coffees Set On Bond Issue

Three campaign coffees for San Anselmo's $500,000 bond issue for open space have been scheduled by a citizens' group seeking passage of the measure.

Members of the San Anselmo Open Space Bond Campaign Committee will speak at 8 p.m. Monday at the Larry Mastin home, 5 Traxler Road; 8 p.m. Tuesday at the John Skinner home, 180 Oak Springs Drive, and 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Thomas Peacock home, 43 Durham Road.

Committee members will discuss the bond issue and show slides of the city's open lands.

Shoreline Schools To Lose Leader

Charles E. McCully, first superintendent of the Shoreline Unified School District, will hand in his resignation to the district board tonight, effective June 30.

McCully reported yesterday he will become superintendent of the Albany City Unified School District at a salary of $25,500 a year, compared to $24,500 at Shoreline.

He will be leaving to head a larger district, 2,500 students plus adult education and children's center, as compared to 970 students in the Shoreline district.

McCully, 35, has been superintendent of the Shoreline district since October, 1968, taking the post before the district was in operation.

The district was formed by combining the former West Marin Elementary, Tomales Elementary, Bodega Bay Elementary and Tomales Hgh School Districts.

McCully was chairman of the screening committee for a superintendent when the board in a surprise move bypassed the five finalists and chose him.

In July 1971, when the district had financial difficulties, McCully declined a pay raise, but in November 1971, the board gave him $1,500 a year more.

Before becoming superintendent, McCully had been a deputy superintendent in the Marin County schools office for two-and-a-half years and a principal at Kenwood Elementary School in Sonoma County. He previously taught in Canton, Ohio, and Sebastopol. He was graduated from Ohio University in 1960 and received his master's degree at San Francisco State College in 1965.

Questionnaires Are Circulated

The Point Reyes Station planning group began distributing questionnaires yesterday to residents to get opinions to be used in preparing an area master plan.

The questionnaire, covering such matters as tourism, utilities, zoning, agriculture and environment, will be distributed to residents and mailed to nonresident property owners, according to chairman Louis Steinberg.

The deadline for returning the questionnaires is March 26 and Steinberg asked that residents cooperate by meeting the deadline.

School Organization Panel Asks Status

The Marin County Committee on School District Organization last night appointed member Galen Williams to press for the group's continued existence at the April 2 meeting of the Marin County Board of Educatin.

Board member Lee C. Richardson Jr., has asked the board to consider petitioning the state board of education to do away with the committee and delegate its duties to the board.

Asst. County Schools Supt. Robert E. Spain said the committee discussed reorganizing elementary school districts but decided to wait and see if the board permits it to continue before embarking on a study.

Spain presented a report which showed that statewide enrollment in kindergarten through twelfth grade declined by 1.1 per cent in October, while in Marin County enrollment declined by 2.0 per cent.

Dwight Geduldig Will Head HRD

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan officially appointed California's Medi-Cal director, Dwight M. Geduldig, today as head of the State Department of Human Resources Development.

Geduldig, a former newsman, replaces Sigurd I. Hansen, whose resignation was announced yesterday.

Reagan's announcement today said there will be no appointment to fill Geduldig's position as head of the Department of Health Care Services, which is slated to become part of a new Department of Health headed by Dr. James M. Stubblebine, formerly of Marin.

Apparent Drowning Off Stinson Beach

Sheriff's deputies and the Coast Guard continued a search today for Stanley Keith Grant, who disappeared shortly before 3 p.m.

Lt. William Johansen of the Point Reyes Station sheriff's substation said Grant and an unidentified friend were swimming about 200 yards off shore when they got into trouble because of strong tides.

Another youth, also not identified, managed to rescue Grant's companion, but was unable to help the Kentfield boy.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Clark.

Five Larkspur Residents To New City Panel

The Larkspur City Council has appointed five residents to the city's new design review board.

Architect members of the board are Malcolm J. Smith, 160 Marina Vista (three-year term); Charles Massen, 60 Marina Vista (two-year term), and William J. Forgensi, 8 Shady Lane, (one-year term).

Ten Larkspur residents applied for appointment to the board, and all were interviewed by councilmen.

Asst. City Mgr. Harlan Barry said the council also has appointed Robert Smith as chairman of a steering committee for general plan review, with Sallyanne Wilson as vice chairman.

Pot Plants Are Found In Truck

Visting a remote hillside home last night to investigate a reported petty theft, Larkspur police officers saw six pots of marijuana plants in the back of a pickup truck parked in the driveway.

Inside the home, at 1 Hatzic Court, narcotics paraphernalia and a bag of green vegetable substance were on a coffee table, said police.

Dennis Emil Keller, 25, was arrested on suspicion of possession and cultivation of marijuana, and Joseph Henry Hamilton III, 20, on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia. Each posted $500 bail to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

County Sued For Release Of Report

A $50,000 lawsuit, which claims Marin County violated a promise to keep a psychiatric report confidential, was filed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

The suit, filed by San Rafael attorney Judd C. Iverson, claims that two psychiatric tests of Sandra West done in February, 1972, to determine her eligibility for aid to the totally disabled surfaced four months later in a probation report for a child custody hearing.

Betty L. Presley, director of the Department of Public Social Services, declined to comment on the suit, but said it is her department's policy to keep all such tests confidential unless the subject and doctor consent in writing to release.

Iverson claimed that release of the reports on his client to the probation department caused her emotional and mental distress, injured her character and reputation, and harmed her business and social standing.

The suit asked $50,00 damages for those allegations and unspecified costs for psychiatric care blamed on the revelation. Named in the suit are Marin County and Richard Schulte, a social worker.

Iverson could not be reached today for information on the case.

School Organization Panel Asks Status

The Marin County Committee on School District Organization last night appointed member Galen Williams to press for the group's continued existence at the April 2 meeting of the Marin County Board of Educatin.

Asst. County Schools Supt. Robert E. Spain said the committee discussed reorganizing elementary school districts but decided to wait and see if the board permits it to continue before embarking on a study.

Spain presented a report which showed that statewide enrollment in kindergarten through twelfth grade declined by 1.1 per cent in October, while in Marin County enrollment declined by 2.0 per cent.

Dwight Geduldig Will Head HRD

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan officially appointed California's Medi-Cal director, Dwight M. Geduldig, today as head of the State Department of Human Resources Development.

Geduldig, a former newsman, replaces Sigurd I. Hansen, whose resignation was announced yesterday.

Reagan's announcement today said there will be no appointment to fill Geduldig's position as head of the Department of Health Care Services, which is slated to become part of a new Department of Health headed by Dr. James M. Stubblebine, formerly of Marin.

Apparent Drowning Off Stinson Beach

Sheriff's deputies and the Coast Guard continued a search today for Stanley Keith Grant, who disappeared shortly before 3 p.m.

Lt. William Johansen of the Point Reyes Station sheriff's substation said Grant and an unidentified friend were swimming about 200 yards off shore when they got into trouble because of strong tides.

Another youth, also not identified, managed to rescue Grant's companion, but was unable to help the Kentfield boy.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Clark.

Five Larkspur Residents To New City Panel

The Larkspur City Council has appointed five residents to the city's new design review board.

Architect members of the board are Malcolm J. Smith, 160 Marina Vista (three-year term); Charles Massen, 60 Marina Vista (two-year term), and William J. Forgensi, 8 Shady Lane, (one-year term).

Pot Plants Are Found In Truck

Visting a remote hillside home last night to investigate a reported petty theft, Larkspur police officers saw six pots of marijuana plants in the back of a pickup truck parked in the driveway.

Inside the home, at 1 Hatzic Court, narcotics paraphernalia and a bag of green vegetable substance were on a coffee table, said police.

County Sued For Release Of Report

A $50,000 lawsuit, which claims Marin County violated a promise to keep a psychiatric report confidential, was filed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

The suit, filed by San Rafael attorney Judd C. Iverson, claims that two psychiatric tests of Sandra West done in February, 1972, to determine her eligibility for aid to the totally disabled surfaced four months later in a probation report for a child custody hearing.

Betty L. Presley, director of the Department of Public Social Services, declined to comment on the suit, but said it is her department's policy to keep all such tests confidential unless the subject and doctor consent in writing to release.

Iverson claimed that release of the reports on his client to the probation department caused her emotional and mental distress, injured her character and reputation, and harmed her business and social standing.

The suit asked $50,00 damages for those allegations and unspecified costs for psychiatric care blamed on the revelation. Named in the suit are Marin County and Richard Schulte, a social worker.

Iverson could not be reached today for information on the case.

Architect members of the board are Malcolm J. Smith, 160 Marina Vista (three-year term); Charles Massen, 60 Marina Vista (two-year term), and William J. Forgensi, 8 Shady Lane, (one-year term).

Ten Larkspur residents applied for appointment to the board, and all were interviewed by councilmen.

Asst. City Mgr. Harlan Barry said the council also has appointed Robert Smith as chairman of a steering committee for general plan review, with Sallyanne Wilson as vice chairman.

Pot Plants Are Found In Truck

Visting a remote hillside home last night to investigate a reported petty theft, Larkspur police officers saw six pots of marijuana plants in the back of a pickup truck parked in the driveway.

Inside the home, at 1 Hatzic Court, narcotics paraphernalia and a bag of green vegetable substance were on a coffee table, said police.

Dennis Emil Keller, 25, was arrested on suspicion of possession and cultivation of marijuana, and Joseph Henry Hamilton III, 20, on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia. Each posted $500 bail to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

County Sued For Release Of Report

A $50,000 lawsuit, which claims Marin County violated a promise to keep a psychiatric report confidential, was filed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

The suit, filed by San Rafael attorney Judd C. Iverson, claims that two psychiatric tests of Sandra West done in February, 1972, to determine her eligibility for aid to the totally disabled surfaced four months later in a probation report for a child custody hearing.

Betty L. Presley, director of the Department of Public Social Services, declined to comment on the suit, but said it is her department's policy to keep all such tests confidential unless the subject and doctor consent in writing to release.

Iverson claimed that release of the reports on his client to the probation department caused her emotional and mental distress, injured her character and reputation, and harmed her business and social standing.

The suit asked $50,00 damages for those allegations and unspecified costs for psychiatric care blamed on the revelation. Named in the suit are Marin County and Richard Schulte, a social worker.

Iverson could not be reached today for information on the case.

School Panel Hopefuls In Novato Hold First Round

By FRANK FARRARA

The Novato Unified School District board was rapped and raising teachers salaries proved a perplexing issue last night as eight candidates for the board spoke in the first of a series of four candidates' night meetings.

Candidates, vying for three seats on the board, spoke in a generally congenial session before about 25 persons at Olive School.

The sharpest comments came from Betty Machado, a 48-year-old housewife, who criticized the board for planning to spend $12,000 in the coming school year to rent office space for administrators.

She said this was in effect entering into trustee William T. Eckhoff's "five-year, long-range program" without a public hearing on it.

Mrs. Machado also criticized a recent breakfast meeting with the Novato City Council concerning the future of the Marion School site, saying the meeting should have been held "at a time all of us could have attended."

William A. Lehigh, 52, supervisor of administrative services for Chevron Chemical Co., and James Harrington Jr., 49, director of personnel and management development for Kaiser Steel Corp., countered that it appeared Eckhoff was just attempting to provide needed long-range planning.

Dr. John D. Kassenbrock, 46, a dentist, mentioned "the weakened credibility of the school district in the eyes of many especially in regard to financial matters."

Candidates varied in their approach to teacher pay raises.

James E. Casassa, 39, head counselor at a junior high school in San Francisco, said teachers deserve a raise, but it would have to be viewed in light of the increasing cost of fringe benefits.

Thomas J. Cleary, 40, manager of distribution order services for Del Monte Corp., also backed pay raises, but said "it seems like a one-way street. . . we should be getting something in return."

Mabel Croughan, 53, a microbiologist, said aside from salary raises, teachers could use appreciation and support from the community.

Lehigh said "teacher salaries bear looking into," particularly starting salaries and should be related to individual abilities.

Mrs. Machado proposed a weeding out of poor teachers and Kassenbrock said salaries in the district are below those in the majority of other school districts in Marin.

Harrington said he doesn't believe anyone opposes pay raises "if justified" and said there should be some method of evaluating teachers for raises.

M. Gordon Gaddy, 36, a vice president of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., said, "In this society at this time you are going backwards if you don't get a salary increase every year."

In opening remarks candidates talked about educational philosophy and priorities.

Gaddy said "the school system should be judged by what it does with the raw material it receives," and "the board must work together effectively."

Lehigh said he believed in "the optimum development of the individual" and advocated "continuing review of the school system in our best interests."

Mrs. Groughan said "my orientation will be toward human values," and "the schools should be community centered," "with equal facilities for all schools."

Mrs. Mahado said the "attitude of the board has not been the best to deal with over the years," and pledged she would not be a "rubber stamp" of the district administration.

Cleary said "I believe in teaching the basics, reading, math and writing" and advocated having Novato High and San Marin High School students "participate on the board."

Kassenbrock said "any educational system has to be based on individual differences" and that "course and career counseling is one of the most neglected areas."

Harrington suggested "an audit of present administrative policies and procedures, student representation on the board and a program to increase student awareness of the responsibility they face when they achieve adult status at 18."

Casassa urged an upgrading of the basic skills program, continuing evaluation of programs and a start toward selecting a superintendent to succeed James G. Bunker, who will retire next year.

On district shortcomings, Harrington said the vocational-trade-business program needs improvement, Mrs. Machado said the program for gifted students "has been downgraded" and Mrs. Croughan said she was "concerned about low teacher morale."

In seeking a new superintendent, he would look "for the type who could upgrade the morale of the teaching profession in this district," Kassenbrock said.

He described Bunker as "a very very, good financial man" who "has done a fantastic job with darn little money, and now with this base established" the board should seek someone "to improve teacher morale."

The next candidates' night will be at 8 p.m. next Thursday at San Marin High School.

Year-Round Schooling Requested

The Petaluma Board of Education has been asked to put Cherry Valley School on a year-round schedule starting in July.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the school staff and a majority of parents favor changing to the year-round schedule from the traditional nine-month calendar.

Meyer said a survey of 213 families indicated 109 for the year-round plan, 75 for the traditional schedule and 29 with no opinion. Of those favoring the traditional schedule, only 12 said they would transfer students to other schools if Cherry Valley was changed to year-round.

Meyer said board members questioned Tuesday what educational advantages, the program would bring and scheduled further discussion at a special meeting next Tuesday at 7 p.m. The board indicated a decision will be made that night.

Since Cherry Valley has no crowding, student attendance would not be staggered as it has been at two eastside Petaluma schools to gain space. Students would attend school for 45 days or nine weeks, followed by a three-week vacation.

At the special meeting the board will also hear a progress report on the year-round school study for the entire district.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

TRANSFER — Approved a plan to transfer all ninth grade classes from junior to senior high schools beginning in September. Junior highs will be reduced to seventh and eighth grades to ease crowding problems.

MEETING — Announced it will have a dinner meeting with the Rohnert Park City Council today at 6:30 p.m. at the Carriage House, Rohnert Park, to discuss growth plans.

Free Toilets

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago City Council, by a 37-7 vote, Wednesday voted to end pay toilets in all the city's public buildings.

Coffees Slated For Candidate

Three coffees have been set for John G. Eliot, chairman of the Mill Valley School District board and a candidate for reelection April 17.

Eliot will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Bloch, 248 Ricardo Road, Strawberry, today and at the house of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Frank, 980 Greenhill Road, tomorrow. Both coffees begin at 8 p.m.

The third coffee is set for 8 p.m. March 23 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Fleischmann, 12 Lower Drive.

Candidates, vying for three seats on the board, spoke in a generally congenial session before about 25 persons at Olive School.

The sharpest comments came from Betty Machado, a 48-year-old housewife, who criticized the board for planning to spend $12,000 in the coming school year to rent office space for administrators.

She said this was in effect entering into trustee William T. Eckhoff's "five-year, long-range program" without a public hearing on it.

Mrs. Machado also criticized a recent breakfast meeting with the Novato City Council concerning the future of the Marion School site, saying the meeting should have been held "at a time all of us could have attended."

William A. Lehigh, 52, supervisor of administrative services for Chevron Chemical Co., and James Harrington Jr., 49, director of personnel and management development for Kaiser Steel Corp., countered that it appeared Eckhoff was just attempting to provide needed long-range planning.

Dr. John D. Kassenbrock, 46, a dentist, mentioned "the weakened credibility of the school district in the eyes of many especially in regard to financial matters."

Candidates varied in their approach to teacher pay raises.

James E. Casassa, 39, head counselor at a junior high school in San Francisco, said teachers deserve a raise, but it would have to be viewed in light of the increasing cost of fringe benefits.

Thomas J. Cleary, 40, manager of distribution order services for Del Monte Corp., also backed pay raises, but said "it seems like a one-way street. . . we should be getting something in return."

Mabel Croughan, 53, a microbiologist, said aside from salary raises, teachers could use appreciation and support from the community.

Lehigh said "teacher salaries bear looking into," particularly starting salaries and should be related to individual abilities.

Mrs. Machado proposed a weeding out of poor teachers and Kassenbrock said salaries in the district are below those in the majority of other school districts in Marin.

Harrington said he doesn't believe anyone opposes pay raises "if justified" and said there should be some method of evaluating teachers for raises.

M. Gordon Gaddy, 36, a vice president of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., said, "In this society at this time you are going backwards if you don't get a salary increase every year."

In opening remarks candidates talked about educational philosophy and priorities.

Gaddy said "the school system should be judged by what it does with the raw material it receives," and "the board must work together effectively."

Lehigh said he believed in "the optimum development of the individual" and advocated "continuing review of the school system in our best interests."

Mrs. Groughan said "my orientation will be toward human values," and "the schools should be community centered," "with equal facilities for all schools."

Mrs. Mahado said the "attitude of the board has not been the best to deal with over the years," and pledged she would not be a "rubber stamp" of the district administration.

Cleary said "I believe in teaching the basics, reading, math and writing" and advocated having Novato High and San Marin High School students "participate on the board."

Kassenbrock said "any educational system has to be based on individual differences" and that "course and career counseling is one of the most neglected areas."

Harrington suggested "an audit of present administrative policies and procedures, student representation on the board and a program to increase student awareness of the responsibility they face when they achieve adult status at 18."

Casassa urged an upgrading of the basic skills program, continuing evaluation of programs and a start toward selecting a superintendent to succeed James G. Bunker, who will retire next year.

On district shortcomings, Harrington said the vocational-trade-business program needs improvement, Mrs. Machado said the program for gifted students "has been downgraded" and Mrs. Croughan said she was "concerned about low teacher morale."

In seeking a new superintendent, he would look "for the type who could upgrade the morale of the teaching profession in this district," Kassenbrock said.

He described Bunker as "a very very, good financial man" who "has done a fantastic job with darn little money, and now with this base established" the board should seek someone "to improve teacher morale."

The next candidates' night will be at 8 p.m. next Thursday at San Marin High School.

Year-Round Schooling Requested

The Petaluma Board of Education has been asked to put Cherry Valley School on a year-round schedule starting in July.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the school staff and a majority of parents favor changing to the year-round schedule from the traditional nine-month calendar.

Meyer said a survey of 213 families indicated 109 for the year-round plan, 75 for the traditional schedule and 29 with no opinion. Of those favoring the traditional schedule, only 12 said they would transfer students to other schools if Cherry Valley was changed to year-round.

Meyer said board members questioned Tuesday what educational advantages, the program would bring and scheduled further discussion at a special meeting next Tuesday at 7 p.m. The board indicated a decision will be made that night.

Since Cherry Valley has no crowding, student attendance would not be staggered as it has been at two eastside Petaluma schools to gain space. Students would attend school for 45 days or nine weeks, followed by a three-week vacation.

At the special meeting the board will also hear a progress report on the year-round school study for the entire district.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

TRANSFER — Approved a plan to transfer all ninth grade classes from junior to senior high schools beginning in September. Junior highs will be reduced to seventh and eighth grades to ease crowding problems.

MEETING — Announced it will have a dinner meeting with the Rohnert Park City Council today at 6:30 p.m. at the Carriage House, Rohnert Park, to discuss growth plans.

By FRANK FARRARA

The Novato Unified School District board was rapped and raising teachers salaries proved a perplexing issue last night as eight candidates for the board spoke in the first of a series of four candidates' night meetings.

Tax Dollars Help Underwrite Strikes

Men and women out on strike in the United States received $238 million in food stamps during the last fiscal year, according to testimony last week before a Senate committee.

The figure was quoted by Joseph L. Koach, director of industrial relations for the National Labor-Management Foundation, in testimony in support of S-408 by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., which would ban strikers from receiving food stamps.

SENATOR THURMOND claims most people don't know that strikers can receive food stamps, and when they find out "they are enraged because their tax dollars are being used to help one side in a labor dispute."

In California, strikers who meet the eligibility requirements for food stamps, as to current income, etc., may receive the stamps, according to the Marin County Social Services (Welfare) Department. The department offered no data on how many food stamps had been issued to strikers here.

Food stamps are not the only means of subsidizing one side in a labor dispute from tax moneys.

A STUDY just published by the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at University of Pennsylvania cites wide use of welfare payments and unemployment compensation to replace or augment union benefits to strikers.

Two states — New York and Rhode Island — allow strikers to draw unemployment compensation benefits, which are paid for entirely by the employers against whom they are striking. Other states have various restrictions on such benefits, but unions have found ways around them. Such benefits have been paid to strikers in Marin.

California law, according to the San Rafael office of the state Department of Human Relations, forbids unemployment benefits "as long as a bona fide labor dispute exists." But there are various qualifications. For instance, if a union goes on strike over renewal of a contract and its members are notified that they are no longer employed when the contract expires, they become eligible for unemployment compensation.

AN ARTICLE in this month's issue of Nation's Business reports that 140 workers on strike against Dow Chemical Co. in Bay City, Mich., have drawn $250,000 in unemployment insurance despite a Michigan law forbidding such benefits to strikers.

This was done through prearrangement, according to the article. When the men went on strike, they were given the names of cooperative employers who would hire them — then lay them off. They thus became eligible for unemployment benefits, but these were charged against Dow Chemical since it had been their "principal employer."

The Wharton report cited cases in which long strikes had been financed without dipping into union strike funds — all from taxpayers' money which was designed to help the poor.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, seeking ways to hold down the county budget, might do well to inquire into how much has gone into strike benefits from welfare, unemployment and food stamp funds in this county — and pass the word to the state, where the rules are made.

Legislators Use Taxes For Their Partisan Wars

By EARL G. WATERS

In directing the spotlight on campaign expenditures, Sec. of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. is overlooking what some think is the most corrupt abuse of all.

This is the diversion by the legislature of taxpayer's money in behalf of personal and partisan campaigns.

The practice of using tax dollars for such purposes is relatively recent. It commenced several years ago in a small way and has become infectious. Its genesis was with the abolition of cross-filing.

The official formation of the majority and minority caucuses followed. The legislature then voted funds for paid staff for each of the caucuses. These employees were assigned to work on projects, not for the overall benefit of the state, but exclusively for the advancement of party positions and power.

IN THE CURRENT session, about 50 people will be paid more than $1 million by the legislature for the majority and minority parties of each house. This is in an admitted exercise of making each other look bad.

Critics — and they are growing in numbers including legislators themselves — contend the operations are merely an extension of the political activities of the parties. As such, they argue, it is not a proper expenditure of tax funds and should not be included in the annual legislative budget, which now tops $32 million.

They point out that in former days the functions performed by this staff were carried out by the parties' state central committees. Using private funds, each party employed professionals to research and develop political propaganda.

BUT THE CAUCUS operations are only a part of the tax moneys being used politically.

Depending upon their status, individual legislators are being provided with state-financed staff to further their political aspirations.

Speaker Bob Moretti, in addition to his considerable staff in Sacramento, has nine others employed in state offices in San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco at a cost of $125,000 a year in salaries alone. Others, equally ambitious for higher state office, are likewise spending tax dollars for staff, telephones, travel and postage in their personal quests.

And the abuse isn't limited to those who are seeking higher office. The 1972 campaigns brought to light the use of tax money in the furtherance of ballot propositions, efforts to elect or defeat legislative candidates, and self-serving efforts to gain re-election by incumbent solons.

SEN. JOHN HARMER openly admitted and defended the use of his staff in campaigning for Proposition 18, an anti-obscenity measure sponsored by him and overwhelmingly defeated.

Allegations floated about that aides of Speaker Moretti and Minority Leader Bob Monagan were actively engaged in campaigning in various Assembly and Senate races.

Another suit filed against Sen. John Nejedly charged he spent $70,000 in state funds in his campaign for re-election.

While this unauthorized use of tax money is bad enough in itself, the more sinister aspect of it is that the "ins" are making it impossible for the "outs" to contest them in elections. Who can compete in a campaign against someone who has the unlimited purse of the taxpayer?

Series On Poverty Fills Long-Felt Need

The public information subcommittee of Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee applauds Mary Leydecker for the excellent series of articles about poverty in Marin County. It was well done and in our opinion long overdue. Aside from revealing the mammoth complexities of the welfare system, it pointed out a very real problem of the poor in this affluent county — namely the attitudes, and the misconception that welfare recipients live lives of luxury at the taxpayers' expense.

We also hear complaints, mostly general, about fraud and especially food stamp abuses. If the concerned public really wants to be helpful and suspects fraudulent use of food stamps or abuse of welfare, please report the specific circumstances to the welfare department to check it out.

Our subcommittee has a speakers bureau and would be happy to talk to any groups interested in the welfare issue. Contact the Department of Public Social Services. Again — thank you, Mary Leydecker.

Reader Finds Walton's Column Amusing

While I am usually content to chuckle privately over Rus Walton's "Sacramento Scene" column, yesterday's nonsense ("Moscone Gets Answer . . .") is enough to propel me to typewriter. Mr. Walton attacks Senator Moscone for the most transparent reasons I can imagine. Example: his suggestion that a desire to spend the state surplus on "schools, housing, mental health" somehow leaves out the "taxpayer". Who does Mr. Walton think goes to these schools, anyhow? Who lives in houses? People from another planet?

The fact of the matter is that on the issue of the surplus Moscone is one of the few legislators with the guts to put the real interests of the taxpayer ahead of a desire to win votes. As any economist will tell you, utilization of this money to pay off bonds will end up saving the taxpayer millions of dollars more than the amount of the surplus itself. The reason most politicians don't talk about this is that economics is too complicated to make good political publicity. They'd rather talk about a "tax rebate" or a cut in the sales tax for a few months — these are the suggestions that sound good to voters, even if they are not as beneficial to you and me as Senator Moscone's less glamorous but more intelligent proposal.

Dear Mr. Walton, although you seem to know next to nothing about political reality, and even less about economics, please don't despair. You column provides so many of us I-J readers with comic relief that it would be a shame for you to give it up. Just keep going in circles in your Mustang. I'm looking forward to the next good laugh.

What Of Other Nine Who Asked For Dog?

I have just finished reading your "I-J Reporters Notebook" column of March 6, re the little shaggy grey dog rescued from Highway 101 freeway some weeks back. According to this article, 10 people offered to adopt this dog from the Humane Society, where it had been taken after being rescued by the Highway Patrol. When the one it was offered to, found out it required medical attention, they declined to pay for same and the dog was put to sleep! And they have the nerve to call themselves the HUMANE Society! Even though this person would not take the dog, what about the other nine? Was it too much of an effort for the Society to call them? I'm sure they will have the old tired excuse of the huge number of animals that pass through the shelter — but again I ask, what about the other nine?

Unfortunately, I'm just another John Q. Public with no clout to put the pressure on where it's needed, but what about all you "illustrious" names that appear on the Humane Society letterhead? Are you going to do something about this sort of thing, or is that all you are, a name on a letterhead?

There is one person who really knows the meaning of the word "Humane" and put it to work. She is Dorothy Snow Simpson of Canastota, N.Y., who although a senior citizen in age, became fed up with her local humane society and started her own animal shelter, 'Driftwood'', supported entirely by voluntary contributions. She put the local humane society out of business and now takes care of the entire animal problem. I found out about this most remarkable woman through an article about three years ago in Life magazine and have since corresponded with her. I think our society should take a page from her book. They have much to learn apparently.

Hilarita Opposition Urges Referendum

In response to the letter to the ditor titled "Hilarita Opposition Called Small But Loud," (March 2), let me try to correct some of the obvious inaccuracies of the writer, Mr. Barry Simpson, who supposedly resides in Tiburon.

The opposition to the present Hilarita plan is not small in number. Contrary to the statements of Mr. Simpson, the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, the opposition is not located mainly in the Rolling Hills above Hilarita. One of the opposition's proposals was for a Tiburon public referendum, to allow the citizen majority to decide the Hilarita issue. The proponents are evidently quite fearful of the possible outcome of an official vote.

The present tax loss on the property is only a fraction of the costs that the city and county will have to bear in event that TEA's plan for Hilarity is permitted. Need I mention the additional federal and state subsidies?

The proponents love to throw words like "personal prejudices" at the gullible public. We, the opposition, are justly concerned over the fact that our senior citizens and our local and civil employees will not be eligible for accommodations (refer to the income requirements of HUD on low-moderate housing), and the glaring fact that the present project plans are contrary to our Tiburon Master Plan (the density of the 112 units is over twice the permissible number).

Last, but not least, Mr. Barry Simpson is employed in Tiburon, but is not a resident of our city.

Concentration Of Power In Presidency Stirs Fears

WASHINGTON — Since the time of the Pharaohs, the heavy hand of government has been both oppressor and guardian of the citizenry, with the guardian more often than not turning oppressor. The increasing centralization of power in the presidency stirs fears of what in the electronic age this concentration can mean.

President Nixon talks about dispersing power through the new federalism, but facts speak louder than words. Perhaps the most significant statement he made was as he was about to enter a second four years with a landslide majority when he said the American people were like children in a family who had to accept discipline if they were to become responsible.

He was saying in that interview with the Washington Star-News that the majority must prevail. Dissent was to seem a form of disloyalty.

ONE OF THE WISEST philosophers ever to study the great American experiment was the Frenchman Alexis de Tocqueville. After months of first-hand observation and 7,000 miles of travel De Tocqueville on returning to France wrote and published in 1848 what has become a classic, "Democracy in America."

His concern over the tyranny of the majority and the consequences this could have on freedom of thought is as valid today as it was nearly a century and a half ago when the infant republic was a beacon of hope to the world. It may be argued that it is even more valid today with instant mass communication at the command of authority. De Tocqueville wrote:

"The fact that the political laws of the Americans are such that the majority rules the community with sovereign sway materially increases the power which that majority naturally exercises over the mind. For nothing is more customary in man than to recognize superior wisdom in the person of the oppressor.

"The political omnipotence of the majority in the United States doubtless augments the influence that public opinion would obtain without it over the minds of each member of the community, but the foundations of that influence do not rest upon it. They must be sought for in the principle of equality itself, not in the more or less popular institutions which men living under that condition may give themselves. The intellectual dominion of the greater number would probably be less absolute among a democratic people governed by a king than in the sphere of pure democracy, but it will always be extremely absolute; and by whatever political laws men are governed in the ages of equality, it may be foreseen that faith in public opinion will become for them a species of religion, and the majority its ministering prophet."

DE TOCQUEVILLE went on to suggest that the tyranny of the majority under the dominion of certain laws could "extinguish that liberty of the mind to which a democratic condition is favorable." Men, he went on to say, would not have found the means of independent life but they would simply have discovered a new physiognomy of servitude. And he concluded with this moving personal testament:

"For myself, when I feel the hand of power live heavy on my brow, I care but little to know who oppresses me; and I am not the more disposed to pass beneath the yoke because it is held out to me by the arms of a million men."

King Richard the First is the scornful designation of cartoonists and critics who see a rapid accumulation of power in the White House, an accretion so great as to give the President almost dictatorial powers. This has an historic parallel in the not-too-distant past.

When Franklin Roosevelt was preparing in 1944 to run for an unprecedented fourth term, the two-term tradition having already been broken, the satirists dubbed him King Franklin the First. Ardent admirers in Congress of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in command of ground forces in the Pacific, pleaded with him to come home and save the nation from monarchy by standing for President in the coming election.

An ailing Roosevelt was re-elected as the war drew to a close. Less than four months later he was dead. As commander-in-chief in the greatest war in history he had wielded far-reaching and hitherto undreamed-of powers.

In wars, authority is augmented around the single figure who is president and commander of the armed forces. A war powers act to put a brake on this authority is of the first importance.

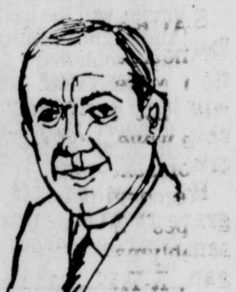
Bangladesh Accepts Aid But Doesn't Mention It



By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Bangladesh, a nation born amid the ruins of the civil war which divided Pakistan, a member of the government once declared the country would hesitate to accept American aid because there "might be poison in it."

But a year later the record showed that Bangladesh not only had accepted American aid but that the United States was by far the heaviest contributor —some $328 million as compaed to $258 million from India and $62 million from the Soviet Union.

ANTI-AMERICANISM began in Bangladesh with the U.S. "tilt" toward Pakistan during the bitter civil war.

In the March 7 elections which returned Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman to office for another five years, anti-Americanism remained an important issue among the poor and the political opposition.

The U.S. Information Service library in Dacca continues to be a favorite target for rock-throwing demonstrators.

During his campaign, Rahman thanked India for her help in staving off starvation and the Soviet Union for her diplomatic support but deemed it unpolitic to include the United States in his thanks despite the fact relations between the two governments have improved considerably over a year ago.

THE NATURE of Bangladesh makes it natural to speak of the country in superlatives, usually in terms of the "most" or the "worst."

For instance, the nearly $1 billion in aid committed in only a little more than a year, made it the most concentrated international relief effort in history.

Illiteracy is about 80 per cent.

To produce two surviving sons, it has been said that a villager must produce eight children.

AS A SUCCESSFUL revolutionary, Rahman earned the title, "father of his country."

As an administrator his record has been mediocre.

Prices have nearly tripled over prewar levels.

Business continues in stagnation.

Even as the country demands more and more relief the government finds it impossible to account for millions of tons of foodstuffs already arrived.

Baby foods intended for Bangladesh have turned up in India. Smuggling is a major industry. Corruption in high places is commonplace as officials have proven more interested in lining their own pockets than in the future of their country.

RAHMAN HAS PROMISED to eliminate corruption.

"I have been soft," he has declared, "like the soil of golden Bengal. This is because I am not just the prime minister, but the father of the nation as well. But I can be strict, too."

He may be too late. One "revo-revolutionary" party has been reported planning to follow the elections with "direct action against corrupt and antipeople elements."

Tax Dollars Help Underwrite Strikes

Men and women out on strike in the United States received $238 million in food stamps during the last fiscal year, according to testimony last week before a Senate committee.

The figure was quoted by Joseph L. Koach, director of industrial relations for the National Labor-Management Foundation, in testimony in support of S-408 by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., which would ban strikers from receiving food stamps.

SENATOR THURMOND claims most people don't know that strikers can receive food stamps, and when they find out "they are enraged because their tax dollars are being used to help one side in a labor dispute."

In California, strikers who meet the eligibility requirements for food stamps, as to current income, etc., may receive the stamps, according to the Marin County Social Services (Welfare) Department. The department offered no data on how many food stamps had been issued to strikers here.

Food stamps are not the only means of subsidizing one side in a labor dispute from tax moneys.

A STUDY just published by the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at University of Pennsylvania cites wide use of welfare payments and unemployment compensation to replace or augment union benefits to strikers.

Two states — New York and Rhode Island — allow strikers to draw unemployment compensation benefits, which are paid for entirely by the employers against whom they are striking. Other states have various restrictions on such benefits, but unions have found ways around them. Such benefits have been paid to strikers in Marin.

California law, according to the San Rafael office of the state Department of Human Relations, forbids unemployment benefits "as long as a bona fide labor dispute exists." But there are various qualifications. For instance, if a union goes on strike over renewal of a contract and its members are notified that they are no longer employed when the contract expires, they become eligible for unemployment compensation.

AN ARTICLE in this month's issue of Nation's Business reports that 140 workers on strike against Dow Chemical Co. in Bay City, Mich., have drawn $250,000 in unemployment insurance despite a Michigan law forbidding such benefits to strikers.

This was done through prearrangement, according to the article. When the men went on strike, they were given the names of cooperative employers who would hire them — then lay them off. They thus became eligible for unemployment benefits, but these were charged against Dow Chemical since it had been their "principal employer."

The Wharton report cited cases in which long strikes had been financed without dipping into union strike funds — all from taxpayers' money which was designed to help the poor.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, seeking ways to hold down the county budget, might do well to inquire into how much has gone into strike benefits from welfare, unemployment and food stamp funds in this county — and pass the word to the state, where the rules are made.

"For myself, when I feel the hand of power live heavy on my brow, I care but little to know who oppresses me; and I am not the more disposed to pass beneath the yoke because it is held out to me by the arms of a million men."

King Richard the First is the scornful designation of cartoonists and critics who see a rapid accumulation of power in the White House, an accretion so great as to give the President almost dictatorial powers. This has an historic parallel in the not-too-distant past.

When Franklin Roosevelt was preparing in 1944 to run for an unprecedented fourth term, the two-term tradition having already been broken, the satirists dubbed him King Franklin the First. Ardent admirers in Congress of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in command of ground forces in the Pacific, pleaded with him to come home and save the nation from monarchy by standing for President in the coming election.

An ailing Roosevelt was re-elected as the war drew to a close. Less than four months later he was dead. As commander-in-chief in the greatest war in history he had wielded far-reaching and hitherto undreamed-of powers.

In wars, authority is augmented around the single figure who is president and commander of the armed forces. A war powers act to put a brake on this authority is of the first importance.

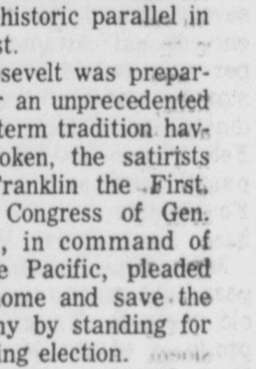
Bangladesh Accepts Aid But Doesn't Mention It



By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Bangladesh, a nation born amid the ruins of the civil war which divided Pakistan, a member of the government once declared the country would hesitate to accept American aid because there "might be poison in it."

But a year later the record showed that Bangladesh not only had accepted American aid but that the United States was by far the heaviest contributor —some $328 million as compaed to $258 million from India and $62 million from the Soviet Union.

ANTI-AMERICANISM began in Bangladesh with the U.S. "tilt" toward Pakistan during the bitter civil war.

In the March 7 elections which returned Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman to office for another five years, anti-Americanism remained an important issue among the poor and the political opposition.

The U.S. Information Service library in Dacca continues to be a favorite target for rock-throwing demonstrators.

During his campaign, Rahman thanked India for her help in staving off starvation and the Soviet Union for her diplomatic support but deemed it unpolitic to include the United States in his thanks despite the fact relations between the two governments have improved considerably over a year ago.

THE NATURE of Bangladesh makes it natural to speak of the country in superlatives, usually in terms of the "most" or the "worst."

For instance, the nearly $1 billion in aid committed in only a little more than a year, made it the most concentrated international relief effort in history.

Illiteracy is about 80 per cent.

To produce two surviving sons, it has been said that a villager must produce eight children.

AS A SUCCESSFUL revolutionary, Rahman earned the title, "father of his country."

As an administrator his record has been mediocre.

Prices have nearly tripled over prewar levels.

Business continues in stagnation.

Even as the country demands more and more relief the government finds it impossible to account for millions of tons of foodstuffs already arrived.

Baby foods intended for Bangladesh have turned up in India. Smuggling is a major industry. Corruption in high places is commonplace as officials have proven more interested in lining their own pockets than in the future of their country.

RAHMAN HAS PROMISED to eliminate corruption.

"I have been soft," he has declared, "like the soil of golden Bengal. This is because I am not just the prime minister, but the father of the nation as well. But I can be strict, too."

He may be too late. One "revo-revolutionary" party has been reported planning to follow the elections with "direct action against corrupt and antipeople elements."

Tax Dollars Help Underwrite Strikes

Men and women out on strike in the United States received $238 million in food stamps during the last fiscal year, according to testimony last week before a Senate committee.

The figure was quoted by Joseph L. Koach, director of industrial relations for the National Labor-Management Foundation, in testimony in support of S-408 by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., which would ban strikers from receiving food stamps.

SENATOR THURMOND claims most people don't know that strikers can receive food stamps, and when they find out "they are enraged because their tax dollars are being used to help one side in a labor dispute."

In California, strikers who meet the eligibility requirements for food stamps, as to current income, etc., may receive the stamps, according to the Marin County Social Services (Welfare) Department. The department offered no data on how many food stamps had been issued to strikers here.

Food stamps are not the only means of subsidizing one side in a labor dispute from tax moneys.

A STUDY just published by the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at University of Pennsylvania cites wide use of welfare payments and unemployment compensation to replace or augment union benefits to strikers.

Two states — New York and Rhode Island — allow strikers to draw unemployment compensation benefits, which are paid for entirely by the employers against whom they are striking. Other states have various restrictions on such benefits, but unions have found ways around them. Such benefits have been paid to strikers in Marin.

California law, according to the San Rafael office of the state Department of Human Relations, forbids unemployment benefits "as long as a bona fide labor dispute exists." But there are various qualifications. For instance, if a union goes on strike over renewal of a contract and its members are notified that they are no longer employed when the contract expires, they become eligible for unemployment compensation.

AN ARTICLE in this month's issue of Nation's Business reports that 140 workers on strike against Dow Chemical Co. in Bay City, Mich., have drawn $250,000 in unemployment insurance despite a Michigan law forbidding such benefits to strikers.

This was done through prearrangement, according to the article. When the men went on strike, they were given the names of cooperative employers who would hire them — then lay them off. They thus became eligible for unemployment benefits, but these were charged against Dow Chemical since it had been their "principal employer."

The Wharton report cited cases in which long strikes had been financed without dipping into union strike funds — all from taxpayers' money which was designed to help the poor.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, seeking ways to hold down the county budget, might do well to inquire into how much has gone into strike benefits from welfare, unemployment and food stamp funds in this county — and pass the word to the state, where the rules are made.

Legislators Use Taxes For Their Partisan Wars

By EARL G. WATERS

In directing the spotlight on campaign expenditures, Sec. of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. is overlooking what some think is the most corrupt abuse of all.

This is the diversion by the legislature of taxpayer's money in behalf of personal and partisan campaigns.

The practice of using tax dollars for such purposes is relatively recent. It commenced several years ago in a small way and has become infectious. Its genesis was with the abolition of cross-filing.

The official formation of the majority and minority caucuses followed. The legislature then voted funds for paid staff for each of the caucuses. These employees were assigned to work on projects, not for the overall benefit of the state, but exclusively for the advancement of party positions and power.

IN THE CURRENT session, about 50 people will be paid more than $1 million by the legislature for the majority and minority parties of each house. This is in an admitted exercise of making each other look bad.

Critics — and they are growing in numbers including legislators themselves — contend the operations are merely an extension of the political activities of the parties. As such, they argue, it is not a proper expenditure of tax funds and should not be included in the annual legislative budget, which now tops $32 million.

They point out that in former days the functions performed by this staff were carried out by the parties' state central committees. Using private funds, each party employed professionals to research and develop political propaganda.

BUT THE CAUCUS operations are only a part of the tax moneys being used politically.

Depending upon their status, individual legislators are being provided with state-financed staff to further their political aspirations.

Speaker Bob Moretti, in addition to his considerable staff in Sacramento, has nine others employed in state offices in San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco at a cost of $125,000 a year in salaries alone. Others, equally ambitious for higher state office, are likewise spending tax dollars for staff, telephones, travel and postage in their personal quests.

And the abuse isn't limited to those who are seeking higher office. The 1972 campaigns brought to light the use of tax money in the furtherance of ballot propositions, efforts to elect or defeat legislative candidates, and self-serving efforts to gain re-election by incumbent solons.

SEN. JOHN HARMER openly admitted and defended the use of his staff in campaigning for Proposition 18, an anti-obscenity measure sponsored by him and overwhelmingly defeated.

Allegations floated about that aides of Speaker Moretti and Minority Leader Bob Monagan were actively engaged in campaigning in various Assembly and Senate races.

Another suit filed against Sen. John Nejedly charged he spent $70,000 in state funds in his campaign for re-election.

While this unauthorized use of tax money is bad enough in itself, the more sinister aspect of it is that the "ins" are making it impossible for the "outs" to contest them in elections. Who can compete in a campaign against someone who has the unlimited purse of the taxpayer?

Series On Poverty Fills Long-Felt Need

The public information subcommittee of Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee applauds Mary Leydecker for the excellent series of articles about poverty in Marin County. It was well done and in our opinion long overdue. Aside from revealing the mammoth complexities of the welfare system, it pointed out a very real problem of the poor in this affluent county — namely the attitudes, and the misconception that welfare recipients live lives of luxury at the taxpayers' expense.

We also hear complaints, mostly general, about fraud and especially food stamp abuses. If the concerned public really wants to be helpful and suspects fraudulent use of food stamps or abuse of welfare, please report the specific circumstances to the welfare department to check it out.

Our subcommittee has a speakers bureau and would be happy to talk to any groups interested in the welfare issue. Contact the Department of Public Social Services. Again — thank you, Mary Leydecker.

Reader Finds Walton's Column Amusing

While I am usually content to chuckle privately over Rus Walton's "Sacramento Scene" column, yesterday's nonsense ("Moscone Gets Answer . . .") is enough to propel me to typewriter. Mr. Walton attacks Senator Moscone for the most transparent reasons I can imagine. Example: his suggestion that a desire to spend the state surplus on "schools, housing, mental health" somehow leaves out the "taxpayer". Who does Mr. Walton think goes to these schools, anyhow? Who lives in houses? People from another planet?

The fact of the matter is that on the issue of the surplus Moscone is one of the few legislators with the guts to put the real interests of the taxpayer ahead of a desire to win votes. As any economist will tell you, utilization of this money to pay off bonds will end up saving the taxpayer millions of dollars more than the amount of the surplus itself. The reason most politicians don't talk about this is that economics is too complicated to make good political publicity. They'd rather talk about a "tax rebate" or a cut in the sales tax for a few months — these are the suggestions that sound good to voters, even if they are not as beneficial to you and me as Senator Moscone's less glamorous but more intelligent proposal.

Dear Mr. Walton, although you seem to know next to nothing about political reality, and even less about economics, please don't despair. You column provides so many of us I-J readers with comic relief that it would be a shame for you to give it up. Just keep going in circles in your Mustang. I'm looking forward to the next good laugh.

What Of Other Nine Who Asked For Dog?

I have just finished reading your "I-J Reporters Notebook" column of March 6, re the little shaggy grey dog rescued from Highway 101 freeway some weeks back. According to this article, 10 people offered to adopt this dog from the Humane Society, where it had been taken after being rescued by the Highway Patrol. When the one it was offered to, found out it required medical attention, they declined to pay for same and the dog was put to sleep! And they have the nerve to call themselves the HUMANE Society! Even though this person would not take the dog, what about the other nine? Was it too much of an effort for the Society to call them? I'm sure they will have the old tired excuse of the huge number of animals that pass through the shelter — but again I ask, what about the other nine?

Unfortunately, I'm just another John Q. Public with no clout to put the pressure on where it's needed, but what about all you "illustrious" names that appear on the Humane Society letterhead? Are you going to do something about this sort of thing, or is that all you are, a name on a letterhead?

There is one person who really knows the meaning of the word "Humane" and put it to work. She is Dorothy Snow Simpson of Canastota, N.Y., who although a senior citizen in age, became fed up with her local humane society and started her own animal shelter, 'Driftwood", supported entirely by voluntary contributions. She put the local humane society out of business and now takes care of the entire animal problem. I found out about this most remarkable woman through an article about three years ago in Life magazine and have since corresponded with her. I think our society should take a page from her book. They have much to learn apparently.

Hilarita Opposition Urges Referendum

In response to the letter to the ditor titled "Hilarita Opposition Called Small But Loud," (March 2), let me try to correct some of the obvious inaccuracies of the writer, Mr. Barry Simpson, who supposedly resides in Tiburon.

The opposition to the present Hilarita plan is not small in number. Contrary to the statements of Mr. Simpson, the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, the opposition is not located mainly in the Rolling Hills above Hilarita. One of the opposition's proposals was for a Tiburon public referendum, to allow the citizen majority to decide the Hilarita issue. The proponents are evidently quite fearful of the possible outcome of an official vote.

The present tax loss on the property is only a fraction of the costs that the city and county will have to bear in event that TEA's plan for Hilarity is permitted. Need I mention the additional federal and state subsidies?

The proponents love to throw words like "personal prejudices" at the gullible public. We, the opposition, are justly concerned over the fact that our senior citizens and our local and civil employees will not be eligible for accommodations (refer to the income requirements of HUD on low-moderate housing), and the glaring fact that the present project plans are contrary to our Tiburon Master Plan (the density of the 112 units is over twice the permissible number).

Last, but not least, Mr. Barry Simpson is employed in Tiburon, but is not a resident of our city.

Concentration Of Power In Presidency Stirs Fears

WASHINGTON — Since the time of the Pharaohs, the heavy hand of government has been both oppressor and guardian of the citizenry, with the guardian more often than not turning oppressor. The increasing centralization of power in the presidency stirs fears of what in the electronic age this concentration can mean.

President Nixon talks about dispersing power through the new federalism, but facts speak louder than words. Perhaps the most significant statement he made was as he was about to enter a second four years with a landslide majority when he said the American people were like children in a family who had to accept discipline if they were to become responsible.

He was saying in that interview with the Washington Star-News that the majority must prevail. Dissent was to seem a form of disloyalty.

ONE OF THE WISEST philosophers ever to study the great American experiment was the Frenchman Alexis de Tocqueville. After months of first-hand observation and 7,000 miles of travel De Tocqueville on returning to France wrote and published in 1848 what has become a classic, "Democracy in America."

His concern over the tyranny of the majority and the consequences this could have on freedom of thought is as valid today as it was nearly a century and a half ago when the infant republic was a beacon of hope to the world. It may be argued that it is even more valid today with instant mass communication at the command of authority. De Tocqueville wrote:

"The fact that the political laws of the Americans are such that the majority rules the community with sovereign sway materially increases the power which that majority naturally exercises over the mind. For nothing is more customary in man than to recognize superior wisdom in the person of the oppressor.

"The political omnipotence of the majority in the United States doubtless augments the influence that public opinion would obtain without it over the minds of each member of the community, but the foundations of that influence do not rest upon it. They must be sought for in the principle of equality itself, not in the more or less popular institutions which men living under that condition may give themselves. The intellectual dominion of the greater number would probably be less absolute among a democratic people governed by a king than in the sphere of pure democracy, but it will always be extremely absolute; and by whatever political laws men are governed in the ages of equality, it may be foreseen that faith in public opinion will become for them a species of religion, and the majority its ministering prophet."

DE TOCQUEVILLE went on to suggest that the tyranny of the majority under the dominion of certain laws could "extinguish that liberty of the mind to which a democratic condition is favorable." Men, he went on to say, would not have found the means of independent life but they would simply have discovered a new physiognomy of servitude. And he concluded with this moving personal testament:

"For myself, when I feel the hand of power live heavy on my brow, I care but little to know who oppresses me; and I am not the more disposed to pass beneath the yoke because it is held out to me by the arms of a million men."

King Richard the First is the scornful designation of cartoonists and critics who see a rapid accumulation of power in the White House, an accretion so great as to give the President almost dictatorial powers. This has an historic parallel in the not-too-distant past.

Some City Council Candidates Hire Pros To Run Campaigns

Who is coordinating the campaign efforts of candidates for election to the San Rafael City Council April 17?

Candidate Thomas R. O'Toole, chairman of the San Rafael Planning Commission, has hired Andrea Boggs, a former television news reporter, to do the job.

Mrs. Boggs, a 30-year-old divorcee, is making her second venture into political campaign work. She is credited by some observers with pumping new life in the flagging campaign of Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni last fall.

Arrigoni lost the supervisorial primary to opponent Barbara Boxer in the June primary, then hired Mrs. Boggs to coordinate his efforts and went on to win the election by more than 1,700 votes.

Mrs. Boggs, who has logged seven years of reporting experience on a Sacramento newspaper and two local television stations, was employed to coordinate the O'Toole campaign Feb. 5 and uses O'Toole campaign headquarters at 1208 Fourth Street as operating base.

MRS. BOGGS' TALENTS appear to be matched by 37-year-old Jerry R. Russom, former president of the Mont Marin Homeowners Association, who is chairman of incumbent Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan's election campaign.

Russom is a partner in a San Francisco public relations firm that handles corporate accounts ranging from Union Carbide Co. and birth control pills to restaurants and the milk industry. He is coordinating the Mulryan campaign as a volunteer.

Russom, too, has a wide background in media work, having reported for newspapers in Los Angeles County and edited a Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. publication before joining the public relations firm 11 years ago.

CANDIDATE JACK G. Nixon, chairman of the county planning commission, has formed a steering committee to guide his council campaign. Co-chairmen of the group are Marilyn Crowell, chairman of the Marin County Board of Education, and Donn Nissen, president of the Terra Linda Hmeowners Association.

Mrs. Crowell is past president of the county YMCA and has been held various posts on the Sunny Hills board of directors. Nissen helped found the homeowners association as well as the Terra Linda Boosters Club.

Moretti Will Not Resign Speakership

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti said yesterday he will not surrender the speakship while campaigning for governor next year.

He brushed off as "sour grapes" the suggestion by Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, who will join the Nixon Administration soon, that he step down as speaker when he campaigns for governor.

"I am not going to be an absentee speaker," the Van Nuys legislator told a news conference. "I am not going to shirk the duties of the speakership. That is my primary responsibility."

Moretti said he expects to formally announce his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next December or January and that he will campaign as a candidate for governor "at night and on weekends."

Monagan, himself a former speaker of the Assembly, said in an interview with UPI that "you can't be the speaker and a candidate for governor at the same time and expect to do both successfully. When you become a candidate for governor, you make decisions based on what is good for your campaign — not what is good for the legislature."

But Moretti told newsmen, "I expect to remain speaker until December 1974."

"You have to understand that the last two years have been very, very difficult for Mr. Monagan," Moretti said. "He presided over the demise of the Republican party in the Assembly. He was turned down for president of the University of the Pacific. He wanted that job very badly."

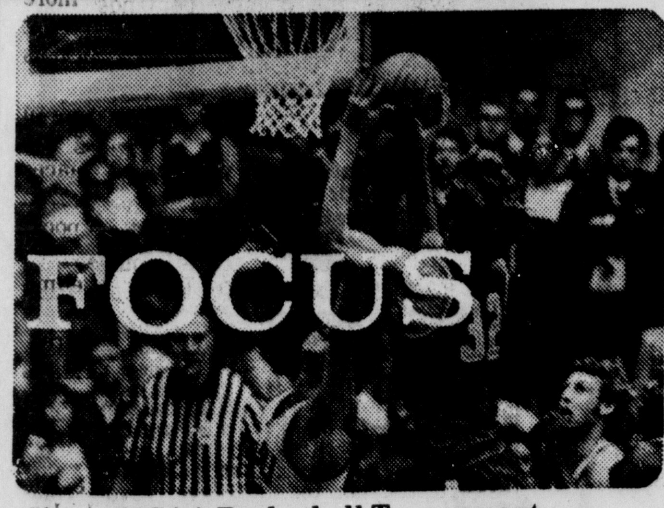
He said Monagan also sought but failed to be named manager of President Nixon's re-election campaign in California last year.

"I guess he was kind of giving a little sour grapes as a parting shot," Moretti said. Monagan is resigning to become a "liaison officer" for the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Rationing Of Gas Off For Summer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) has repeated its statement that gasoline rationing will not be necessary this summer.

"Indications are that gasoline supplies will be tight this summer but we do not anticipate at this time that the shortage will reach a stage which will require the implementation of rationing or enforced allocation," acting OEP Director Darrell M. Trent said Wednesday.



NCAA Basketball Tournament

Play-offs for the 34th annual NCAA basketball tournament continue this week. Immensely popular from its beginnings in 1891, the sport caught on so fast that the AAU organized its first tournament in 1897. Although the original principles of basketball have remained, participants in that contest would scarcely recognize today's game. Basketball used to be so rough that early teams were classified as either lightweight or heavyweight. Courts were irregularly shaped and boundaries were almost non-existent. When the ball went into the stands, the teams would charge among the spectators to fight for it. The first official uniforms, suggested by the Spaulding Company in 1901, were padded.

If Newsmen To Be Subpoenaed, They Should Get Paid For It

WASHINGTON — In all the hearings on protecting newspapermen's sources, no one has mentioned that one of the major reasons the government and defense lawyers are subpoenaing notebooks, tapes and film is that it saves them a lot of money they otherwise would have to spend doing their own investigative work.

The truth of the matter is that newspapermen are a great source of information for lawyers and, thanks to recent court rulings, they may now be used to provide evidence in any kind of a court case.

IF JOURNALISTS are expected to moonlight for Justice Department lawyers as well as district attorneys and defense lawyers, then they should be paid for it.

To hear them tell it, newspapermen consider themselves grossly underpaid and there isn't one of them who wouldn't be willing to earn a few extra bucks even if it meant working for the government or the legal profession on the side.

So rather than fight the subpoena mania that exists in the United States, I think journalists should not only encourage it but charge for their services.

IN THE CASE of the federal government, I believe all newspapermen could be sworn in as deputy federal marshals and be paid $22,500 a year. Then any time the Justice Department wanted any information from one of them, it could just call up and say, "Marshal Jack Anderson, would you please bring in your notebooks for last week."

The beauty of this arrangement is that while newspapermen were doing investigative work for the government, the Justice Department could release hundreds of FBI agents to work on the Watergate case.

District attorneys might not be able to pay newspapermen on a yearly basis, but something could be worked out on piece rates. A reporter could charge $100 for giving up his notebook, $500 for providing tapes, and $5,000 for turning over all unused film. (If it got too profitable, the newspaper publishers might demand some of the action, which I'm sure could be worked out with the guild.)

An appearance before a grand jury might be worth $750, and if the newspaperman's source is convicted he would be entitled to a bonus of $250.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, the area where newspapermen are becoming more in demand as witnesses is in civil suits. Any reporter who has written a story about a suit is now considered fair game by either the plaintiff's attorney or the defense lawyer.

This is where the big money is, and I believe any newspaperman who helps a lawyer in a civil suit should receive 25 per cent of the attorney's fee. There are some lawyers who might want to put journalists on retainer for the year and there would be nothing wrong with that. But if they'd rather pay by the case, this could be arranged at $100 an hour.

You might ask what the government and the civil attorneys are getting for their money. The answer is hard, tough, investigative work that would cost them twice as much if they had to do it themselves.

They are also getting inside information that could swing a case one way or the other. Making newspapermen a branch of the legal profession in this country would be the greatest contribution to giving them the financial security they all desire.

The writers of the Constitution never spelled it out, but I like to think that's what they had in mind when they wrote the First Amendment.

Some City Council Candidates Hire Pros To Run Campaigns

Who is coordinating the campaign efforts of candidates for election to the San Rafael City Council April 17?

Candidate Thomas R. O'Toole, chairman of the San Rafael Planning Commission, has hired Andrea Boggs, a former television news reporter, to do the job.

Mrs. Boggs, a 30-year-old divorcee, is making her second venture into political campaign work. She is credited by some observers with pumping new life in the flagging campaign of Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni last fall.

Arrigoni lost the supervisorial primary to opponent Barbara Boxer in the June primary, then hired Mrs. Boggs to coordinate his efforts and went on to win the election by more than 1,700 votes.

Mrs. Boggs, who has logged seven years of reporting experience on a Sacramento newspaper and two local television stations, was employed to coordinate the O'Toole campaign Feb. 5 and uses O'Toole campaign headquarters at 1208 Fourth Street as operating base.

MRS. BOGGS' TALENTS appear to be matched by 37-year-old Jerry R. Russom, former president of the Mont Marin Homeowners Association, who is chairman of incumbent Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan's election campaign.

Russom is a partner in a San Francisco public relations firm that handles corporate accounts ranging from Union Carbide Co. and birth control pills to restaurants and the milk industry. He is coordinating the Mulryan campaign as a volunteer.

Russom, too, has a wide background in media work, having reported for newspapers in Los Angeles County and edited a Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. publication before joining the public relations firm 11 years ago.

CANDIDATE JACK G. Nixon, chairman of the county planning commission, has formed a steering committee to guide his council campaign. Co-chairmen of the group are Marilyn Crowell, chairman of the Marin County Board of Education, and Donn Nissen, president of the Terra Linda Hmeowners Association.

Mrs. Crowell is past president of the county YMCA and has been held various posts on the Sunny Hills board of directors. Nissen helped found the homeowners association as well as the Terra Linda Boosters Club.

Moretti Will Not Resign Speakership

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti said yesterday he will not surrender the speakship while campaigning for governor next year.

He brushed off as "sour grapes" the suggestion by Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, who will join the Nixon Administration soon, that he step down as speaker when he campaigns for governor.

"I am not going to be an absentee speaker," the Van Nuys legislator told a news conference. "I am not going to shirk the duties of the speakership. That is my primary responsibility."

Moretti said he expects to formally announce his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next December or January and that he will campaign as a candidate for governor "at night and on weekends."

Monagan, himself a former speaker of the Assembly, said in an interview with UPI that "you can't be the speaker and a candidate for governor at the same time and expect to do both successfully. When you become a candidate for governor, you make decisions based on what is good for your campaign — not what is good for the legislature."

"You have to understand that the last two years have been very, very difficult for Mr. Monagan," Moretti said. "He presided over the demise of the Republican party in the Assembly. He was turned down for president of the University of the Pacific. He wanted that job very badly."

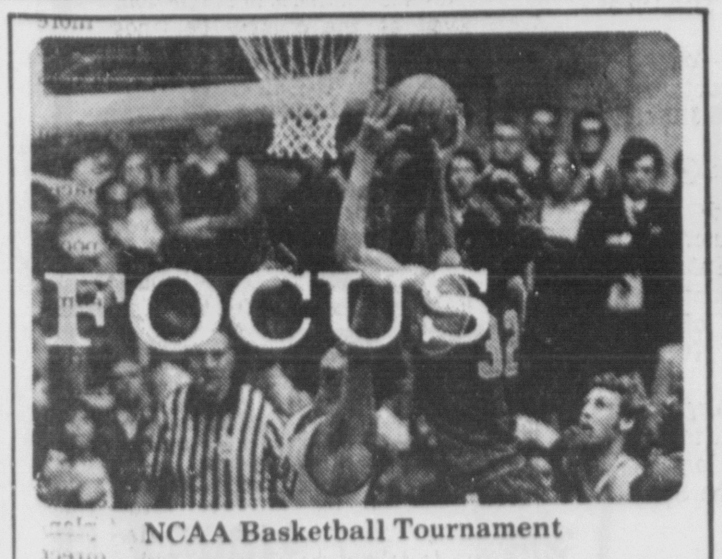
He said Monagan also sought but failed to be named manager of President Nixon's re-election campaign in California last year.

"I guess he was kind of giving a little sour grapes as a parting shot," Moretti said. Monagan is resigning to become a "liaison officer" for the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Rationing Of Gas Off For Summer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) has repeated its statement that gasoline rationing will not be necessary this summer.

"Indications are that gasoline supplies will be tight this summer but we do not anticipate at this time that the shortage will reach a stage which will require the implementation of rationing or enforced allocation," acting OEP Director Darrell M. Trent said Wednesday.



NCAA Basketball Tournament

Play-offs for the 34th annual NCAA basketball tournament continue this week. Immensely popular from its beginnings in 1891, the sport caught on so fast that the AAU organized its first tournament in 1897. Although the original principles of basketball have remained, participants in that contest would scarcely recognize today's game. Basketball used to be so rough that early teams were classified as either lightweight or heavyweight. Courts were irregularly shaped and boundaries were almost non-existent. When the ball went into the stands, the teams would charge among the spectators to fight for it. The first official uniforms, suggested by the Spaulding Company in 1901, were padded.

If Newsmen To Be Subpoenaed, They Should Get Paid For It

WASHINGTON — In all the hearings on protecting newspapermen's sources, no one has mentioned that one of the major reasons the government and defense lawyers are subpoenaing notebooks, tapes and film is that it saves them a lot of money they otherwise would have to spend doing their own investigative work.

The truth of the matter is that newspapermen are a great source of information for lawyers and, thanks to recent court rulings, they may now be used to provide evidence in any kind of a court case.

IF JOURNALISTS are expected to moonlight for Justice Department lawyers as well as district attorneys and defense lawyers, then they should be paid for it.

To hear them tell it, newspapermen consider themselves grossly underpaid and there isn't one of them who wouldn't be willing to earn a few extra bucks even if it meant working for the government or the legal profession on the side.

So rather than fight the subpoena mania that exists in the United States, I think journalists should not only encourage it but charge for their services.

IN THE CASE of the federal government, I believe all newspapermen could be sworn in as deputy federal marshals and be paid $22,500 a year. Then any time the Justice Department wanted any information from one of them, it could just call up and say, "Marshal Jack Anderson, would you please bring in your notebooks for last week."

The beauty of this arrangement is that while newspapermen were doing investigative work for the government, the Justice Department could release hundreds of FBI agents to work on the Watergate case.

District attorneys might not be able to pay newspapermen on a yearly basis, but something could be worked out on piece rates. A reporter could charge $100 for giving up his notebook, $500 for providing tapes, and $5,000 for turning over all unused film. (If it got too profitable, the newspaper publishers might demand some of the action, which I'm sure could be worked out with the guild.)

An appearance before a grand jury might be worth $750, and if the newspaperman's source is convicted he would be entitled to a bonus of $250.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, the area where newspapermen are becoming more in demand as witnesses is in civil suits. Any reporter who has written a story about a suit is now considered fair game by either the plaintiff's attorney or the defense lawyer.

This is where the big money is, and I believe any newspaperman who helps a lawyer in a civil suit should receive 25 per cent of the attorney's fee. There are some lawyers who might want to put journalists on retainer for the year and there would be nothing wrong with that. But if they'd rather pay by the case, this could be arranged at $100 an hour.

You might ask what the government and the civil attorneys are getting for their money. The answer is hard, tough, investigative work that would cost them twice as much if they had to do it themselves.

They are also getting inside information that could swing a case one way or the other. Making newspapermen a branch of the legal profession in this country would be the greatest contribution to giving them the financial security they all desire.

The writers of the Constitution never spelled it out, but I like to think that's what they had in mind when they wrote the First Amendment.

"That was her first thought, and her first move was to offer it....But Granny (Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt) held ironclad views about noblesse oblige and broken homes. Roosevelt said his father could not support two homes financially and divorce would have been political suicide in those days. So he gave up Miss Mercer, and the senior Mrs. Roosevelt continued to lavish money on her son.

"Mother, on second thought, preferred that choice," Roosevelt wrote. "She was willing to have him as a partner in public life, but never again as husband."

Roosevelt said he wrote the book, "An Untold Story: The Roosevelts of Hyde Park," because his parents, as described by history, "are scarcely recognizable to me....These legendary beings, immune to frailty and human passion are not the father we children loved, nor the mother we respected."

Burton Hits Reagan Tax Limit Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Democratic chairman charged yesterday that Gov. Ronald Reagan's plan to call a special statewide election on his tax limitation proposal represents a $15 million taxpayers' contribution to his presidential campaign.

Assemblyman John L. Burton of San Francisco was joined by two other powerful Democrats—Speaker Bob Moretti of Van Nuys and Assembly Majority Floor Leader Jack R. Fenton of Montebello—in accusing Reagan of using his tax program to run for the White House in 1976.

Reagan's press secretary, Edwin J. Gray, termed the charge "absolutely and completely false."

Reagan, who announced Tuesday he will not run for the Senate in 1974 but is undecided about a 1976 presidential bid, has proposed a long-range tax limitation program he says would reduce taxes by 20 per cent during the next 15 years.

For the plan to be amended into the state constitution as Reagan wants, it must be placed on a statewide ballot and approved by the voters. Reagan has concided the legislature probably won't do that, so he is preparing to sponsor his own initiative drive to qualify the measure for a statewide election in November.

Democrats estimated that election will cost taxpayers about $15 million.

"It is becoming increasingly obvious that this so-called tax limitation initiative is Ronald Reagan's first grandstanding plan in his campaign for the presidency," Burton said in a prepared statement.

"The costs of this special election can accurately be characterized as a public tax contribution to that national political campaign."

At a news conference, Moretti said Reagan "is using this whole tax proposal as a campaign tactic for president."

Moretti charged that Reagan's plan would leave state government with no ability to respond to emergency situations.

"I think it's impossible for us to accept," Moretti said, speaking for the Assembly. "But, we're going to give it fair treatment and full hearings."

Fenton, in a prepared statement, said Reagan should consolidate his initiative with the June, 1974 primary ballot. Costs then would be "insignificant," he said.

"It's obvious the governor is being inconsistent in advocating a $15 million needless expenditure of the taxpayers' money to promote a 'Revenue Control and Tax Reduction Plan," said Fenton.

Pay Protested By X-Ray Techs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — 'Twenty of San Francisco General Hospital's 40 x-ray technicians called in sick Wednesday to protest their pay was too law.

Officials said their monthly pay was $718-$871 while the salary in one private hospital was $970-$1,034.

The county Board of Supervisors this week voted a 3 ½ per cent pay hike for the protesting technicians.

Hospital Administrator Charles Monadero said he was "completely in sympathy" with the technicians but pointed out that only the board had the power to set salaries.

Pat Nixon's New Fashion Image

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pat Nixon becomes 61 this week with a "new" fashion image that belies the passing years.

Those who see the First Lady often say that she is slimmer, more assured and chic in her clothes choices, that her hairdo is more flattering and that she's also wearing a more outgoing personality than the Pat who came to Washington, D.C., January 20, 1953, as wife of a vicepresident. She had already been there before, of course, as wife of a representative and senator.

Helen Thomas, the UPI's White House correspondent, calls Mrs. Nixon "the best groomed First Lady I've seen. She's happy and it shows...she likes it when polls rate her the most admired woman..."

MRS. NIXON obviously is more relaxed now that all that campaigning in congressional, vice-presidential and presidential races is behind.

She keeps a size 8-10 figure, not from dieting but just from care in what she eats. She tends to "pick" at food, taking only a few bites, at the numerous banquets and lunches that are part of a First Lady's lifestyle.

One of the most becoming arrangements was for the Jan. 20 inaugural this year when her hair stylist, Rita DeSantis, pulled it back, making it look almost like a French twist although the First Lady's hair is not that long.

Miss DeSantis, who was with the Elizabeth Arden salon in Washington and had been Mrs. Nixon's hairdresser for years, now has joined the First Lady's staff as personal secretary-aide and of course still hairdresser. She accompanied the First Lady on the presidential trips to Peking and Moscow.

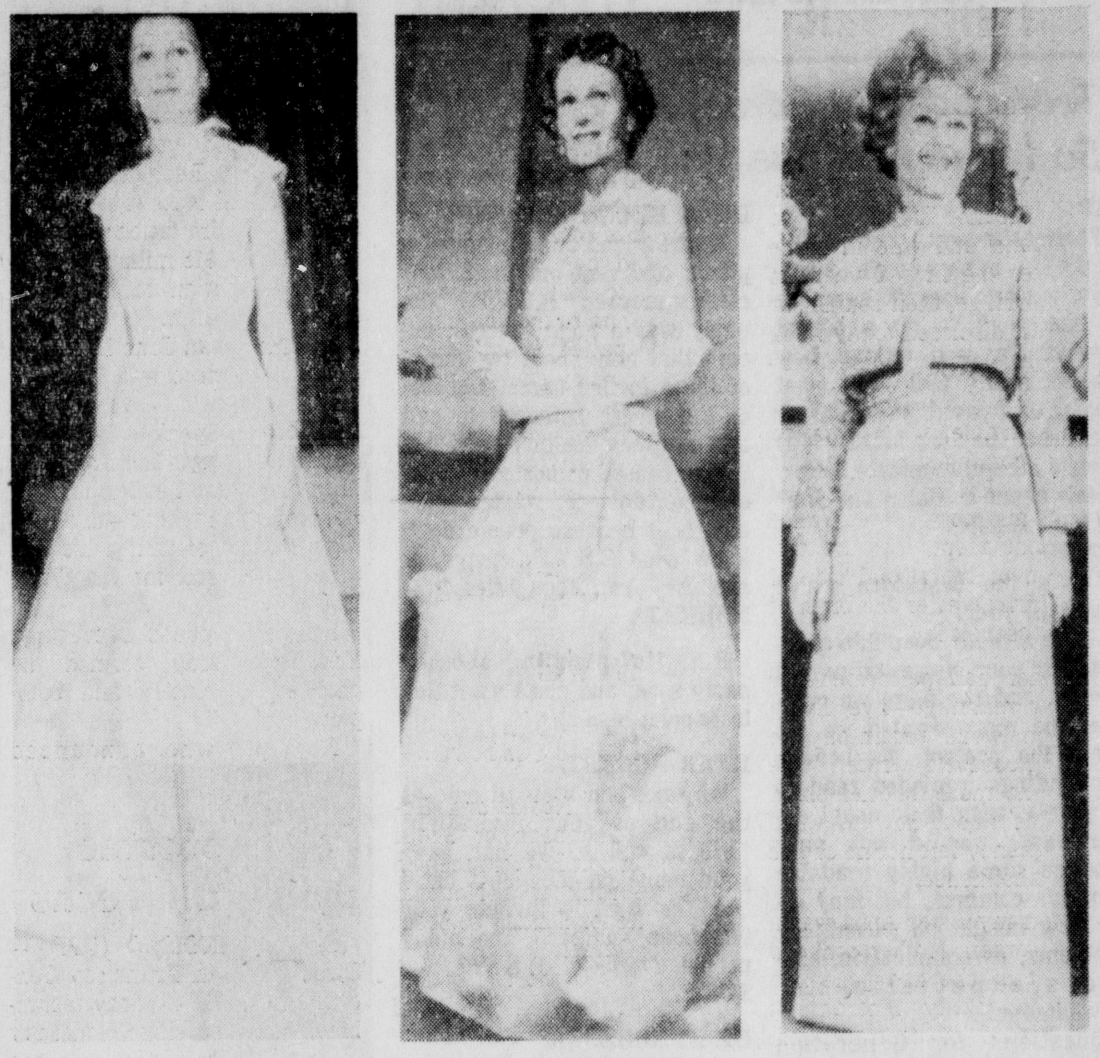
THE COLOR of Mrs. Nixon's hair has changed little, although Miss Thomas says it appears to her to be lighter blonde and with fewer reddish tones.

Remembering other first ladies, Miss Thomas recalled that Lady Bird Johnson was always well-turned out but seemed to care more about national issues than her clothes image. And Jacqueline Kennedy, who looked downright regal for evening, wore her hair in an informal style for day that was more apt to show up a bit windblown than bandbox-groomed.

Undoubtedly, the American designers from whom Mrs. Nixon buys her clothes and the advice of Claire Treyz have been an influence. Mrs. Treyz, with long experience in the fashion business, offers guidance and helps Mrs. Nixon shop.

THE FIRST Lady comes to New York occasionally, stays usually at the Waldorf, and designers take clothes to the hotel for her perusal. Among the designers are Adele Simpson, Jeremy Wren, Geoffrey Beene, and furrier Leo Ritter. Favorite daytime costumes tend to be two-piece suits or soft dresses, often with coordinated coats.

As for the actual observance of her birthday, Mrs. Nixon will celebrate her 61st a day late—on St. Patrick's day, as has been her custom in recent years. There'll be a party at the White House and entertainment.



FIRST FAMILY watchers agree that Patricia Nixon is slimmer, more chic in her clothes choices, wears a more flattering hairdo and presents a warmer personality than when she came to Washington, D.C. in 1952. Here are the inaugural ball gowns she wore in 1953, 1957 and 1969.

JEAN OLLER spends most of her days managing the Belvedere Tennis Club on Tiburon Boulevard. She looks forward to the busy summer when some 170 families use the tennis courts, pool and snack bar. She first came to Belvedere in 1939.

Belvedere Tennis Club's Manager Happy With Job

By PAT BALMES

"Managing the Belvedere Tennis Club is just like running a home, keeping it neat and tidy," said Mrs. Richard Oller Jr. of Belvedere.

Jean Oller replaced Les McNary as club manager eight months ago at the two-story club on Tiburon Boulevard which affords a view from its deck of tennis courts, swimming pool and beyond to Richardson Bay.

The manager is on deck working Wednesdays through Sundays and on holidays to help its 400 members enjoy their club. She aims to create good will as she answers telephone calls, deals with complaints, keeps the club's books and maintains household order.

The club has been quiet during the rainy season, Mrs. Oller said, but in the summer when its 170 families use the club "all day, every day" she directs a troop of young people maintaining tennis courts, pool and grounds.

"WHEN WE are in full swing the snack bar and pool are open. Everybody is here; every child comes to spend the day," she said adding that maintenance then becomes a problem. The pool man, linen man and ice cream man come more often.

In managing any kind of club the board is your boss, Mrs. Oller explained. "I am not in a position of authority, but do the bidding of the board," she said.

Committees, which run the tennis, pool and social programs, tell her what they would like done, she said.

"It's a nice job and a very busy one," Mrs. Oller said as she lead the way upstairs to the club's second floor where small tables are arranged for bridge and lunch, the coffee pot is always on and the club cat, Double Fault, snoozes on a couch.

Over coffee, the long-time Belvedere resident said she would like to play tennis but "it would be terribly embarrassing because all the children on the courts would laugh." Instead she bikes on the new Tiburon bike path and swims at the club pool.

JEAN OLLER came to Belvedere in 1939 "when there was no Belvedere Lagoon" with her mother, Mrs. Bernard Johnston, and her two sisters, Mrs. Jack Welisch and Mrs. Margaret Wilson. All four women are still Belvedere residents.

Mrs. Oller and her husband lived in New York for 13 years, returning to Belvedere six years ago. Her daughters are Carolyn, 21, a junior at the University of California at Berkeley and Betsy, 18, a freshman at University of Oregon.

Previous to becoming club manager, Mrs. Oller, who is a widow, was employed in San Francisco as a secretary. Now she enjoys a short commute between her Belvedere Island home and the tennis club.

Small Dinners

The preference among young marrieds to entertain with small, elegant dinners or informal, casual, as-you-are buffets will give the new bride plenty of practice as a hostess.

Four Settings For A Starter

Budgets dictate the quantity of fine china and silver and crystal the new bride stores in her first apartment or home. At the minimum there ought to be four place settings of each.

When shopping for crystal, it is fashionable for the bride to put the crystal through a few tests.

She should see that the bowls and stems of glasses hve uniform shape and balance. She holds the crystal to the light, making sure it does not have within waves or bubbles. She taps it gently with a fingernail. If the crystal doesn't give off a clear, bell-like ring she knows it isn't finc quality.

Among the designers are Adele Simpson, Jeremy Wren, Geoffrey Beene, and furrier Leo Ritter. Favorite daytime costumes tend to be two-piece suits or soft dresses, often with coordinated coats.

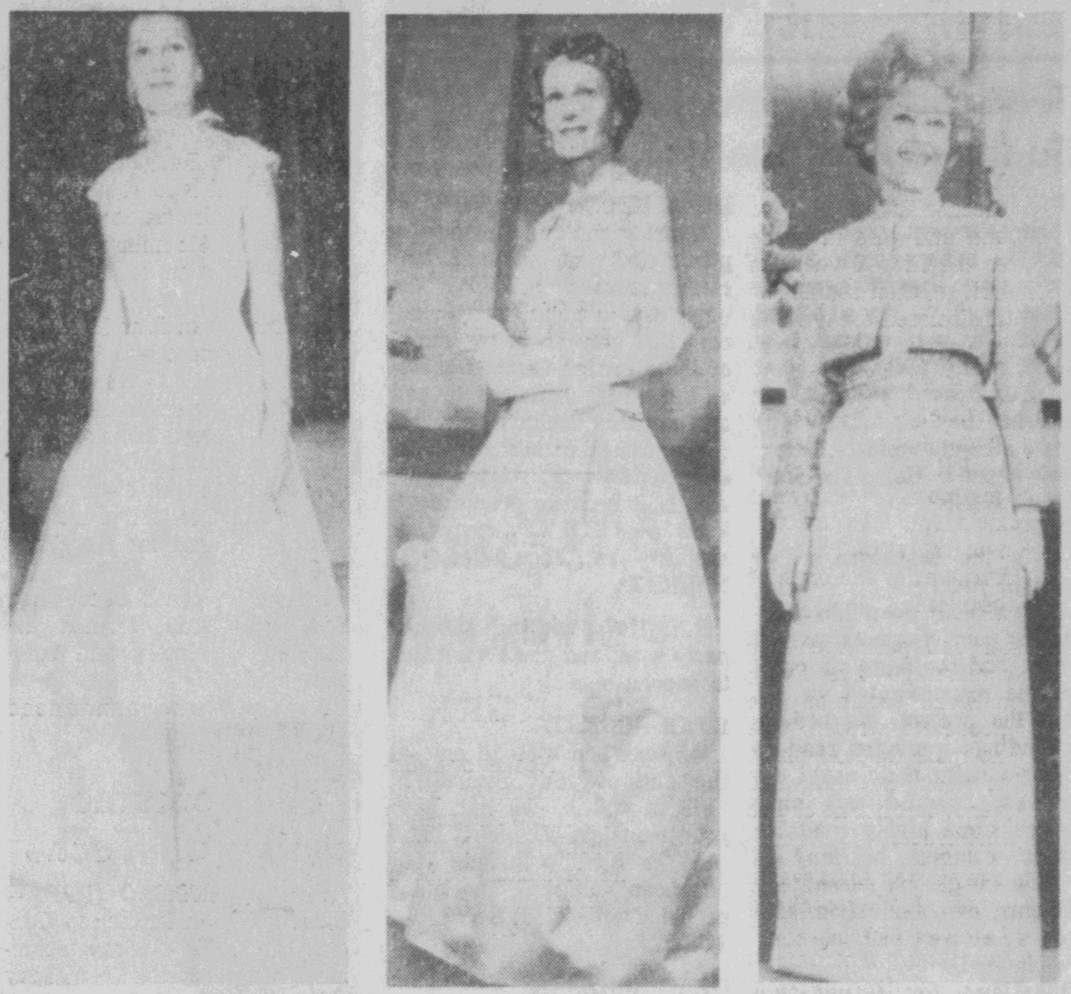
As for the actual observance of her birthday, Mrs. Nixon will celebrate her 61st a day late— on St. Patrick's day, as has been her custom in recent years. There'll be a party at the White House and entertainment.



FIRST FAMILY watchers agree that Patricia Nixon is slimmer, more chic in her clothes choices, wears a more flattering hairdo and presents a warmer personality than when she came to Washington, D.C. in 1952. Here are the inaugural ball gowns she wore in 1953, 1957 and 1969.

PATRICIA NIXON is observing her 61st birthday with a party Saturday. Her "new" First Lady fashion image is trimmer and her manner more assured, according to White House correspondent Helen Thomas. She is shown here in various periods since she arrived on the Washington, D.C. scene in 1952 as the wife of a vice president.

JEAN OLLER spends most of her days managing the Belvedere Tennis Club on Tiburon Boulevard. She looks forward to the busy summer when some 170 families use the tennis courts, pool and snack bar. She first came to Belvedere in 1939.

Belvedere Tennis Club's Manager Happy With Job

By PAT BALMES

"Managing the Belvedere Tennis Club is just like running a home, keeping it neat and tidy," said Mrs. Richard Oller Jr. of Belvedere.

Jean Oller replaced Les McNary as club manager eight months ago at the two-story club on Tiburon Boulevard which affords a view from its deck of tennis courts, swimming pool and beyond to Richardson Bay.

The manager is on deck working Wednesdays through Sundays and on holidays to help its 400 members enjoy their club. She aims to create good will as she answers telephone calls, deals with complaints, keeps the club's books and maintains household order.

The club has been quiet during the rainy season, Mrs. Oller said, but in the summer when its 170 families use the club "all day, every day" she directs a troop of young people maintaining tennis courts, pool and grounds.

"WHEN WE are in full swing the snack bar and pool are open. Everybody is here; every child comes to spend the day," she said adding that maintenance then becomes a problem. The pool man, linen man and ice cream man come more often.

In managing any kind of club the board is your boss, Mrs. Oller explained. "I am not in a position of authority, but do the bidding of the board," she said.

Committees, which run the tennis, pool and social programs, tell her what they would like done, she said.

"It's a nice job and a very busy one," Mrs. Oller said as she lead the way upstairs to the club's second floor where small tables are arranged for bridge and lunch, the coffee pot is always on and the club cat, Double Fault, snoozes on a couch.

Over coffee, the long-time Belvedere resident said she would like to play tennis but "it would be terribly embarrassing because all the children on the courts would laugh." Instead she bikes on the new Tiburon bike path and swims at the club pool.

JEAN OLLER came to Belvedere in 1939 "when there was no Belvedere Lagoon" with her mother, Mrs. Bernard Johnston, and her two sisters, Mrs. Jack Welisch and Mrs. Margaret Wilson. All four women are still Belvedere residents.

Mrs. Oller and her husband lived in New York for 13 years, returning to Belvedere six years ago. Her daughters are Carolyn, 21, a junior at the University of California at Berkeley and Betsy, 18, a freshman at University of Oregon.

Previous to becoming club manager, Mrs. Oller, who is a widow, was employed in San Francisco as a secretary. Now she enjoys a short commute between her Belvedere Island home and the tennis club.

Small Dinners

The preference among young marrieds to entertain with small, elegant dinners or informal, casual, as-you-are buffets will give the new bride plenty of practice as a hostess.

Four Settings For A Starter

Budgets dictate the quantity of fine china and silver and crystal the new bride stores in her first apartment or home. At the minimum there ought to be four place settings of each.

When shopping for crystal, it is fashionable for the bride to put the crystal through a few tests.

She should see that the bowls and stems of glasses hve uniform shape and balance. She holds the crystal to the light, making sure it does not have within waves or bubbles. She taps it gently with a fingernail. If the crystal doesn't give off a clear, bell-like ring she knows it isn't fine quality.

RAP:

Teen surveys. . .sex surveys. . .marriage surveys. . .why doesn't someone — like you? — do a parent survey? Maybe if we knew how parents really feel —not what they're supposed to think or even what they say to their kids — we'd all communicate better.

How about it, Helen and Sue? — THE TEENS

TEENS:

That's the best idea we've heard all year!

We're already deep into questions for your suggested parent survey, and the more we compile, the more excited we get about the project. We believe our findings (provided readers cooperate with their usual enthusiasm) should not only produce some highly readable summer columns, but may offer new insight on parent-teen problems, communication, attitudes, expectations. . . whatever.

Questions for Generation Rap's "Parent Survey" will be published next week.

Note to parents of young people under 20: If you'd like to get started on your questionnaire early, please send a long, stamped self-addressed envelope to Helen and Sue Bottel, care of the Independent-Journal. I LOST 600 POUNDS

THE SAME 10 POUNDS 60 TIMES.
DIETS? I'VE TRIED THEM ALL.

1. I lost weight so slowly, I got discouraged & quit.
2. I had weird cravings. I would have killed for a hot Fudge Sundae!
3. One slip and my will power disappeared. The result? An eating orgy until I gained back everything I lost.
4. Ten days on a diet, and I became too cranky and irritable to live with.
5. I became depressed, and after each failure, hated myself a little bit more.
6. I found I couldn't tolerate hunger, it was no fun to starve.

DOES THIS SOUND LIKE YOU?

Well I have solved all these problems. After 4 years of research, I developed a natural method of losing weight, and lost 55 lbs. in 2½ months. NO hunger! NO depression! NO cravings! ½ lb. to 1½ lbs. a day. I've shared this method with hundreds. I'll share it with you. If you're interested call us or write and we'll send you a tape cassette that tells the whole story. P.S. I'm planning another party soon, and don't want this to happen again.

DEAR ROBERTA:

Why not add a small note at the end of your invitation, "Please call so we can have your name on the guest list." (And be sure to include your telephone number.) Too many people overlook "R.S.V.P." — SUE

DEAR ROBERTA:

. . .Especially teen-agers who aren't high on etiquette.

If you use "R.S.V.P." then add, "Please call. . .(your number) —and underline it! — HELEN

RAP:

Mom is always telling my three sisters that if they get pregnant she'll kill them. She says if I get a girl pregnant, she'll kill me.

I'm 17, my sisters are 9, 11 and 15.

Our problem is, Mom's boyfriend comes over almost every night, and they don't just sit and talk! (She and Dad are divorced.) The other night she took the belt to my littlest sister just because she was going into the bathroom — next to the living room — while the boyfriend was making time.

With an example like that, will my sisters figure anything's okay so long as you don't get caught? — TROUBLED

TROUBLED:

. . .Not if you explain to them that just because a parent does something, this doesn't necessarily mean it's right. . .and sometimes there's a big difference between adult actions and how adults want their kids to act. — SUE

DEAR TROUBLED:

In other words, you may have to take the role of parent for awhile. Maybe your mother will listen to a reasonable discussion when she realizes you're truly concerned — not just resentful. — HELEN

I LOST 600 POUNDS
THE SAME 10 POUNDS 60 TIMES.
DIETS? I'VE TRIED THEM ALL.

1. I lost weight so slowly, I got discouraged & quit.
2. I had weird cravings. I would have killed for a hot Fudge Sundae!
3. One slip and my will power disappeared. The result? An eating orgy until I gained back everything I lost.
4. Ten days on a diet, and I became too cranky and irritable to live with.
5. I became depressed, and after each failure, hated myself a little bit more.
6. I found I couldn't tolerate hunger, it was no fun to starve.

DOES THIS SOUND LIKE YOU?

Well I have solved all these problems. After 4 years of research, I developed a natural method of losing weight, and lost 55 lbs. in 2½ months. NO hunger! NO depression! NO cravings! ½ lb. to 1½ lbs. a day. I've shared this method with hundreds. I'll share it with you. If you're interested call us or write and we'll send you a tape cassette that tells the whole story. If you don't have a tape player or can't borrow one call for an appointment and come in and listen to it.

Winning Couple Will Go Italian

By MOLLY MARIN

When Faith and Hugo Rinaldi placed the winning bid for a gourmet dinner to be cooked and served in their San Rafael home, at the Marin Symphony Association auction in October the "caterers", Mr. and Mrs. Mel Croner and Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Mednick, gave them their choice of Italian, French or Greek cuisine.

The Rinaldis chose Italian food, and that is what Judy Croner and Ellie Mednick have been cooking all week. Joined by their husbands Saturday night they will play it straight, according to Mrs. Mednick, bartending, cooking, waiting on tables and washing dishes in starched white aprons and waiters' jackets.

Mmes. Croner and Mednick are members of the Marin Symphony Association board of directors. The Rinaldis — he is director of music for the San Rafael City Schools and conductor of the Marin Symphony's Youth Orchestra, and she is head of the music department at San Domenico School - have invited friends from the music world, Mr. and Mrs. Lev Shorr and Dr. and Mrs. Albert Renna, all of San Francisco, and Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gillin of Bakersfield, to the dinner.

The menu will include bagna cauda (vegetables in fondue), marinated asparagus with procuitto, sole poached in white wine, veal piccata, fruits and cheeses and Ellie Mednick's brandy cookies, from an old family recipe which she had published last May in "Gourmet" magazine.

"The sole really isn't authentic Italian," Mrs. Mednick said, "but Mrs. Rinaldi wanted a fish course."

VIRGINIA GANNON of San Francisco and Guido L. Ostaggi of San Anselmo were married Feb. 17 in Minden, Nev., and are living in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Kay Frank of San Francisco and Henry Feldman of San Anselmo accompanied the couple to Minden.

Mrs. Ostaggi is employed as a legal secretary in San Francisco and her husband, a past commander of the American Legion Post in San Anselmo, is a retired building contractor.

MRS. JOSEPH Barton of Ross has planned a wine tour and picnic on Sunday at R. Mondavi Winery in Napa for 25 Royal Shakespeare Company members and 15 Friends of American Conservatory Theatre.

The Royal Shakespeare cast is appearing in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Geary Theater in San Francisco as part of ACT's season. Many Marin Friends of ACT are playing host to the visiting troupe, including Dr. and Mrs. Edward McCrum of Kentfield and Messrs. and Mmes. Adolph Mueller II of Belvedere, Richard Canady of Tiburon and Barton.

BRIG. GEN. and Mrs. Jack Gibbs of the Marin Country Club Estates have returned from a two-months stay in Los Mochis, Mexico, where General Gibbs enjoyed fishing and hunting. On their return to Novato, they stopped at Coronado Cays near San Diego and visited General Gibbs sister, Mrs. Charles Hensley.

TWENTY MULTIPLE Sclerosis patients in Marin were hosted at a luncheon Tuesday at the home of Mrs. H. Morgan Noble in Belvedere. Assisting Mrs. Noble serving the luncheon were Kenneth Niles of Corte Madera, E. H. Barton and Richard Boesel, both of Belvedere, Mervyn Wehe of Tiburon and Harris F. Simmonds of Kentfield.

A BRIDAL shower was held for Terry Mullaly at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Jack Haley in Novato on Tuesday. The hostess was Mrs. Vartan Hovsepian.

Terry, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, will be married to Billy Busig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Busig, all of Novato, on Saturday.

New Rainwear For Youngsters

Most adults don't like dull, drab rainwear and children like it less. This spring, cheerful, sporty styles will be seen on children of all ages. Nylon, vinyl, cotton poplin, patent leather and polyester are all part of the rain/all-weather cover-up scene.

Short jackets and above-the-knee-length coats are very popular as well as the longer midi coat, since all of these go well with skirts or pants.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

By MOLLY MARIN

When Faith and Hugo Rinaldi placed the winning bid for a gourmet dinner to be cooked and served in their San Rafael home, at the Marin Symphony Association auction in October the "caterers", Mr. and Mrs. Mel Croner and Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Mednick, gave them their choice of Italian, French or Greek cuisine.

The Rinaldis chose Italian food, and that is what Judy Croner and Ellie Mednick have been cooking all week. Joined by their husbands Saturday night they will play it straight, according to Mrs. Mednick, bartending, cooking, waiting on tables and washing dishes in starched white aprons and waiters' jackets.

Mmes. Croner and Mednick are members of the Marin Symphony Association board of directors. The Rinaldis — he is director of music for the San Rafael City Schools and conductor of the Marin Symphony's Youth Orchestra, and she is head of the music department at San Domenico School - have invited friends from the music world, Mr. and Mrs. Lev Shorr and Dr. and Mrs. Albert Renna, all of San Francisco, and Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gillin of Bakersfield, to the dinner.

The menu will include bagna cauda (vegetables in fondue), marinated asparagus with procuitto, sole poached in white wine, veal piccata, fruits and cheeses and Ellie Mednick's brandy cookies, from an old family recipe which she had published last May in "Gourmet" magazine.

"The sole really isn't authentic Italian," Mrs. Mednick said, "but Mrs. Rinaldi wanted a fish course."

VIRGINIA GANNON of San Francisco and Guido L. Ostaggi of San Anselmo were married Feb. 17 in Minden, Nev., and are living in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Kay Frank of San Francisco and Henry Feldman of San Anselmo accompanied the couple to Minden.

Mrs. Ostaggi is employed as a legal secretary in San Francisco and her husband, a past commander of the American Legion Post in San Anselmo, is a retired building contractor.

MRS. JOSEPH Barton of Ross has planned a wine tour and picnic on Sunday at R. Mondavi Winery in Napa for 25 Royal Shakespeare Company members and 15 Friends of American Conservatory Theatre.

The Royal Shakespeare cast is appearing in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Geary Theater in San Francisco as part of ACT's season. Many Marin Friends of ACT are playing host to the visiting troupe, including Dr. and Mrs. Edward McCrum of Kentfield and Messrs. and Mmes. Adolph Mueller II of Belvedere, Richard Canady of Tiburon and Barton.

BRIG. GEN. and Mrs. Jack Gibbs of the Marin Country Club Estates have returned from a two-months stay in Los Mochis, Mexico, where General Gibbs enjoyed fishing and hunting. On their return to Novato, they stopped at Coronado Cays near San Diego and visited General Gibbs sister, Mrs. Charles Hensley.

TWENTY MULTIPLE Sclerosis patients in Marin were hosted at a luncheon Tuesday at the home of Mrs. H. Morgan Noble in Belvedere. Assisting Mrs. Noble serving the luncheon were Kenneth Niles of Corte Madera, E. H. Barton and Richard Boesel, both of Belvedere, Mervyn Wehe of Tiburon and Harris F. Simmonds of Kentfield.

A BRIDAL shower was held for Terry Mullaly at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Jack Haley in Novato on Tuesday. The hostess was Mrs. Vartan Hovsepian.

Terry, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, will be married to Billy Busig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Busig, all of Novato, on Saturday.

New Rainwear For Youngsters

Most adults don't like dull, drab rainwear and children like it less. This spring, cheerful, sporty styles will be seen on children of all ages. Nylon, vinyl, cotton poplin, patent leather and polyester are all part of the rain/all-weather cover-up scene.

Short jackets and above-the-knee-length coats are very popular as well as the longer midi coat, since all of these go well with skirts or pants.

LOW CLUB

West opened the nine of clubs, and South saw that he might eventually have to stake his grand slam on a finesse in hearts. Since experts don't like to depend on a finesse if anything better can be turned up, South tried to establish one of dummy's diamonds.

In order to establish a diamond, it was necessary to reach dummy five times — four times to ruff diamonds, and the fifth time to cash the last diamond. The five entries to dummy were there, but were hidden unless you looked closely.

PLAY OF TRUMPS

South wn the first trick with the ace of clubs and led a low trump to dummy's eight. He ruffed a low diamond with an honor and led a second low trump to dummy. This allowed him to ruff another low diamond.

South next led the ten of clubs to dummy's jack and ruffed a third diamond. Next came the queen of clubs to dummy's king, and he ruffed a fourth diamond.

OPPONENTS OUT

By this time the opponents were out of clubs and diamonds. South could lead his four of clubs to dummy's five. This landed him in dummy to cash the last diamond, assuring the grand slam.

It's worth noticing how South managed to reach the dummy three times with clubs. This kind of entry management may be useful to you in some difficult hand of your own.

ANSWER: Bid two no-trump, the "negative" response.

You plan to raise hearts vigorously at your next turn, but your first duty is to deny high-card strength.

Valenti Pleads To Firearms Charge

A grand jury indicted Valenti last October after federal agents said they raided his house shortly after he moved here from New York and found four guns. Valenti, currently under a one year sentence for contempt of court in Rochester, N. Y., will be sentenced Monday. He could receive up to five years.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Computer birthdaze! Our machine broke down and got the ages mixed up. Can you guess their ages today?

1. HARRY JAMES, trumpet king and band leader, 47 or 57 today, was rejected by Lawrence Welk as a young musician because he played "too loud." But he became a swinger anyway, starting his own "Music Mkers" in 1939 and recording hits like "You Made Me Love You" and giving Frank Sinatra a boost with his arrangement of "All or Nothing at All."

2. NORM VAN BROCKLIN is that All-American quarterback from Oregon who led the "Ducks" to the Cotton Bowl. Today he celebrates another birthday, reaching 47 or 57. He's not too old to keep active in pro ball, caoching for a time with the Minnesota "Vikings" and then the Atlanta "Falcons." In 1951 he set a National Football League record for most yardage gained by passing in a single game — 554!

3. MacDONALD CARY, Hollywood and New York actor, reaches 59 or 69 today. He grew up in Sioux City, Iowa, then sought his fortune on the Brodaway stage, finally starring opposite Gertrude Lawrence in the play, "Lady in the Dark." He has appeared in a dozen movies and is signed now by TV, emoting daily on the soap opera, "Days of Our Lives."

4. GEORGE BRENT, 59 or 69, was born n Dublin, Ireland years ago but hardly showed a trace of brogue in his long career as one of Hollywood's leading men. Educated at Dublin University, he acquired the mild manners which made him a good doctor for Bette Davis in "Dark Victory," a southern squire with her in "Jezebel," and just a funny fellow opposite her in "Golden Arrow."

ANSWERS: 1 — Harry James, 57; 2 — Norm Van Brocklin, 47; 3 — MacDonald Carey, 59; 4 — George Brent, 69.

Computer birthdaze! Our machine broke down and got the ages mixed up. Can you guess their ages today?

1. HARRY JAMES, trumpet king and band leader, 47 or 57 today, was rejected by Lawrence Welk as a young musician because he played "too loud." But he became a swinger anyway, starting his own "Music Mkers" in 1939 and recording hits like "You Made Me Love You" and giving Frank Sinatra a boost with his arrangement of "All or Nothing at All."

2. NORM VAN BROCKLIN is that All-American quarterback from Oregon who led the "Ducks" to the Cotton Bowl. Today he celebrates another birthday, reaching 47 or 57. He's not too old to keep active in pro ball, caoching for a time with the Minnesota "Vikings" and then the Atlanta "Falcons." In 1951 he set a National Football League record for most yardage gained by passing in a single game — 554!

3. MacDONALD CARY, Hollywood and New York actor, reaches 59 or 69 today. He grew up in Sioux City, Iowa, then sought his fortune on the Brodaway stage, finally starring opposite Gertrude Lawrence in the play, "Lady in the Dark." He has appeared in a dozen movies and is signed now by TV, emoting daily on the soap opera, "Days of Our Lives."

4. GEORGE BRENT, 59 or 69, was born n Dublin, Ireland years ago but hardly showed a trace of brogue in his long career as one of Hollywood's leading men. Educated at Dublin University, he acquired the mild manners which made him a good doctor for Bette Davis in "Dark Victory," a southern squire with her in "Jezebel," and just a funny fellow opposite her in "Golden Arrow."

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

South's Hidden Entries Assure A Grand Slam That Is Needed

Today's hand was played many years ago in a rubber bridge tournament. North and South were pretty far behind, and only a grand slam could help them. This accounts for their ambitious bidding:

South dealer

NORTH

♡ Q 10

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
7 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — ♣ 9

LOW CLUB

West opened the nine of clubs, and South saw that he might eventually have to stake his grand slam on a finesse in hearts. Since experts don't like to depend on a finesse if anything better can be turned up, South tried to establish one of dummy's diamonds.

In order to establish a diamond, it was necessary to reach dummy five times — four times to ruff diamonds, and the fifth time to cash the last diamond. The five entries to dummy were there, but were hidden unless you looked closely.

PLAY OF TRUMPS

South wn the first trick with the ace of clubs and led a low trump to dummy's eight. He ruffed a low diamond with an honor and led a second low trump to dummy. This allowed him to ruff another low diamond.

South next led the ten of clubs to dummy's jack and ruffed a third diamond. Next came the queen of clubs to dummy's king, and he ruffed a fourth diamond.

OPPONENTS OUT

By this time the opponents were out of clubs and diamonds. South could lead his four of clubs to dummy's five. This landed him in dummy to cash the last diamond, assuring the grand slam.

It's worth noticing how South managed to reach the dummy three times with clubs. This kind of entry management may be useful to you in some difficult hand of your own.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids two hearts (forcing to game). The next player passes, and you hold:

♠- 6 4
♥- K 7 6 3 2
♦- Q 7 6 2
♣- 9 6

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two no-trump, the "negative" response.

You plan to raise hearts vigorously at your next turn, but your first duty is to deny high-card strength.

Valenti Pleads To Firearms Charge

A grand jury indicted Valenti last October after federal agents said they raided his house shortly after he moved here from New York and found four guns. Valenti, currently under a one year sentence for contempt of court in Rochester, N. Y., will be sentenced Monday. He could receive up to five years.

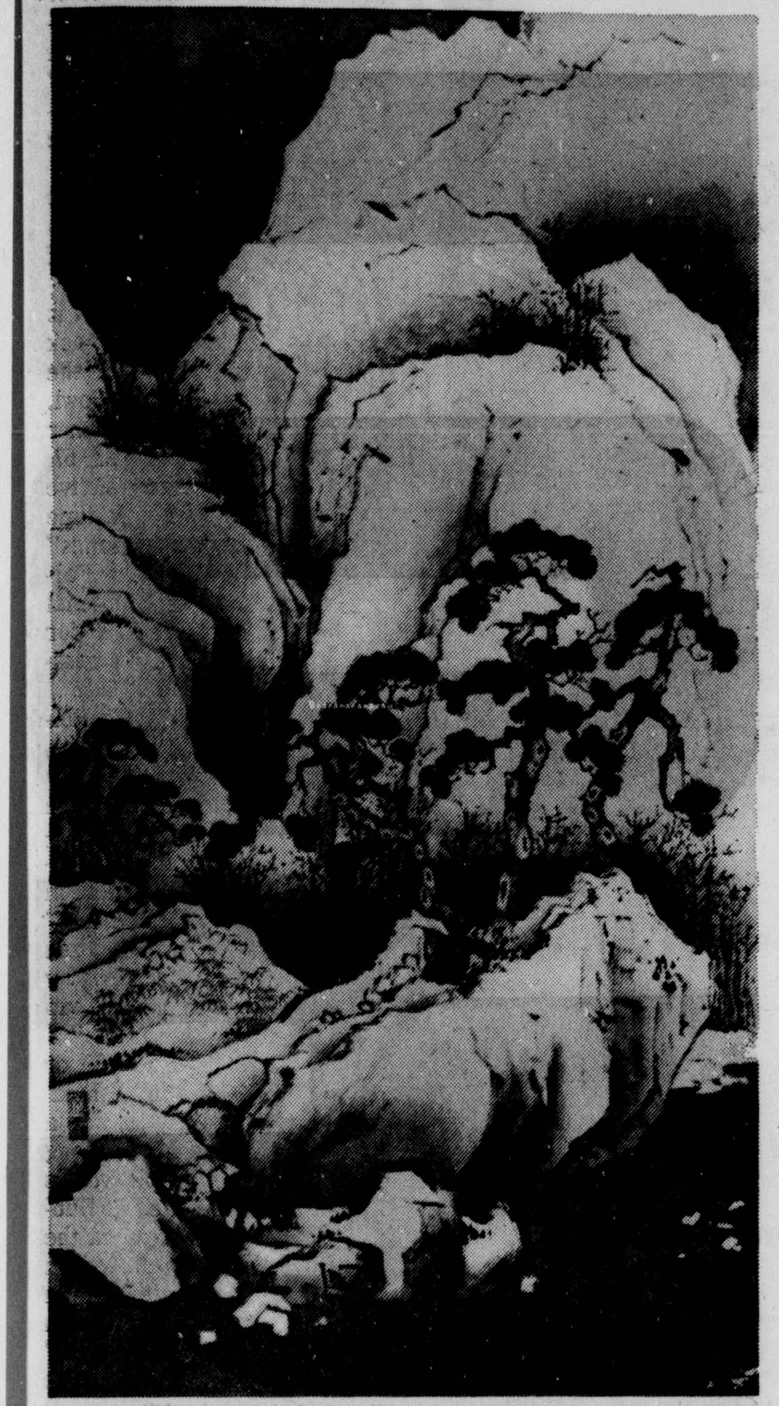
ART REVIEW

Alison Stillwell Cameron Paintings Are On Exhibit



WINTER ELEGANCE — Chinese landscape paintings by Alison Stillwell Cameron include this one of a cascading mountain, bare as an iceberg, and spiked only by golden bamboo and pine. It may be seen together with her other and varied paintings done in classical Chinese style at Alemany Library, Dominican College, San Rafael.

By ADA GARFINKEL

How much does an artist owe to heritage, and how much to cultural environment?

If you are Alison Stilwell Cameron, daughter of the late Gen. Joseph Stilwell, were born in Peking, speak the elite Mandarin dialect, and have been instructed in the complexities of Chinese caligraphy and painting by a member of the Imperial Family, it would be difficult to estimate.

Mrs. Cameron, currently exhibiting her paintings in Dominican College's Alemany Library in San Rafael through April 6, has had more than 45 one-artist exhibits since her family's return to the United States shortly before World War II. She paints with authority and distinction.

Her paintings — on scrolls, panels, glass-mounted supports, or simply matted ones — comprise a variety of blossoms, bamboos, a series of dried grasses — all with botanical perfection — bright-eyed insects, birds and landscapes in the southern Sung Dynasty style. They are all characterized by elan.

Few paintings contain human figures. One that does, a small four-fold screen, shows several children playing. You know they are boys because little boys have their heads shaved in China (the remaining tufts tied into little knots) to trick the devils into thinking they are girls, "hence not worth much, to devils, at any rate," according to the artist.

As a young student, Alison Stilwell was taught, practiced and absorbed the many basic technical preparations and procedures of classical Chinese painting ritualistically. But there was something else she learned: "Ch'i yun," that is to say: the quality of spirit vitality that is a basic canon of Chinese painting.

"The Tao," or the "Way," and Yang and Yin (the male and female principles) are intertwined with Chinese painting, according to the artist. Philosophical and psychic beliefs and customs inherent in Chinese traditions and history are expressed symbolically by the artist in spacing and placement priorities, manner of brushwork and figure characteristics and prototypes.

The Chinese believe, for example, according to Mrs. Cameron, that birds, flowers and insects have"noble elegance and that grasses have a soft grace." And they believe that the bamboo, pine and plum are the "Three Friends" because they remain green even in cold weather.

Further, they think that every bird, insect, human, mountain, tree and stream is endowed with special attributes which become the vehicle for symbolic expression . In a group of trees, for instance, the large one is the "host" and smaller ones, "the guests." Or with rocks, the larger one is the "father" and the smaller ones, "the children." And water is the "blood which flows through the veins of the mountains" so it, too, has "ch'i" or spirit.

As for human figures — "they should be depicted in such a way that the viewer should wish he could change places with them!"

Interestingly enough, a Chinese artist does not paint "on location" — he walks in the woods observing trees and mountains. Returning to the studio, he paints what his "mind's eye" remembers. He sees with his spirit, or, as the Chinese say, his "heart-mind," according to Alison Cameron.

All but two of Mrs. Cameron's paintings have been done within the last several years. These are humorous "Gangrene" of 1947 named for her young brother's pet grasshopper, and "After the Banquet," a scene of a praying mantis on a lacy, chewed-up leaf, waiting for his prey.

The exhibit may be viewed daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

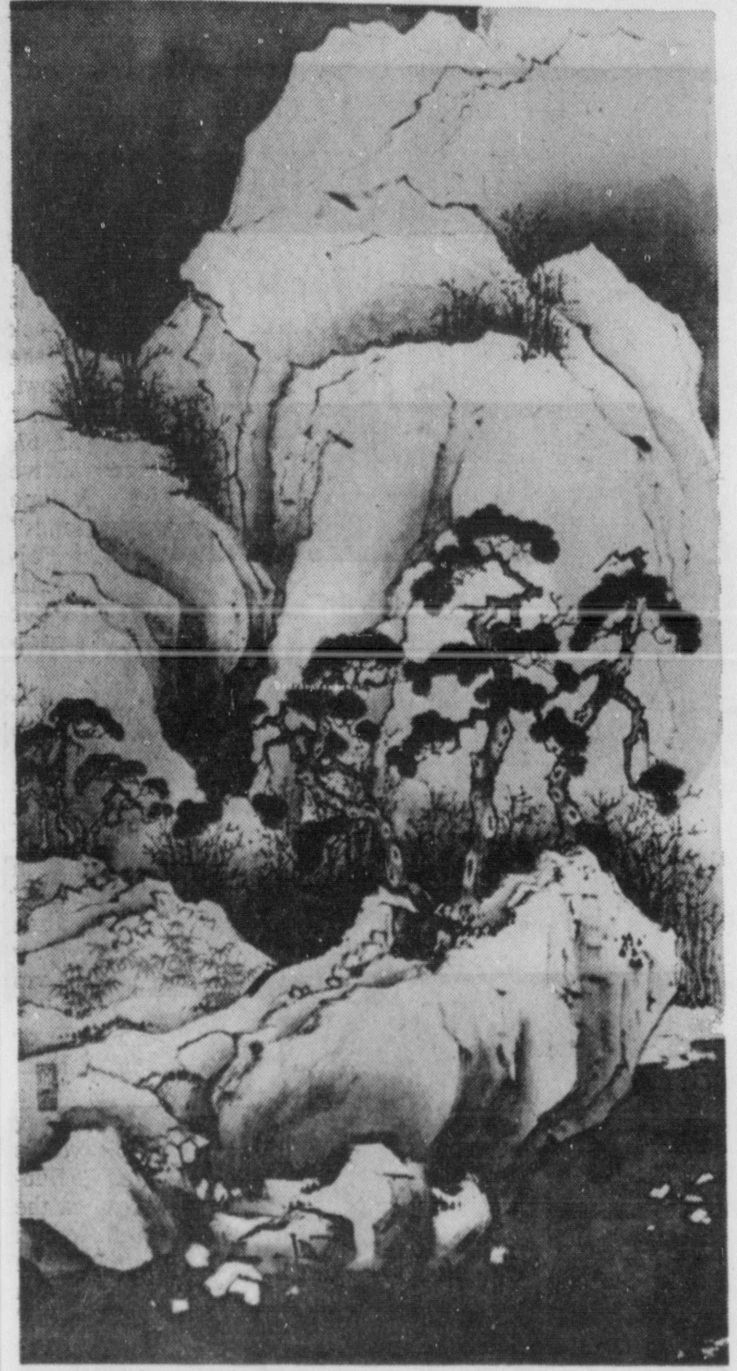
ART REVIEW

Alison Stillwell Cameron Paintings Are On Exhibit



WINTER ELEGANCE — Chinese landscape paintings by Alison Stilwell Cameron include this one of a cascading mountain, bare as an iceberg, and spiked only by golden bamboo and pine. It may be seen together with her other and varied paintings done in classical Chinese style at Alemany Library, Dominican College, San Rafael.

By ADA GARFINKEL

How much does an artist owe to heritage, and how much to cultural environment?

If you are Alison Stilwell Cameron, daughter of the late Gen. Joseph Stilwell, were born in Peking, speak the elite Mandarin dialect, and have been instructed in the complexities of Chinese caligraphy and painting by a member of the Imperial Family, it would be difficult to estimate.

Mrs. Cameron, currently exhibiting her paintings in Dominican College's Alemany Library in San Rafael through April 6, has had more than 45 one-artist exhibits since her family's return to the United States shortly before World War II. She paints with authority and distinction.

Her paintings — on scrolls, panels, glass-mounted supports, or simply matted ones — comprise a variety of blossoms, bamboos, a series of dried grasses — all with botanical perfection — bright-eyed insects, birds and landscapes in the southern Sung Dynasty style. They are all characterized by elan.

Few paintings contain human figures. One that does, a small four-fold screen, shows several children playing. You know they are boys because little boys have their heads shaved in China (the remaining tufts tied into little knots) to trick the devils into thinking they are girls, "hence not worth much, to devils, at any rate," according to the artist.

As a young student, Alison Stilwell was taught, practiced and absorbed the many basic technical preparations and procedures of classical Chinese painting ritualistically. But there was something else she learned: "Ch'i yun," that is to say: the quality of spirit vitality that is a basic canon of Chinese painting.

PENNSYLVANIANS TO SING IN MARIN

Clowning around are four of Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, Terri Lee (left), Sheilah Flanagan, Poley McClintock and Betty Ann McCall, who will appear in Marin tomorrow. The chorus' program, which will begin at 8 p.m. at the Marin Veterans' Memorial Building, will include highlights of Waring's 56 years in show business.

"The Tao," or the "Way," and Yang and Yin (the male and female principles) are intertwined with Chinese painting, according to the artist. Philosophical and psychic beliefs and customs inherent in Chinese traditions and history are expressed symbolically by the artist in spacing and placement priorities, manner of brushwork and figure characteristics and prototypes.

The Chinese believe, for example, according to Mrs. Cameron, that birds, flowers and insects have"noble elegance and that grasses have a soft grace." And they believe that the bamboo, pine and plum are the "Three Friends" because they remain green even in cold weather.

Further, they think that every bird, insect, human, mountain, tree and stream is endowed with special attributes which become the vehicle for symbolic expression . In a group of trees, for instance, the large one is the "host" and smaller ones, "the guests." Or with rocks, the larger one is the "father" and the smaller ones, "the children." And water is the "blood which flows through the veins of the mountains" so it, too, has "ch'i" or spirit.

As for human figures — "they should be depicted in such a way that the viewer should wish he could change places with them!"

Interestingly enough, a Chinese artist does not paint "on location" — he walks in the woods observing trees and mountains. Returning to the studio, he paints what his "mind's eye" remembers. He sees with his spirit, or, as the Chinese say, his "heart-mind," according to Alison Cameron.

All but two of Mrs. Cameron's paintings have been done within the last several years. These are humorous "Gangrene" of 1947 named for her young brother's pet grasshopper, and "After the Banquet," a scene of a praying mantis on a lacy, chewed-up leaf, waiting for his prey.

The exhibit may be viewed daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bad Mushrooms Found On Bases

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Food and Drug Administration official said Monday that two military installations are the only two places in Northern California affected by a recall of mushrooms.

The federal government recalled the products manufactured by Fred Mushroom Products Co. of Ohio after finding botulism organisms in some of its cans.

In Northern California, the only places to which the products had been shipped were the Oakland Army Base and Treasure Island Naval Station.

Library To Feature Works By Curtis

Mrs. Lindquist uses specially prepared papers and inks in her work. The exhibit will close March 29.

Show Announced

A show of stitchery, oils, watercolor and linear drawings by North Bay artists of the National League of Pen Women will be shown next month at the Tamalpais retirement residence at 501 Via Casitas, Greenbrae.

If you are Alison Stilwell Cameron, daughter of the late Gen. Joseph Stilwell, were born in Peking, speak the elite Mandarin dialect, and have been instructed in the complexities of Chinese caligraphy and painting by a member of the Imperial Family, it would be difficult to estimate.

Mrs. Cameron, currently exhibiting her paintings in Dominican College's Alemany Library in San Rafael through April 6, has had more than 45 one-artist exhibits since her family's return to the United States shortly before World War II. She paints with authority and distinction.

Her paintings — on scrolls, panels, glass-mounted supports, or simply matted ones — comprise a variety of blossoms, bamboos, a series of dried grasses — all with botanical perfection — bright-eyed insects, birds and landscapes in the southern Sung Dynasty style. They are all characterized by elan.

Few paintings contain human figures. One that does, a small four-fold screen, shows several children playing. You know they are boys because little boys have their heads shaved in China (the remaining tufts tied into little knots) to trick the devils into thinking they are girls, "hence not worth much, to devils, at any rate," according to the artist.

As a young student, Alison Stilwell was taught, practiced and absorbed the many basic technical preparations and procedures of classical Chinese painting ritualistically. But there was something else she learned: "Ch'i yun," that is to say: the quality of spirit vitality that is a basic canon of Chinese painting.

"The Tao," or the "Way," and Yang and Yin (the male and female principles) are intertwined with Chinese painting, according to the artist. Philosophical and psychic beliefs and customs inherent in Chinese traditions and history are expressed symbolically by the artist in spacing and placement priorities, manner of brushwork and figure characteristics and prototypes.

The Chinese believe, for example, according to Mrs. Cameron, that birds, flowers and insects have"noble elegance and that grasses have a soft grace." And they believe that the bamboo, pine and plum are the "Three Friends" because they remain green even in cold weather.

Further, they think that every bird, insect, human, mountain, tree and stream is endowed with special attributes which become the vehicle for symbolic expression . In a group of trees, for instance, the large one is the "host" and smaller ones, "the guests." Or with rocks, the larger one is the "father" and the smaller ones, "the children." And water is the "blood which flows through the veins of the mountains" so it, too, has "ch'i" or spirit.

As for human figures — "they should be depicted in such a way that the viewer should wish he could change places with them!"

Interestingly enough, a Chinese artist does not paint "on location" — he walks in the woods observing trees and mountains. Returning to the studio, he paints what his "mind's eye" remembers. He sees with his spirit, or, as the Chinese say, his "heart-mind," according to Alison Cameron.

All but two of Mrs. Cameron's paintings have been done within the last several years. These are humorous "Gangrene" of 1947 named for her young brother's pet grasshopper, and "After the Banquet," a scene of a praying mantis on a lacy, chewed-up leaf, waiting for his prey.

The exhibit may be viewed daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bad Mushrooms Found On Bases

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Food and Drug Administration official said Monday that two military installations are the only two places in Northern California affected by a recall of mushrooms.

The federal government recalled the products manufactured by Fred Mushroom Products Co. of Ohio after finding botulism organisms in some of its cans.

In Northern California, the only places to which the products had been shipped were the Oakland Army Base and Treasure Island Naval Station.

Four Outside Of City Seek Advisory Roles

Four citizens living in unincorporated areas within San Rafael's "sphere of influence" have applied for appointment to the city's citizen advisory committee.

The city council will review the applications at 8 p.m. Monday.

The council two weeks ago said the 60-member advisory committee will be expanded by at least five members in an attempt to gain representation from adjacent unincorporated areas.

The move came in the wake of criticism from the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District board that San Rafael was concerned with the future of areas lying outside city limits but had included only residents living within the city on its advisory committee.

Zsa Zsa Loses Jewelry Suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Zsa Zsa Gabor Wednesday lost a $300,000 suit claiming the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was negligent in not protecting her against an elevator holdup, in which some jewelry was stolen.

A federal jury, deliberating less than 30 minutes, decided that Miss Gabor had the time and opportunity to deliver her jewelry to a hotel clerk for deposit.

Prisoners Will Dine At Reagans

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan announced today that he will host a series of private dinner parties for returning California prisoners of war to demonstrate his "gratitude" to them.

"I just hope that each of these men will be prepared for the fact that Nancy (the governor's wife) will be wrapping her arms around everyone who comes through our door," Reagan said in a written statement.

The first dinner will be next Wednesday and about 32 former POWs and their wives have been invited. An aide said the dinner probably would be at Reagan's private home in Sacramento.

A second dinner is planned for March 28 in Los Angeles, the announcement said. Several other dinners are planned for April and May in Sacramento and Los Angeles.

Many State Children Lack Immunization

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Only 30 per cent of 23,000 children surveyed by the state had been immunized against polio, measles, diptheria and tetanus, a state health official reported today.

"This is a cause of great concern because the number of children immunized is directly related to the spread of communicable diseases, some of which are crippling and potentially fatal," said Dr. Mary Jean Trudeau, head of the Public Health Department's state immunization assistance project.

She said the survey involving 16,000 Head Start enrollees and 7,000 new public school students showed a large number of student records did not list immunization.

She said her agency is working with the state Department of Education on immunization requirements acceptable to both school administrators and health officials. The requirements would specify who is responsible for recording immunization data.

Immunization for polio has been required by the state since 1963, measles since 1967 and DPT (diptheria, pertussis, tetanus) since 1971 in elementary schools, preschools, day care centers and Head Start programs.

Weinberger Has Bathroom Phone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At a cost of $7 a month, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger has had a telephone installed in the private bathroom of his office.

The installation gives the official who supervises the Health, Education and Welfare Department three telephones. The other two are on his desk and next to a couch in his office.

Indian Rock Drawings Discovered

FRESNO (UPI) — Dr. Payson Sheets, an archeology professor at California State University, Fresno, said today a group of Indian rock drawings have been discovered in the high country of the Sierra National Forest.

Dr. Sheets said Bill Sandine, a seasonal employe for the National Park Service, discovered them last fall while on a trek through a remote area of the forest.

Sheets said the location is currently snowbound but he hopes to organize an expedition into the site later this year.

The professor said Sandine described the drawings as well preserved, probably because of their location above the 6,000-foot level in smog-free air.

"If they are fairly recent, they are probably from the Mono tribes," Sheets said. "Older drawings would indicate Yokut Indians."

Four Outside Of City Seek Advisory Roles

Four citizens living in unincorporated areas within San Rafael's "sphere of influence" have applied for appointment to the city's citizen advisory committee.

The city council will review the applications at 8 p.m. Monday.

The council two weeks ago said the 60-member advisory committee will be expanded by at least five members in an attempt to gain representation from adjacent unincorporated areas.

The move came in the wake of criticism from the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District board that San Rafael was concerned with the future of areas lying outside city limits but had included only residents living within the city on its advisory committee.

Zsa Zsa Loses Jewelry Suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Zsa Zsa Gabor Wednesday lost a $300,000 suit claiming the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was negligent in not protecting her against an elevator holdup, in which some jewelry was stolen.

A federal jury, deliberating less than 30 minutes, decided that Miss Gabor had the time and opportunity to deliver her jewelry to a hotel clerk for deposit.

Prisoners Will Dine At Reagans

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan announced today that he will host a series of private dinner parties for returning California prisoners of war to demonstrate his "gratitude" to them.

"I just hope that each of these men will be prepared for the fact that Nancy (the governor's wife) will be wrapping her arms around everyone who comes through our door," Reagan said in a written statement.

The first dinner will be next Wednesday and about 32 former POWs and their wives have been invited. An aide said the dinner probably would be at Reagan's private home in Sacramento.

A second dinner is planned for March 28 in Los Angeles, the announcement said. Several other dinners are planned for April and May in Sacramento and Los Angeles.

Many State Children Lack Immunization

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Only 30 per cent of 23,000 children surveyed by the state had been immunized against polio, measles, diptheria and tetanus, a state health official reported today.

"This is a cause of great concern because the number of children immunized is directly related to the spread of communicable diseases, some of which are crippling and potentially fatal," said Dr. Mary Jean Trudeau, head of the Public Health Department's state immunization assistance project.

She said the survey involving 16,000 Head Start enrollees and 7,000 new public school students showed a large number of student records did not list immunization.

She said her agency is working with the state Department of Education on immunization requirements acceptable to both school administrators and health officials. The requirements would specify who is responsible for recording immunization data.

Immunization for polio has been required by the state since 1963, measles since 1967 and DPT (diptheria, pertussis, tetanus) since 1971 in elementary schools, preschools, day care centers and Head Start programs.

Weinberger Has Bathroom Phone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At a cost of $7 a month, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger has had a telephone installed in the private bathroom of his office.

The installation gives the official who supervises the Health, Education and Welfare Department three telephones. The other two are on his desk and next to a couch in his office.

Indian Rock Drawings Discovered

FRESNO (UPI) — Dr. Payson Sheets, an archeology professor at California State University, Fresno, said today a group of Indian rock drawings have been discovered in the high country of the Sierra National Forest.

Dr. Sheets said Bill Sandine, a seasonal employe for the National Park Service, discovered them last fall while on a trek through a remote area of the forest.

Sheets said the location is currently snowbound but he hopes to organize an expedition into the site later this year.

The professor said Sandine described the drawings as well preserved, probably because of their location above the 6,000-foot level in smog-free air.

"If they are fairly recent, they are probably from the Mono tribes," Sheets said. "Older drawings would indicate Yokut Indians."

Marin's Garner Is Named To All-State Cage Team

By LEW CODDINGTON

Will Garner went from being a big fish in a little pond to a big fish in a big pond, which is fine, especially considering he almost was trapped in stagnant water.

A 6-foot-4 forward from College of Marin, Garner was named to the all-state basketball team announced today by the California Junior College Basketball Association.

He was the only freshman named to the first team, and the only player from Northern California as well, which means he will be a man marked for glory and opponents' elbows when he takes the court for the Tars next fall.

To earn the honor, Garner had to improve the considerable skills he showed in two years at Tamalpais High School, and survive a nearly disastrous two-month stint of disillusionment and disappointment at the Univeristy of Nebraska.

This year, he scored 17.3 points a game and averaged 11.4 rebounds in leading Marin to a 26-3 regular-season record and the championship of the Camino Norte Conference. For his efforts, he was named the most valuable player in the CNC. That surprised him, and all-state surprised him more.

"As a freshman — that's what really got me," said Garner, who knew about being selected ever since last week's state J.C. tournament in Ventura. "That's the highest honor I've had yet.

"Toward the end of the year, the starting five will start thinking about things like that. I was thinking about maybe all-conference."

Named with Garner were 6-6 center Greg Bell of Santa Barbara Community College, 6-6 forward Floyd Heaton of Long Beach, 6-6 center Jim Keyes of Santa Ana, and 6-1 guard Ken Tyler of East Los Angeles. The most valuable player was 6-5 guard Al Forney of state champion Compton.

The recognition may bring Garner some scholarship offers, but he intends to return to Marin next year. "It's a nice school, and I had a lot of fun this year. I think I'll hold on one more year, and try to go all out after that. I want to go to a good basketball school."

He has heard already from the University of San Diego, which recruited former Tar star Joe Smith, and from Nebraska, but he says, "I don't think I'll go back there.

"I made a wrong decision," he says now of his Nebraska adventure. "When I got there, everything changed. I was the first player there, and they shoved me into a dorm room. I was alone in the dorm. I sat in my room, or worked out with the team. The place has no basketball facilities — the whole school is not hot on basketball; it's a football school. Then they said there was an eligibility problem, and they wanted to red-shirt me. My parents didn't want that, and I didn't, either. So I called 'Coach P.' "

"Coach P." was Marin's John Panagakis, who found a spot for Garner in the school and in the lineup. The rest, as they say, is history.

Garner had to make an adjustment or two to junior college ball. He was shooting less, but enjoying it more. "There was always somebody to throw the ball in to, and always somebody to get the ball to me. You like to win as a team — play together, and you can go a long way."

He has also had to go to the boards more often — no problem, since he is an exceptional leaper. With one step, he touched four inches above the white square painted above the basket on Marin's transparent backboards — a leap of 11 feet,

1 WIN, 6 LOSSES

A Bad Day For Marin Baseball

It was a disastrous day of non-league baseball for Marin County Athletic League teams yesterday, only one of seven teams reaching the winning column.

The day's only prep victory went to Redwood, 6-1 winner over Vanden High School at Travis Air Force Base.

On the losing side of things, San Rafael was whipped byPetaluma High, 8-1; Marin Catholic was blanked by El Molino, 6-0; Tamalpais was drubbed by Hogan of Vallejo, 9-2; Drake fell to Vallejo High, 8-4; San Marin was edged by Sacred Heart, 3-2, and Terra Linda lost to St. Ignatius under the lights at Albert Field in San Rafael, 6-1. Fortunately, the way things were going, Novato did not have a game scheduled.

Mark Ruggles struck out 15 batters and allowed only three hits in going the seven innings on the mound for the defending MCAL champ Redwood Giants. Redwood did enough damage in the first inning to win the game when it had two hit batters and three singles good for two runs. It was Redwood's third win in five games.

Petaluma started quickly in its home game against San Rafael when Dan Solis hit a two-run single in the first inning. If that wasn't enough, Solis came back in the third inning with a bases loaded triple, giving him five runs batted in on the day.

Marin Catholic's Layne Cozza went two-for-two but Marin was only able to muster one other hit in its loss to host El Molino in Forestville. El Molino scored four times in the first inning and coasted from there.

Drake continued to suffer without starting pitchers Rod Oates and John Schmitz who played for the Pirates in the basketball Tournament of Champions last week. Vallejo jumped out to an eight-run lead before the Pirates could dent the plate.

Tamalpais was tied at 2-2 after two and one-half innings against Hogan but from there it was all Hogan. The Indians had tied the score in the top of the third on a two-run single by Jake Newman.

San Marin's game was switched to Funston Park in San Francisco at the last minute because of wet grounds in Novato. The Mustangs fought back from 3-0 with runs in the sixth and seventh innings but a last-inning rally fell short when Bob Louie struck out with the bases loaded and two outs. San Marin was hitless until the seventh inning when Rich Villa and Al Davidson singled in that short-lived rally.

Against Terra Linda, St. Ignatius had its biggst inning in the fourth when it scored three times. Terra Linda pitcher Mark Mueller put himself in a hole in that inning by walking three batters. Two of the runs scored when the Terra Linda fielders lost a pop fly in the lights.

Seals Are Counting Down The Days Left

OAKLAND (UPI) — It seems the California Golden Seals are just counting the days until the National Hockey League season ends March 30.

That's when the contracts of 12 of the 18-man Seals' roster expire. There are reports from players who wish to remain anonymous that at least six of the 12 will jump to the World Hockey Association.

It was evident that the thoughts of most of the Seals were elsewhere Wednesday night when the Vancouver Canucks exploded for three goals in less than three minutes of the second period to escape with a 5-2 win.

Bobby Schmautz' 34th goal broke a 1-1 tie 9:22 into the middle period and was soon followed by scores from John Wright and Orland Kurtenbach. Andre Boudrias tallied the first and last goals for the Canucks.

A's Tenace Catching; Rudi Is 1st Baseman

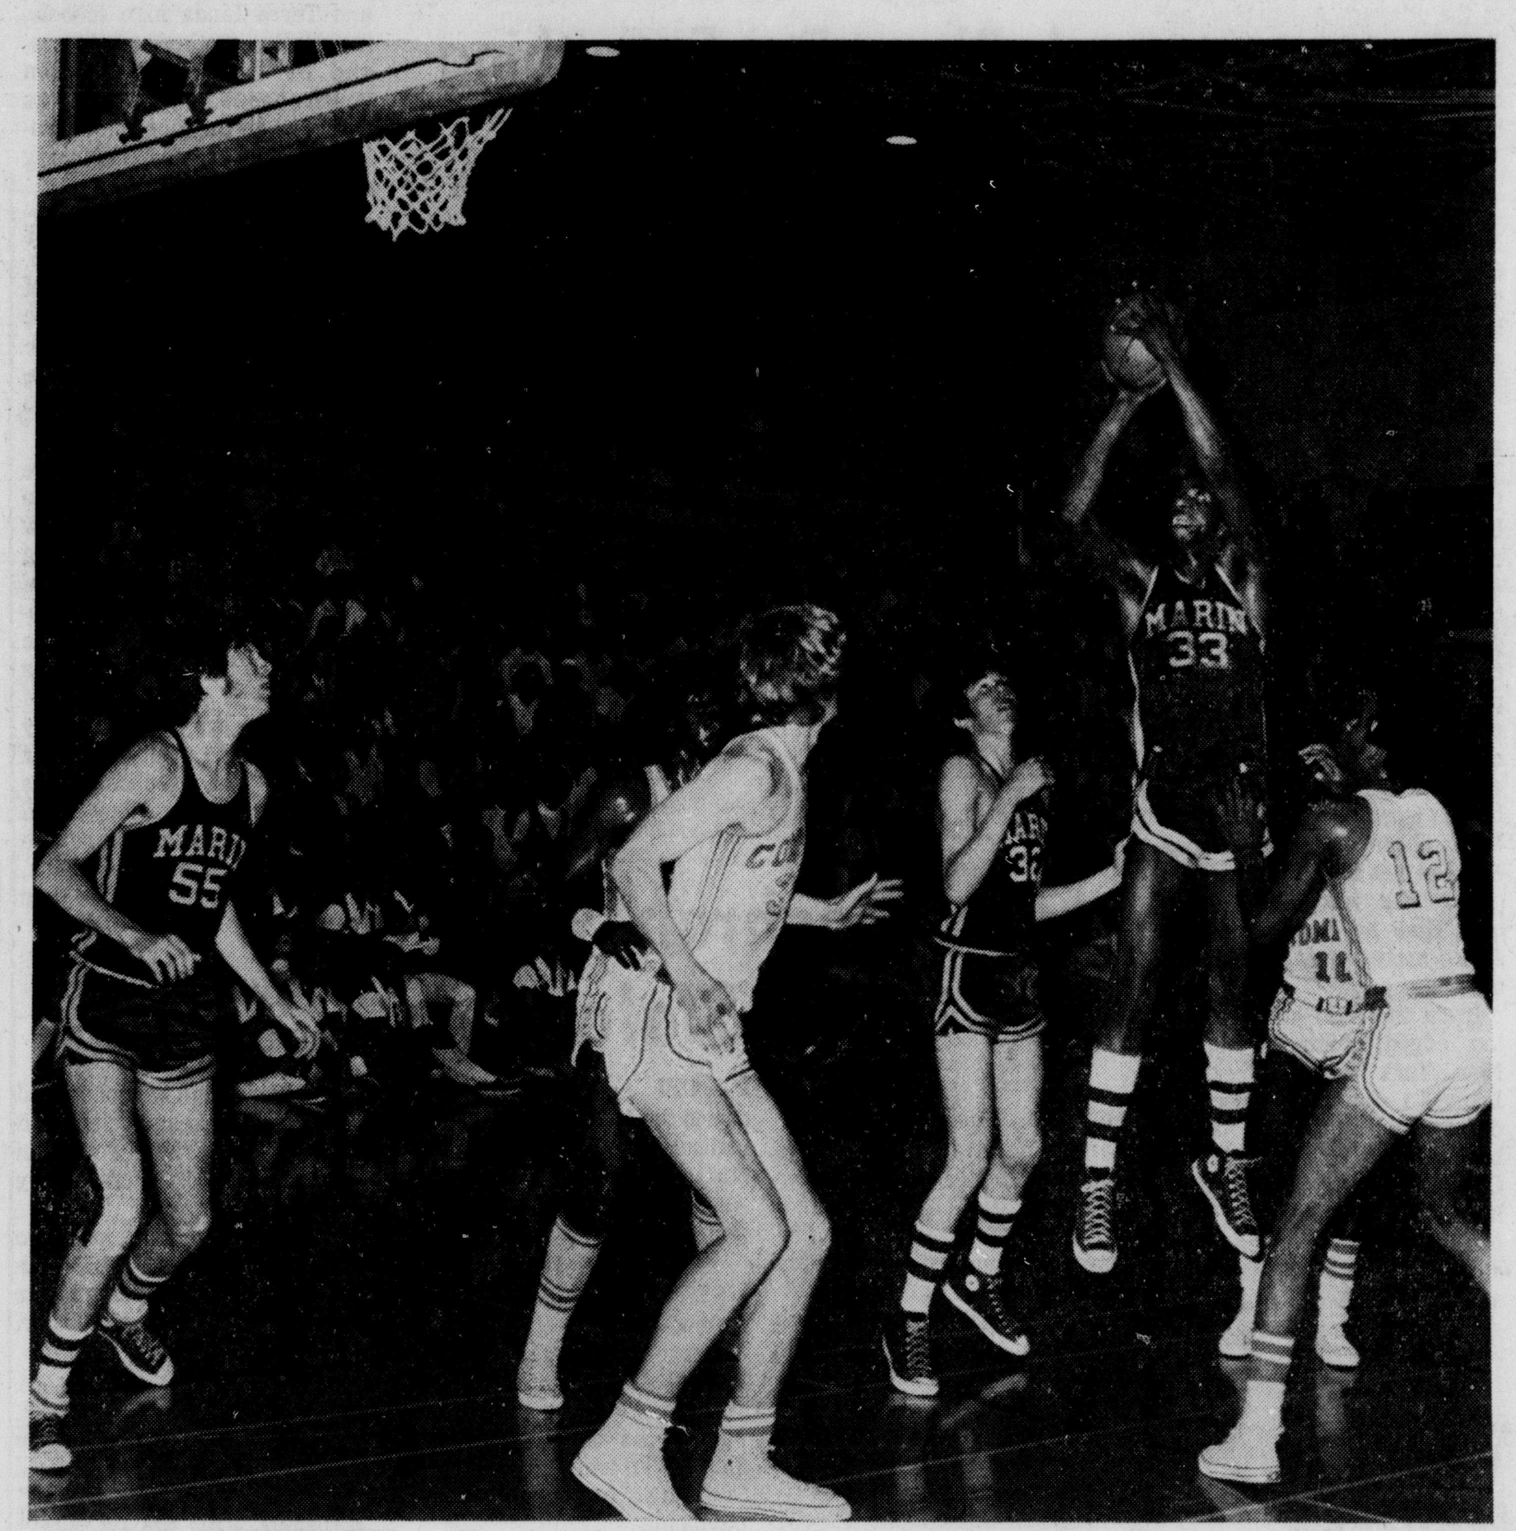
And, according to Manager Dick Williams, don't be surprised if left-hander Vida Blue makes his exhibition debut Monday against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Blue and catcher Dave Duncan have been working out with the world champions despite the fact neither one has signed a 1973 contract. Owner Charles O. Finley has invoked the reserve clause by stipulating that Blue will receive $51,000 this season and Duncan $40,000.

That's a $10,000 raise for Duncan and $1,000 for Blue who was 6-10 last season after a lengthy holding extending into mid-May.

Tenace, who was moved to first base after the A's traded Mike Epstein to Texas, caught his first game of the spring on Tuesday while Rudi moved to first.

Rain washed out Wednesday's game with Cleveland.



WHERE THERE'S WIL — Showing the jump shot which helped make him first team all-state, College of Marin forward Wil Garner (33) fired against state champion Compton Junior College Friday in the state tournament in Ventura. Marin's Neil Traub (55) and Joe Casteel (32) watched.

Backhaus, Dunn Lead San Rafael

The famous Robin Backhaus and the hitherto obscure Joe Dunn led the assault during the past week as San Rafael High School swimmers posted four of the Marin County Athletic League's best dual-meet times.

Backhaus, the Olympic medalist who moved to Marin this year, swam on the 200-yard medley relay team which did 1:46.6 and the 400 free relay squad which did 3:32.5, as well as swimming 2:03.2 in the 200 individual medley. Dunn, a freshman, twice lowered the 100 butterfly standard to 58.5 and 58.1 and swam with Backhaus on the 400 free relay.

Novato's Bob Patocchi, deprived of the 100 fly best by Dunn, swam the 50 free in 23.4 to compensate. That erased John Redig of Redwood from the books, so Redig turned around and lowered his own 100 free time to 51.2. The other change came as Tamalpais' Dick Atwood lowered his 100 back time to 1:01.2.

The best times:

200 medley relay — San Rafael (Kavrell, J. Kamler, Backhaus, M. Kamler), 1:46.6; 200 free — Eldred (R), 1:52.6; 200 IM — Backhaus (SR), 2:03.2; 50 free — Patocchi (N), 23.4; Diving — Schindler (R), 223.0; 100 fly — Dunn (SR), 58.1; 100 free — Redig (R), 51.2; 400 free — Eldred (R), 3:59.0; 100 back — Atwood (T), 1:01.2; 100 breast — Miller (TL), 1:07.0; 400 free relay (Dunn, Kavrell, Hislop, Backhaus), 3:32.5.

Marin Tars Drop First Net Match

Playing short-handed, without injured number-three man Dave Timmons, the College of Marin tennis team fell short of avenging last year's loss to City College of San Francisco, dropping a 5-4 decision yesterday in Kentfield to the Rams for the second consecutive year. It was the Tars first loss of the season after five wins.

Bill In Congress Prompted By Amateur Sports Furor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may be ready to take action to resolve the longstanding feud between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union. A bill was introduced Wednesday that would authorize fines up to $10,000 if a college athlete was banned from intercollegiate contests because he participated in amateur international competition.

Reps. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., and John Dellenback, R-Ore., sponsored the measure which they said grew out of the disputes over the touring Russian Olympic basketball team and a track and field meet with Soviet performers.

The Amateur Athletic Union is sponsoring both tours with plans to have the top collegiate U.S. players meet the Russians. But the National Collegiate Athletic Association has not granted permission for its member players to participate.

O'Hara said the measure "would provide criminal penalties of up to $10,000 in fines for denying, suspending or withdrawing the eligibility of any student athlete to participate in intercollegiate athletic events because of the student-athlete's participation in amateur international competition as a member of a U.S. sports team."

"It would provide the same penalties for denying a berth on a U.S. team in amateur international competition to an athlete on the basis of his participation in any athletic event as a representative of his school. The bill would also provide safeguards for college coaches who work with U.S. amateurs in international competition," said O'Hara.

"The forthcoming track meet (set for Friday at Richmond, Va.) is being jeopardized and the national interest is being disregarded," said O'Hara. "This situation has reached the intolerable stage and there remains no way of resolving this problem other than through legislative action which will put reasonable limits on these two organizations."

Meanwhile, two members of the American team said Wednesday they will defy the National Collegiate Athletic Association by competing in the U.S.-U.S.S.R. indoor track and field meet here tomorrow night.

TONIGHT

Long Beach, UCLA Picks

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA's mighty Bruins and Cal State Long Beach's hungry 49ers, the No. 1 and 3 college basketball teams in the nation, are heavy favorites to win tonight and reach the Saturday finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association West Regionals.

"Anything can happen in one game," said 49er coach Jerry Tarkanian when asked about a possible UCLA-Long Beach showdown in the regionals for the third straight year.

Led by Bill Walton, winner of the Naismith Award as the best amateur basketball player in the country last year as a sophomore, UCLA faces 13th-ranked Arizona State at 9:10 p.m. after Long Beach goes against University of San Francisco at 7:10 p.m.

KBHK TV, Channel 44 will telecast the USF-Long Beach game beginning at 7 p.m., followed at approximately 9 p.m. by the UCLA-Arizona State contest.

The Saturday championship game is at 3:10 p.m.

The regionals are being held at Pauley Pavilion, home of the Bruins, and this caused Arizona State coach Ned Wulk to mutter:

"It's such a tremendous advantage to them (UCLA). I really don't like it but there's not much I can do about it. They pick these regional sites years in advance."

Tarkanian, whose club bowed 73-57 to UCLA in the regionals at Provo, Utah, a year ago, said, "I'd feel a lot better against UCLA in our campus gym rather than Pauley."

Attempting to milk every psychological advantage he could out of playing at Pauley, where the Bruins have rolled up 115 wins in 117 games, Wooden said:

"I want the other three teams to be thinking about that, too."

With the 6-11 Walton, a junior and an All-America for two straight years, averaging 19.8 points and 17.2 rebounds, the 1972-73 Bruins have extended the UCLA record-breaking win streak to 71 games.

They want to get to St. Louis next week to go after their seventh straight national title and ninth in 10 years.

Ironically, Arizona State and USF are the last teams to beat the now-indomitable Bruins in NCAA tournament play. The Sun Devils and the Dons last turned that trick at Provo, Utah, in the 1963 regionals.

Wooden, whose UCLA teams lost their first five NCAA tournament games, has seen his Bruins run up perhaps their most incredible record — 32 straight playoff triumphs.

"I would like to think I've become a better coach as the years have gone by," said Wooden. "Maybe in the past I worked my teams too hard going up to the NCAA."

Winner of its seventh straight Pacific-8 title this season and 26-0, UCLA will start 6-6 junior Keith Wilkes, a second team All-America, and 6-5 junior Larry Farmer in its front line with Walton.

Arizona State, the Western Athletic Conference titlist and 19-7, won't sit on the ball against UCLA, promised Wulk, one of the foremost exponents of the fast break.

"We probably couldn't hold the ball if we wanted to," he said.

For the Sun Devils, the starting lineup will be 6-9 Mark Wasley, 6-5 Ken Gray and 6-11 Ron Kennedy in the front line and Mike Contreras, the club's No. 1 scorer with a 16.4 average, and Jim Owens in the backcourt.

The second first team All-America in the regionals is smooth 6-6 Ed Ratleff, a member of the 1972 U.S. Olympic team at Munich.

In the regionals a year ago, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association powerhouse 49ers destroyed the Dons 75-55.

Bill In Congress Prompted By Amateur Sports Furor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may be ready to take action to resolve the longstanding feud between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union. A bill was introduced Wednesday that would authorize fines up to $10,000 if a college athlete was banned from intercollegiate contests because he participated in amateur international competition.

Reps. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., and John Dellenback, R-Ore., sponsored the measure which they said grew out of the disputes over the touring Russian Olympic basketball team and a track and field meet with Soviet performers.

The Amateur Athletic Union is sponsoring both tours with plans to have the top collegiate U.S. players meet the Russians. But the National Collegiate Athletic Association has not granted permission for its member players to participate.

O'Hara said the measure "would provide criminal penalties of up to $10,000 in fines for denying, suspending or withdrawing the eligibility of any student athlete to participate in intercollegiate athletic events because of the student-athlete's participation in amateur international competition as a member of a U.S. sports team."

"It would provide the same penalties for denying a berth on a U.S. team in amateur international competition to an athlete on the basis of his participation in any athletic event as a representative of his school. The bill would also provide safeguards for college coaches who work with U.S. amateurs in international competition," said O'Hara.

"The forthcoming track meet (set for Friday at Richmond, Va.) is being jeopardized and the national interest is being disregarded," said O'Hara. "This situation has reached the intolerable stage and there remains no way of resolving this problem other than through legislative action which will put reasonable limits on these two organizations."

Meanwhile, two members of the American team said Wednesday they will defy the National Collegiate Athletic Association by competing in the U.S.-U.S.S.R. indoor track and field meet here tomorrow night.

Long Beach, UCLA Picks

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA's mighty Bruins and Cal State Long Beach's hungry 49ers, the No. 1 and 3 college basketball teams in the nation, are heavy favorites to win tonight and reach the Saturday finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association West Regionals.

"Anything can happen in one game," said 49er coach Jerry Tarkanian when asked about a possible UCLA-Long Beach showdown in the regionals for the third straight year.

Led by Bill Walton, winner of the Naismith Award as the best amateur basketball player in the country last year as a sophomore, UCLA faces 13th-ranked Arizona State at 9:10 p.m. after Long Beach goes against University of San Francisco at 7:10 p.m.

KBHK TV, Channel 44 will telecast the USF-Long Beach game beginning at 7 p.m., followed at approximately 9 p.m. by the UCLA-Arizona State contest.

The Saturday championship game is at 3:10 p.m.

The regionals are being held at Pauley Pavilion, home of the Bruins, and this caused Arizona State coach Ned Wulk to mutter:

"It's such a tremendous advantage to them (UCLA). I really don't like it but there's not much I can do about it. They pick these regional sites years in advance."

Tarkanian, whose club bowed 73-57 to UCLA in the regionals at Provo, Utah, a year ago, said, "I'd feel a lot better against UCLA in our campus gym rather than Pauley."

Attempting to milk every psychological advantage he could out of playing at Pauley, where the Bruins have rolled up 115 wins in 117 games, Wooden said:

"I want the other three teams to be thinking about that, too."

With the 6-11 Walton, a junior and an All-America for two straight years, averaging 19.8 points and 17.2 rebounds, the 1972-73 Bruins have extended the UCLA record-breaking win streak to 71 games.

They want to get to St. Louis next week to go after their seventh straight national title and ninth in 10 years.

Ironically, Arizona State and USF are the last teams to beat the now-indomitable Bruins in NCAA tournament play. The Sun Devils and the Dons last turned that trick at Provo, Utah, in the 1963 regionals.

Wooden, whose UCLA teams lost their first five NCAA tournament games, has seen his Bruins run up perhaps their most incredible record — 32 straight playoff triumphs.

"I would like to think I've become a better coach as the years have gone by," said Wooden. "Maybe in the past I worked my teams too hard going up to the NCAA."

Winner of its seventh straight Pacific-8 title this season and 26-0, UCLA will start 6-6 junior Keith Wilkes, a second team All-America, and 6-5 junior Larry Farmer in its front line with Walton.

Arizona State, the Western Athletic Conference titlist and 19-7, won't sit on the ball against UCLA, promised Wulk, one of the foremost exponents of the fast break.

"We probably couldn't hold the ball if we wanted to," he said.

For the Sun Devils, the starting lineup will be 6-9 Mark Wasley, 6-5 Ken Gray and 6-11 Ron Kennedy in the front line and Mike Contreras, the club's No. 1 scorer with a 16.4 average, and Jim Owens in the backcourt.

The second first team All-America in the regionals is smooth 6-6 Ed Ratleff, a member of the 1972 U.S. Olympic team at Munich.

In the regionals a year ago, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association powerhouse 49ers destroyed the Dons 75-55.

Seals Are Counting Down The Days Left

OAKLAND (UPI) — It seems the California Golden Seals are just counting the days until the National Hockey League season ends March 30.

That's when the contracts of 12 of the 18-man Seals' roster expire. There are reports from players who wish to remain anonymous that at least six of the 12 will jump to the World Hockey Association.

It was evident that the thoughts of most of the Seals were elsewhere Wednesday night when the Vancouver Canucks exploded for three goals in less than three minutes of the second period to escape with a 5-2 win.

Bobby Schmautz' 34th goal broke a 1-1 tie 9:22 into the middle period and was soon followed by scores from John Wright and Orland Kurtenbach. Andre Boudrias tallied the first and last goals for the Canucks.

And, according to Manager Dick Williams, don't be surprised if left-hander Vida Blue makes his exhibition debut Monday against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Blue and catcher Dave Duncan have been working out with the world champions despite the fact neither one has signed a 1973 contract. Owner Charles O. Finley has invoked the reserve clause by stipulating that Blue will receive $51,000 this season and Duncan $40,000.

That's a $10,000 raise for Duncan and $1,000 for Blue who was 6-10 last season after a lengthy holding extending into mid-May.

Tenace, who was moved to first base after the A's traded Mike Epstein to Texas, caught his first game of the spring on Tuesday while Rudi moved to first.

Rain washed out Wednesday's game with Cleveland.

Marin's Garner Is Named To All-State Cage Team

By LEW CODDINGTON

Will Garner went from being a big fish in a little pond to a big fish in a big pond, which is fine, especially considering he almost was trapped in stagnant water.

A 6-foot-4 forward from College of Marin, Garner was named to the all-state basketball team announced today by the California Junior College Basketball Association.

He was the only freshman named to the first team, and the only player from Northern California as well, which means he will be a man marked for glory and opponents' elbows when he takes the court for the Tars next fall.

To earn the honor, Garner had to improve the considerable skills he showed in two years at Tamalpais High School, and survive a nearly disastrous two-month stint of disillusionment and disappointment at the Univeristy of Nebraska.

This year, he scored 17.3 points a game and averaged 11.4 rebounds in leading Marin to a 26-3 regular-season record and the championship of the Camino Norte Conference. For his efforts, he was named the most valuable player in the CNC. That surprised him, and all-state surprised him more.

"As a freshman — that's what really got me," said Garner, who knew about being selected ever since last week's state J.C. tournament in Ventura. "That's the highest honor I've had yet.

"Toward the end of the year, the starting five will start thinking about things like that. I was thinking about maybe all-conference."

Named with Garner were 6-6 center Greg Bell of Santa Barbara Community College, 6-6 forward Floyd Heaton of Long Beach, 6-6 center Jim Keyes of Santa Ana, and 6-1 guard Ken Tyler of East Los Angeles. The most valuable player was 6-5 guard Al Forney of state champion Compton.

The recognition may bring Garner some scholarship offers, but he intends to return to Marin next year. "It's a nice school, and I had a lot of fun this year. I think I'll hold on one more year, and try to go all out after that. I want to go to a good basketball school."

He has heard already from the University of San Diego, which recruited former Tar star Joe Smith, and from Nebraska, but he says, "I don't think I'll go back there.

"I made a wrong decision," he says now of his Nebraska adventure. "When I got there, everything changed. I was the first player there, and they shoved me into a dorm room. I was alone in the dorm. I sat in my room, or worked out with the team. The place has no basketball facilities — the whole school is not hot on basketball; it's a football school. Then they said there was an eligibility problem, and they wanted to red-shirt me. My parents didn't want that, and I didn't, either. So I called 'Coach P.' "

"Coach P." was Marin's John Panagakis, who found a spot for Garner in the school and in the lineup. The rest, as they say, is history.

Garner had to make an adjustment or two to junior college ball. He was shooting less, but enjoying it more. "There was always somebody to throw the ball in to, and always somebody to get the ball to me. You like to win as a team — play together, and you can go a long way."

He has also had to go to the boards more often — no problem, since he is an exceptional leaper. With one step, he touched four inches above the white square painted above the basket on Marin's transparent backboards — a leap of 11 feet,

1 WIN, 6 LOSSES

A Bad Day For Marin Baseball

It was a disastrous day of non-league baseball for Marin County Athletic League teams yesterday, only one of seven teams reaching the winning column.

The day's only prep victory went to Redwood, 6-1 winner over Vanden High School at Travis Air Force Base.

On the losing side of things, San Rafael was whipped byPetaluma High, 8-1; Marin Catholic was blanked by El Molino, 6-0; Tamalpais was drubbed by Hogan of Vallejo, 9-2; Drake fell to Vallejo High, 8-4; San Marin was edged by Sacred Heart, 3-2, and Terra Linda lost to St. Ignatius under the lights at Albert Field in San Rafael, 6-1. Fortunately, the way things were going, Novato did not have a game scheduled.

Mark Ruggles struck out 15 batters and allowed only three hits in going the seven innings on the mound for the defending MCAL champ Redwood Giants. Redwood did enough damage in the first inning to win the game when it had two hit batters and three singles good for two runs. It was Redwood's third win in five games.

Petaluma started quickly in its home game against San Rafael when Dan Solis hit a two-run single in the first inning. If that wasn't enough, Solis came back in the third inning with a bases loaded triple, giving him five runs batted in on the day.

Marin Catholic's Layne Cozza went two-for-two but Marin was only able to muster one other hit in its loss to host El Molino in Forestville. El Molino scored four times in the first inning and coasted from there.

Drake continued to suffer without starting pitchers Rod Oates and John Schmitz who played for the Pirates in the basketball Tournament of Champions last week. Vallejo jumped out to an eight-run lead before the Pirates could dent the plate.

Tamalpais was tied at 2-2 after two and one-half innings against Hogan but from there it was all Hogan. The Indians had tied the score in the top of the third on a two-run single by Jake Newman.

San Marin's game was switched to Funston Park in San Francisco at the last minute because of wet grounds in Novato. The Mustangs fought back from 3-0 with runs in the sixth and seventh innings but a last-inning rally fell short when Bob Louie struck out with the bases loaded and two outs. San Marin was hitless until the seventh inning when Rich Villa and Al Davidson singled in that short-lived rally.

Against Terra Linda, St. Ignatius had its biggst inning in the fourth when it scored three times. Terra Linda pitcher Mark Mueller put himself in a hole in that inning by walking three batters. Two of the runs scored when the Terra Linda fielders lost a pop fly in the lights.

Long Beach, UCLA Picks

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA's mighty Bruins and Cal State Long Beach's hungry 49ers, the No. 1 and 3 college basketball teams in the nation, are heavy favorites to win tonight and reach the Saturday finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association West Regionals.

"Anything can happen in one game," said 49er coach Jerry Tarkanian when asked about a possible UCLA-Long Beach showdown in the regionals for the third straight year.

Led by Bill Walton, winner of the Naismith Award as the best amateur basketball player in the country last year as a sophomore, UCLA faces 13th-ranked Arizona State at 9:10 p.m. after Long Beach goes against University of San Francisco at 7:10 p.m.

KBHK TV, Channel 44 will telecast the USF-Long Beach game beginning at 7 p.m., followed at approximately 9 p.m. by the UCLA-Arizona State contest.

The Saturday championship game is at 3:10 p.m.

The regionals are being held at Pauley Pavilion, home of the Bruins, and this caused Arizona State coach Ned Wulk to mutter:

"It's such a tremendous advantage to them (UCLA). I really don't like it but there's not much I can do about it. They pick these regional sites years in advance."

The second first team All-America in the regionals is smooth 6-6 Ed Ratleff, a member of the 1972 U.S. Olympic team at Munich.

IN SWIM TIMES

Backhaus, Dunn Lead San Rafael

The famous Robin Backhaus and the hitherto obscure Joe Dunn led the assault during the past week as San Rafael High School swimmers posted four of the Marin County Athletic League's best dual-meet times.

Backhaus, the Olympic medalist who moved to Marin this year, swam on the 200-yard medley relay team which did 1:46.6 and the 400 free relay squad which did 3:32.5, as well as swimming 2:03.2 in the 200 individual medley. Dunn, a freshman, twice lowered the 100 butterfly standard to 58.5 and 58.1 and swam with Backhaus on the 400 free relay.

Novato's Bob Patocchi, deprived of the 100 fly best by Dunn, swam the 50 free in 23.4 to compensate. That erased John Redig of Redwood from the books, so Redig turned around and lowered his own 100 free time to 51.2. The other change came as Tamalpais' Dick Atwood lowered his 100 back time to 1:01.2.

The best times:

Bill In Congress Prompted By Amateur Sports Furor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress may be ready to take action to resolve the longstanding feud between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union. A bill was introduced Wednesday that would authorize fines up to $10,000 if a college athlete was banned from intercollegiate contests because he participated in amateur international competition.

Reps. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., and John Dellenback, R-Ore., sponsored the measure which they said grew out of the disputes over the touring Russian Olympic basketball team and a track and field meet with Soviet performers.

The Amateur Athletic Union is sponsoring both tours with plans to have the top collegiate U.S. players meet the Russians. But the National Collegiate Athletic Association has not granted permission for its member players to participate.

IT'S PREDICTED

Learning Safety By Boat Racing

By RON LENT

This is the belief of Norman S. Buell, 1973 commodore of the Predicted Log Racing Association of Northern California. The smiling skipper from the East Bay staunchly contends that predicted log racing is a sport which tests a power boat skipper's abilities in nautical expertise.

"Navigation is a good thing to know in Marin waters," Buell said. Buell, of Kensington, and 14 other boating epxerts were on hand Saturday at the Loch Lomond yacht harbor to teach 30 members representing seven of the Pacific Inter-Club Yachting Association clubs the basics of predicted log racing.

It was a novice day program presented by the Predicted Log Racing Association of Northern California and the pros were there to teach and help the beginners chart courses, determine water and wind currents, and ascertain boat capabilities.

The day-long program began with 90 minutes of talks dealing with the fundamentals of predicted log racing. After that, the assembly divided into small groups and spent about two hours charting courses. "It normally takes an expert about 20 minutes to do this," Buell added, "but these people are just learning. We encourage them to work deliberately."

After computing his time in covering the 5½-mile course and filling in his prediction log which showed the elapsed time for each of the three legs, the skipper would go out at a predetermined time and run the course; the contestant would then navigate the course on the course line designated, pass control points on the side specified and make turns as listed. Meanwhile, observers note infractions and, at check points, mark the times. Immediately after the race ends, the contestant will assist the observer in delivering his log to the committee.

While on board the Seaprize, a vessel entered in the competition by Mr. and Mrs. Nat Mewhinney of Oakland, Buell outlined a few of the scoring intricacies. "You have starting and finishing times plus three other check points. At the various check points, your official time (from Point A to Point B) is recorded. At the end of the race, your predictions in getting to and from the various points are compared with your actual times. The difference between the times are counted against you. Lowest error wins."

The two-man crews were competing for trophies in categories such as fewest errors for fast vessel, fewest for slower boats and a consolation bracket "for the skipper and crewman who have the most difficulty on the course," according to Buell.

George Johnston of the North Bay Yacht Club, skippering "China Doll," was the overall trophy winner. The El Cerrito resident had a score of 0.29.

The commodore then proceeded to describe the course which would take about an hour to run. "We start at the 'Birdcage,' at the entrance of the San Rafael channel. We go under the center of the west channel of the San Rafael Bridge, then to the east channel entrance, then to terminal four wharf near Pt. San Pablo, and back to the starting place."

The San Rafael resident points out that the term "race" is a misnomer when discussing predicted log racing. "You can race at any speed you wish, within limits. You generally go between five and 20 knots. To win, all you have to do is maintain your speed through the water, stay on course, and arrive at the checkpoints and the finish line at the time you say you will."

Bradley, Giants Vs. San Diego

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "Some of the younger players won't get the chance we anticipated," says San Francisco Giants manager Charlie Fox after the Giants third rainout of spring training.

When it rained Wednesday, Fox also was thwarted for the third time in his attempt to get a look at right-hander Tom Bradley, who will be counted on to start. Now Bradley, traded from the Chicago White Sox, is scheduled to make his first exhibition start today in Yuma against the San Diego Padres.

Fox showed some 1972 Giants films to entertain the troops and told players he wouldn't have as much opportunity to give them all a good tryout due to the bad weather.

The manager said his starting pitchers will be Bradley, Juan Marichal, Ron Bryant, Sam McDowell and Jim Willoughby. Marichal and McDowell maintained their starting positions despite disappointing seasons last year.

New Team Formed

The Corte Madera Volunteer Firemen's Association Tuesday night decided to sponsor a team in the new Babe Ruth baseball league which will play in Corte Madera, Larkspur and Greenbrae this season, reported fire chief Frank L. Nelson.

Terra Linda Loses

Trojan Dave Cotton set a school dual meet diving scoring record at 218.65 but it wasn't enough yesterday as Terra Linda High School (3-2) dropped a non-league swim meet to Los Lomas of Walnut Creek, 61-34, in the winner's pool. Aaron Grossman set the previous record last year at 209.20.

Miller, Leo Enter Round Three Of Row

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Leo Durocher-Marvin Miller battle went into round three Wednesday with Miller taking the offensive, something that's rarely done against Durocher.

Miller, the executive director of the Players Assocation, and Durocher, the manager of the Houston Astros, began their battle Monday when Durocher broke up a meeting between Miller and Astro players to begin a practice session.

Durocher was fined $250 by National League President Chub Feeney for interfering but has refused to pay the fine. He has taken the case to his lawyer and is threatening to sue the league.

Miller, who has demanded an apology from the Astros, Wednesday called Durocher, "a freeloader. When I came into baseball a little over six years ago, the maximum pension was $723 a month. Durocher retired last year and began drawing $2,000 a month, the difference there being due solely to the players and the Players Association. In all that time, Durocher has not been a member and has not paid dues. He's been a freeloader, riding on the backs of players, fellow managers, coaches and trainers."

Durocher was silent, saying only that he had turned the entire matter over to his attorney.

In on the field activity, Boston edged Montreal 7-6, the New York Yankees beat St. Louis 3-1, the New York Mets downed Detroit 6-4, Los Angeles bombed Pittsburgh 10-2, the Chicago White Sox shaded Atlanta 4-3, Cincinnati beat Houston 7-3, Baltimore edged Minnesota 4-3 and Kansas City stophed Philadelphia 3-2. Three games in Arizona were rained out.

Warriors, Houston Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — Now that the pressure is off, the Golden State Warriors will see what Bob Portman, George Johnson, Fritz Williams and Charlie Johnson can do.

Those players will be seeing a lot of action tonight when the Warriors take on the Houston Rockets to begin a homestretch drive. Seven of the remaining nine games of the National Basketball Association season will be played at the Coliseum.

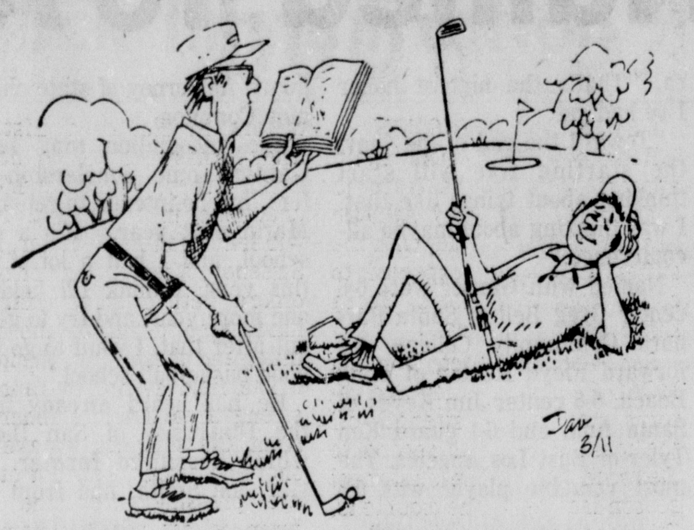
Golden State already has clinched a playoff berth but a playoff foe has not been determined. If the Warriors (44- 29) finish with a better record than the Chicago Bulls (48-26), they will oppose the Milwaukee Bucks in the playoffs.

But if the Bulls finish with more victories, Golden State opens against the Los Angeles Lakers. If both Chicago and the Warriors finish with the same number of wins, they must have a one-game playoff to determine the seeding.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF



A Place For Everything

By LEE TREVINO

When some kinks show up in your game, don't try to iron 'em out on the golf course. Wrong place. The right place is the practice tee.

If you suddenly develop a hook during a round, just allow for the hook. Don't start moving your hands, shifting your feet or double-clutching your downswing while you're looking at a tight par 4 with water to the right and a fence jammed against your hip pockets.

Finish the round with what you've got, even if it's a headache. Some guys tie themselves in knots trying to shake an attack of hooks or slices. Most times, they could change to a 3-wood off the tee and shoot par. THEN they should try to straighten out their game on the practice tee.

You ain't ever gonna see Mario Andretti experimenting on cornering techniques in the middle of the Indy 500. And Muhammad Ali's not gonna test his "shuffle" while George Foreman's drawing a bead on him. Same way with golf. There's a place for everything.

All shots don't require the same swing. When you try to work yourself out of trouble on the course, what you get is worse.

PREP NOTES

Albert Field To Survive

By LEW CODDINGTON

Albert Field will survive.

At times it looked like Marin's only lighted baseball field would be rendered soggy and useless by the heavy winter rains, but the diamond dried out sufficiently during recent clear weather and is now in use.

Just in time, too. The field is used constantly by San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools, frequently by other prep teams, and by the Senior Division youth baseball program as well. Not to mention innumerable softball teams beginning next month.

At the height of the rainy weather a month or so ago, there was standing water of four to six inches in parts of the outfield, according to recreation supervisor Ralph Dannenberg of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department.

"Now the dirt and grass are both in excellent shape, and the outfield is good except for a few slick spots," said Dannenberg yesterday. Coach Jack Sims of San Rafael, whose team Tuesday played the first game of the year on the field, confirmed the analysis.

The field has comparatively good drainage, but is never covered. "The groundskeepers worked as hard as they could on it last fall after the season was over," said Dannenberg, "and during dry spells this year they went out and turned over the infield to keep the grass from growing."

San Rafael wasn't allowed to use the field for practice, and four games scheduled for the site were called due to rain or wet grounds, but otherwise there have been no problems.

Most of the actual work on the field is done by Lyndal (J.J.) Johnson, a groundsman in the parks division working under parks superintendent Scott Tilden.

EVENT — A new event in MCAL track this year is the 330-yard low hurdles, replacing the 180 lows. The 330s more closely resemble the 440 intermediate hurdles, which are run in college.

RIPPLE — Due to seepage of water during the abnormally wet winter, two of Tamalpais High School's three tennis courts have been damaged. They are "rippled," explained coach Hart Smith, "and one of them looks like corduroy."

Until they are fixed, the City of Mill Valley is letting Tam use the courts at Boyle Park for matches, but for practice, the students have to take turns on the lone court at the school.

Petaluma Track Team Is Beaten

IT'S PREDICTED

Learning Safety By Boat Racing

By RON LENT

Racing can help teach boating safety.

This is the belief of Norman S. Buell, 1973 commodore of the Predicted Log Racing Association of Northern California. The smiling skipper from the East Bay staunchly contends that predicted log racing is a sport which tests a power boat skipper's abilities in nautical expertise.

"Navigation is a good thing to know in Marin waters," Buell said. Buell, of Kensington, and 14 other boating epxerts were on hand Saturday at the Loch Lomond yacht harbor to teach 30 members representing seven of the Pacific Inter-Club Yachting Association clubs the basics of predicted log racing.

It was a novice day program presented by the Predicted Log Racing Association of Northern California and the pros were there to teach and help the beginners chart courses, determine water and wind currents, and ascertain boat capabilities.

The day-long program began with 90 minutes of talks dealing with the fundamentals of predicted log racing. After that, the assembly divided into small groups and spent about two hours charting courses. "It normally takes an expert about 20 minutes to do this," Buell added, "but these people are just learning. We encourage them to work deliberately."

After computing his time in covering the 5½-mile course and filling in his prediction log which showed the elapsed time for each of the three legs, the skipper would go out at a predetermined time and run the course; the contestant would then navigate the course on the course line designated, pass control points on the side specified and make turns as listed. Meanwhile, observers note infractions and, at check points, mark the times. Immediately after the race ends, the contestant will assist the observer in delivering his log to the committee.

While on board the Seaprize, a vessel entered in the competition by Mr. and Mrs. Nat Mewhinney of Oakland, Buell outlined a few of the scoring intricacies. "You have starting and finishing times plus three other check points. At the various check points, your official time (from Point A to Point B) is recorded. At the end of the race, your predictions in getting to and from the various points are compared with your actual times. The difference between the times are counted against you. Lowest error wins."

The two-man crews were competing for trophies in categories such as fewest errors for fast vessel, fewest for slower boats and a consolation bracket "for the skipper and crewman who have the most difficulty on the course," according to Buell.

George Johnston of the North Bay Yacht Club, skippering "China Doll," was the overall trophy winner. The El Cerrito resident had a score of 0.29.

The commodore then proceeded to describe the course which would take about an hour to run. "We start at the 'Birdcage,' at the entrance of the San Rafael channel. We go under the center of the west channel of the San Rafael Bridge, then to the east channel entrance, then to terminal four wharf near Pt. San Pablo, and back to the starting place."

The San Rafael resident points out that the term "race" is a misnomer when discussing predicted log racing. "You can race at any speed you wish, within limits. You generally go between five and 20 knots. To win, all you have to do is maintain your speed through the water, stay on course, and arrive at the checkpoints and the finish line at the time you say you will."

Bradley, Giants Vs. San Diego

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "Some of the younger players won't get the chance we anticipated," says San Francisco Giants manager Charlie Fox after the Giants third rainout of spring training.

When it rained Wednesday, Fox also was thwarted for the third time in his attempt to get a look at right-hander Tom Bradley, who will be counted on to start. Now Bradley, traded from the Chicago White Sox, is scheduled to make his first exhibition start today in Yuma against the San Diego Padres.

To recapture rained out playing time, the Giants will attempt a doubleheader tomorrow against the Padres.

Fox showed some 1972 Giants films to entertain the troops and told players he wouldn't have as much opportunity to give them all a good tryout due to the bad weather.

The manager said his starting pitchers will be Bradley, Juan Marichal, Ron Bryant, Sam McDowell and Jim Willoughby. Marichal and McDowell maintained their starting positions despite disappointing seasons last year.

New Team Formed

The Corte Madera Volunteer Firemen's Association Tuesday night decided to sponsor a team in the new Babe Ruth baseball league which will play in Corte Madera, Larkspur and Greenbrae this season, reported fire chief Frank L. Nelson.

Terra Linda Loses

Trojan Dave Cotton set a school dual meet diving scoring record at 218.65 but it wasn't enough yesterday as Terra Linda High School (3-2) dropped a non-league swim meet to Los Lomas of Walnut Creek, 61-34, in the winner's pool. Aaron Grossman set the previous record last year at 209.20.

Miller, Leo Enter Round Three Of Row

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Leo Durocher-Marvin Miller battle went into round three Wednesday with Miller taking the offensive, something that's rarely done against Durocher.

Miller, the executive director of the Players Assocation, and Durocher, the manager of the Houston Astros, began their battle Monday when Durocher broke up a meeting between Miller and Astro players to begin a practice session.

Durocher was fined $250 by National League President Chub Feeney for interfering but has refused to pay the fine. He has taken the case to his lawyer and is threatening to sue the league.

Miller, who has demanded an apology from the Astros, Wednesday called Durocher, "a freeloader. When I came into baseball a little over six years ago, the maximum pension was $723 a month. Durocher retired last year and began drawing $2,000 a month, the difference there being due solely to the players and the Players Association. In all that time, Durocher has not been a member and has not paid dues. He's been a freeloader, riding on the backs of players, fellow managers, coaches and trainers."

Durocher was silent, saying only that he had turned the entire matter over to his attorney.

In on the field activity, Boston edged Montreal 7-6, the New York Yankees beat St. Louis 3-1, the New York Mets downed Detroit 6-4, Los Angeles bombed Pittsburgh 10-2, the Chicago White Sox shaded Atlanta 4-3, Cincinnati beat Houston 7-3, Baltimore edged Minnesota 4-3 and Kansas City stophed Philadelphia 3-2. Three games in Arizona were rained out.

Warriors, Houston Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — Now that the pressure is off, the Golden State Warriors will see what Bob Portman, George Johnson, Fritz Williams and Charlie Johnson can do.

Those players will be seeing a lot of action tonight when the Warriors take on the Houston Rockets to begin a homestretch drive. Seven of the remaining nine games of the National Basketball Association season will be played at the Coliseum.

Golden State already has clinched a playoff berth but a playoff foe has not been determined. If the Warriors (44- 29) finish with a better record than the Chicago Bulls (48-26), they will oppose the Milwaukee Bucks in the playoffs.

But if the Bulls finish with more victories, Golden State opens against the Los Angeles Lakers. If both Chicago and the Warriors finish with the same number of wins, they must have a one-game playoff to determine the seeding.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

A Place For Everything

By LEE TREVINO

When some kinks show up in your game, don't try to iron 'em out on the golf course. Wrong place. The right place is the practice tee.

If you suddenly develop a hook during a round, just allow for the hook. Don't start moving your hands, shifting your feet or double-clutching your downswing while you're looking at a tight par 4 with water to the right and a fence jammed against your hip pockets.

Finish the round with what you've got, even if it's a headache. Some guys tie themselves in knots trying to shake an attack of hooks or slices. Most times, they could change to a 3-wood off the tee and shoot par. THEN they should try to straighten out their game on the practice tee.

You ain't ever gonna see Mario Andretti experimenting on cornering techniques in the middle of the Indy 500. And Muhammad Ali's not gonna test his "shuffle" while George Foreman's drawing a bead on him. Same way with golf. There's a place for everything.

All shots don't require the same swing. When you try to work yourself out of trouble on the course, what you get is worse.

Miss Cochran Wins Japan Ski Slalom

Combined AP & UPI

NAEBA, Japan — American Marilyn Cochran, tossing aside caution on a steep run, won the women's giant slalom and France's Jean-Noel Augert scored an impressive triumph on the men's slalom course that two-thirds of the skiers could not finish in World Cup races today.

The 23-year-old Miss Cochran, of Richmond, Vt., won by four-tenths of a second in 1:36.83.

Austria's Annemarie Proell, who already had clinched her third straight World Cup, looked certain to take second in 1:37.38.

Augert, who commented that the hill "was very steep, but I liked it," had runs of 54.69 and 55.65 seconds for a total of 1:50.34, comfortably ahead of West German Christian Neureuther's 1:52.24.

Tennis

NEW YORK — The Bobby Riggs-Margaret Court tennis match — the first male-female confrontation on the court for prize money — will be televised live on CBS, Channel 5 May 13 from San Diego. Originally, the match was scheduled for April 28.

PREP NOTES

Albert Field To Survive

By LEW CODDINGTON

Albert Field will survive.

At times it looked like Marin's only lighted baseball field would be rendered soggy and useless by the heavy winter rains, but the diamond dried out sufficiently during recent clear weather and is now in use.

Just in time, too. The field is used constantly by San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools, frequently by other prep teams, and by the Senior Division youth baseball program as well. Not to mention innumerable softball teams beginning next month.

At the height of the rainy weather a month or so ago, there was standing water of four to six inches in parts of the outfield, according to recreation supervisor Ralph Dannenberg of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department.

"Now the dirt and grass are both in excellent shape, and the outfield is good except for a few slick spots," said Dannenberg yesterday. Coach Jack Sims of San Rafael, whose team Tuesday played the first game of the year on the field, confirmed the analysis.

The field has comparatively good drainage, but is never covered. "The groundskeepers worked as hard as they could on it last fall after the season was over," said Dannenberg, "and during dry spells this year they went out and turned over the infield to keep the grass from growing."

San Rafael wasn't allowed to use the field for practice, and four games scheduled for the site were called due to rain or wet grounds, but otherwise there have been no problems.

Most of the actual work on the field is done by Lyndal (J.J.) Johnson, a groundsman in the parks division working under parks superintendent Scott Tilden.

EVENT — A new event in MCAL track this year is the 330-yard low hurdles, replacing the 180 lows. The 330s more closely resemble the 440 intermediate hurdles, which are run in college.

RIPPLE — Due to seepage of water during the abnormally wet winter, two of Tamalpais High School's three tennis courts have been damaged. They are "rippled," explained coach Hart Smith, "and one of them looks like corduroy."

Until they are fixed, the City of Mill Valley is letting Tam use the courts at Boyle Park for matches, but for practice, the students have to take turns on the lone court at the school.

Petaluma Track Team Is Beaten

Petaluma High School opened its North Bay League track and field season yesterday with an 80-46 loss to host Montgomery of Santa Rosa.

The Trojans had just two individual winners, Bob Martinez with an 11.0 clocking in the 100-yard dash and Jon Sisler, 4:32.2 in the mile.

THE SKI SCENE

Racing Turns To Spectator Sport

By CHARLIE COANE
(Season's final column)

Ski racing just ain't what it used to be. Several years ago professional ski racers were around, but they didn't create much of a stir. Then about four years ago, under the guiding hand of Bob Beattie, former U.S. Ski Team coach and now perhaps skiing's foremost promoter, the International Ski Racers Association was formed. The organization has grown in prestige and this year the most excitement in ski racing takes place when the association has one of its weekend races.

There are basically three reasons for the excitement in pro ski racing: Jean Claude Killy, Spider Sabich and the dual challenge competition which matches man against man on twin courses. The competition between Killy and Sabich all season has been like something out of Hollywood.

Killy, the handsome, soft-spoken, legendary Frenchman is a rookie on the "tour" this season, out of competition for five years, the 29-year-old Olympic triple gold medal winner just couldn't stand it any more. He is trying to prove to the world that he can win as a pro just as he did as an amateur.

Sabich, a 28-year-old free-wheeling American bachelor right out of "central casting," has been the top dog as a pro after an average career as an amateur. There was the setting, Killy and Sabich. And the plot began. The Grand Prix tour, conducted much like tennis and golf, travels to various ski resorts throughout the winter to stage slalom and giant slalom races — for money.

At first Killy faltered, unfamiliar with this new head-to-head racing. And Sabich was still winning. Soon Killy regained the form which made him the most famous skier in history, and he and Sabich have been neck-and-neck ever since. Who will come out as "numero uno" this season remains in doubt and probably won't be decided until April, when the final of 12 outings takes place. Other top racers, Austrians Hugo Nindl and Harald Stuefer and Frances Alain Penz, were winning several dollars also, but it's Killy and Sabich that are running one, two, or two, one.

The new format dual competition has made ski racing far more of a spectator sport and much more exciting than the traditional run gainst the clock, which still is the backbone of amateur racing, although many coaches are trying the new technique. Spectators can watch racers battle side-by-side on dual courses. A typical tournament race will see the dozens of racers narrowed to 16 men bracketed, as in tennis, according to earlier timed runs against the clock. From then on it's strictly match racing with winners advancing to the next round and losers eliminated. In each match two runs are made. The racers switch courses after the first run and go again. The winner is determined by the overall time differential between the two racers over the two runs.

go Black Hawks Sunday the Seals outshot the Canucks 36-31 but yet came up on the short end of the score. California unloaded 19 shots on goalie Dunc Wilson in the final period but the Canuck netminder rose to the occasion and batted all of them away with the exception of Leach's 20th of the season.

Six members of the Seals said the only way they would remain with the club would be if owner Charles O. Finley fired general manager-coach Fred Glover and allowed the National Hockey League to buy up the franchise.

Panagakis emphasized defense, and Garner feels he improved that phase of his game. He blocks many shots and forces others out of their intended paths — "and if you alter a shot, it's as good as blocking it," Panagakis notes.

The adjustment to junior college ball was made, however, and leaves Garner now with only one major problem:

Redwood Tabbed Track Favorite

By LEW CODDINGTON

Redwood High School again appears to have the team to beat in Marin County Athletic League track and field, with the stiffest challenges expected to come from San Marin, Terra Linda and Tamalpais.

San Marin, in fact, won the MCAL Relays Saturday and returns most of the strength off the team which was second to Redwood during the dual-meet season last year. The trouble is, Redwood returns its strength as well.

The dual-meet season is scheduled to get underway tomorrow afternoon, with San Marin at Terra Linda, Redwood at Drake, Marin Catholic at San Rafael and Tamalpais at Novato, all at 3:30 p.m.

This year, the freshman, sophomore and Class B competitors will be combined into one class, known as "frosh-soph-B," not surprisingly. A full schedule of girls' meets will be run simultaneously with the boys' for the first time.

The nucleus of defending champion Redwood, of course, is the outstanding set of distance runners inherited from last fall's North Coast Section champion cross-country team, judged by the U.S. Track and Field Federation the third best in the nation.

For example, coach Doug Basham feels Ned Overend and Dave Brainerd may be the best milers in Redwood history. They'll have to be to defeat Brian Tracy, defending MCAL champion in the event. None will leave Jan-Eric Moller, Pete Sweeney, Mike Killeen or sophomore Pete Demarais far behind. Step down to the half-mile, and there's Ed Phelps.

The field events are another strong area. Darrell Elder, up from Class B, can heave the shot and discus, and four others are pressing him. The high jump is set with sophomores Mark Kilmer and Steve Trobbe.

San Marin coach Jim Van der Beets expects his team to do well in virtually every event. Gary Lathrop and Dan Turek are fine distance runners and will be joined by Tim Lessley from the Class B team. Sprinter Ken Kassenbrock has abandoned the tennis team and Wayne Roche and Steve Goins also are threats in short distances. Other respected names include Larry Butti in the high jump, Mark Tornai in the long jump and Steve Fowler in the shot and discus.

Tamalpais also is strong in the long distances with Kian McCarthy and Tony Hyun, among others, and in the short distances with Bill Busby. Fred Adams is an outstanding hurdler up from Class B. Coach Clyde Krusinski's Indians suffered graduation losses in the field events, however.

Terra Linda has the league's premier high jumper and triple jumper, Mark Lowey, and an excellent shot putter in Dan Skeen. Coach Barry Amsden considers sophomore Steve Johnson the fastest sprinter in the county. Bruce Bollen looks good as a springer and hurdler. In the distances, however, the Trojans do not match the other three contenders.

San Rafael has some good distance people from cross-country in Brian Woodhouse, Brian McCurdy and Brook Chestnut, and hopes for a return to form by injured sprinter Jim Grigg.

Novato has a fine high jumper up from Class B, Willie Barnes, and a proven sprinter in Joe Powell. Scott Warnock and Paul Kessler give strength in the weight events, and George Cagle was a top "B" 880 runner. Coach Craig Bond is happy with the Hornet's depth.

Drake expects to be strongest in the sprints and field events and weakest in the long distance races, according to Gerry Kobil, assistant to coach Morrie Shepherd. Weight man Sil Cervantes, sprinter Phil Wilkinson, hurdler Tony Grey, 440 man Jeff Franceschi and high jumper Jos Gilliam will be key Pirates.

San Marin Trackmen Win Triangular Meet

San Marin High School outclassed the opposition in a triangular track and field meet yesterday at Sonoma State College, scoring 85 points to Rancho Cotate's 42 and Cloverdale's 31. Rancho, of Rohnert Park, was the host school.

Top performances were turned in by a trio of San Marin athletes — Ken Kassenbrock's 10.2 clocking in the 100-yard dash, Gary Lathrop's 4:31.1 mile and Dan Turek's 10:06 two-mile.

Racing Turns To Spectator Sport

By CHARLIE COANE
(Season's final column)

Ski racing just ain't what it used to be. Several years ago professional ski racers were around, but they didn't create much of a stir. Then about four years ago, under the guiding hand of Bob Beattie, former U.S. Ski Team coach and now perhaps skiing's foremost promoter, the International Ski Racers Association was formed. The organization has grown in prestige and this year the most excitement in ski racing takes place when the association has one of its weekend races.

There are basically three reasons for the excitement in pro ski racing: Jean Claude Killy, Spider Sabich and the dual challenge competition which matches man against man on twin courses. The competition between Killy and Sabich all season has been like something out of Hollywood.

Killy, the handsome, soft-spoken, legendary Frenchman is a rookie on the "tour" this season, out of competition for five years, the 29-year-old Olympic triple gold medal winner just couldn't stand it any more. He is trying to prove to the world that he can win as a pro just as he did as an amateur.

Sabich, a 28-year-old freewheeling American bachelor right out of "central casting," has been the top dog as a pro after an average career as an amateur. There was the setting, Killy and Sabich. And the plot began. The Grand Prix tour, conducted much like tennis and golf, travels to various ski resorts throughout the winter to stage slalom and giant slalom races — for money.

At first Killy faltered, unfamiliar with this new head-to-head racing. And Sabich was still winning. Soon Killy regained the form which made him the most famous skier in history, and he and Sabich have been neck-and-neck ever since. Who will come out as "numero uno" this season remains in doubt and probably won't be decided until April, when the final of 12 outings takes place. Other top racers, Austrians Hugo Nindl and Harald Stuefer and Frances Alain Penz, were winning several dollars also, but it's Killy and Sabich that are running one, two, or two, one.

The new format dual competition has made ski racing far more of a spectator sport and much more exciting than the traditional run gainst the clock, which still is the backbone of amateur racing, although many coaches are trying the new technique. Spectators can watch racers battle side-by-side on dual courses. A typical tournament race will see the dozens of racers narrowed to 16 men bracketed, as in tennis, according to earlier timed runs against the clock. From then on it's strictly match racing with winners advancing to the next round and losers eliminated. In each match two runs are made. The racers switch courses after the first run and go again. The winner is determined by the overall time differential between the two racers over the two runs.

go Black Hawks Sunday the Seals outshot the Canucks 36-31 but yet came up on the short end of the score. California unloaded 19 shots on goalie Dunc Wilson in the final period but the Canuck netminder rose to the occasion and batted all of them away with the exception of Leach's 20th of the season.

Six members of the Seals said the only way they would remain with the club would be if owner Charles O. Finley fired general manager-coach Fred Glover and allowed the National Hockey League to buy up the franchise.

Redwood Tabbed Track Favorite

By LEW CODDINGTON

Redwood High School again appears to have the team to beat in Marin County Athletic League track and field, with the stiffest challenges expected to come from San Marin, Terra Linda and Tamalpais.

San Marin, in fact, won the MCAL Relays Saturday and returns most of the strength off the team which was second to Redwood during the dual-meet season last year. The trouble is, Redwood returns its strength as well.

The dual-meet season is scheduled to get underway tomorrow afternoon, with San Marin at Terra Linda, Redwood at Drake, Marin Catholic at San Rafael and Tamalpais at Novato, all at 3:30 p.m.

This year, the freshman, sophomore and Class B competitors will be combined into one class, known as "frosh-soph-B," not surprisingly. A full schedule of girls' meets will be run simultaneously with the boys' for the first time.

The nucleus of defending champion Redwood, of course, is the outstanding set of distance runners inherited from last fall's North Coast Section champion cross-country team, judged by the U.S. Track and Field Federation the third best in the nation.

For example, coach Doug Basham feels Ned Overend and Dave Brainerd may be the best milers in Redwood history. They'll have to be to defeat Brian Tracy, defending MCAL champion in the event. None will leave Jan-Eric Moller, Pete Sweeney, Mike Killeen or sophomore Pete Demarais far behind. Step down to the half-mile, and there's Ed Phelps.

The field events are another strong area. Darrell Elder, up from Class B, can heave the shot and discus, and four others are pressing him. The high jump is set with sophomores Mark Kilmer and Steve Trobbe.

San Marin coach Jim Van der Beets expects his team to do well in virtually every event. Gary Lathrop and Dan Turek are fine distance runners and will be joined by Tim Lessley from the Class B team. Sprinter Ken Kassenbrock has abandoned the tennis team and Wayne Roche and Steve Goins also are threats in short distances. Other respected names include Larry Butti in the high jump, Mark Tornai in the long jump and Steve Fowler in the shot and discus.

Tamalpais also is strong in the long distances with Kian McCarthy and Tony Hyun, among others, and in the short distances with Bill Busby. Fred Adams is an outstanding hurdler up from Class B. Coach Clyde Krusinski's Indians suffered graduation losses in the field events, however.

Terra Linda has the league's premier high jumper and triple jumper, Mark Lowey, and an excellent shot putter in Dan Skeen. Coach Barry Amsden considers sophomore Steve Johnson the fastest sprinter in the county. Bruce Bollen looks good as a springer and hurdler. In the distances, however, the Trojans do not match the other three contenders.

San Rafael has some good distance people from cross-country in Brian Woodhouse, Brian McCurdy and Brook Chestnut, and hopes for a return to form by injured sprinter Jim Grigg.

Novato has a fine high jumper up from Class B, Willie Barnes, and a proven sprinter in Joe Powell. Scott Warnock and Paul Kessler give strength in the weight events, and George Cagle was a top "B" 880 runner. Coach Craig Bond is happy with the Hornet's depth.

Drake expects to be strongest in the sprints and field events and weakest in the long distance races, according to Gerry Kobil, assistant to coach Morrie Shepherd. Weight man Sil Cervantes, sprinter Phil Wilkinson, hurdler Tony Grey, 440 man Jeff Franceschi and high jumper Jos Gilliam will be key Pirates.

Stock Listing Rules Given

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold stock in Ecodyne which has been listed recently on the American Stock Exchange. Will this stock eventually move to the Big Board? Would you discuss the differences, if any, in listing requirements between the two exchanges? — G. J.

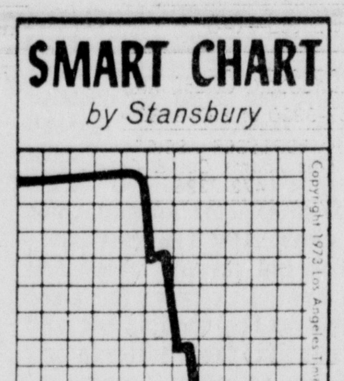
A. Although there are about the same number of issues listed on these two major exchanges, there is a considerable difference in the dollar and share volume of trading. In fact, ASE share volume currently averages only 25 per cent of that on the NYSE. The prestige and nationwide exposure of Big Board listing prompted 94 companies to apply for and be accepted by the NYSE during 1972.

Listing requirements for the two markets include most of the same criteria with differences occurring primarily in the amounts specified. For an issue to be initially listed on the Big Board pre-tax earnings must have reached $2.5 million annually with $2 million in each of the preceding two years. Amex requires $500,000 in pre-tax and $300,000 after tax net income.

While a company may join the ASE with only 300,000 publicly held shares, the NYSE has an 800,000 minimum. Of the mandatory 2,000 public shareholders, 1,800 must hold 100 shares each for Big Board listing, whereas Amex specifies 900 and 600, respectively. A $5 minimum share price is called for by the ASE with no minimum share price set on the New York.

Net tangible assets and aggregate market value of publicly held shares are both $14 million for New York listing and $3 million and $2 million, respectively, for the American. It is entirely probable that Ecodyne, if it continues to grow, will at some future date apply for NYSE listing, since today this is the natural progression. However, tradition may be shattered if the proposed Central Market System becomes a reality. The first step along the way, a composite stock ticker system, is yet to be realized.

Congress will begin hearings this year on the subject of a central market structure.



"No, I DO NOT remember your telling me that risk of loss existed right in there with chance of gain."

Monetary Float Plays Market Role

Most analysts expected the condition to last at least until investors have some idea of how the new monetary float in Europe is going to work. The full impact of the float may be seen next Monday, when official European monetary exchanges are reopened.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks was 0.75 lower at 978.10 shortly before noon (EST). Declines led advances, 538 to 485, among the 1,471 issues crossing the tape.

San Diego Gas & Electric was most active, unchanged at 18 ⅛ on 67,200 shares.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange. Most active was Guard Mortgage Investors warrants, unchanged at 8 ⅝ on turnover of 39,000.

Big Board oil stocks generally were higher with Superior adding 2 ¼ and Mountain Fuel Supply 1 ⅛.

Glamors were mixed as Wrigley added 3, Schlumberger 1 ¼ and Xerox 1. Polaroid lost 1 ⅜.

CLAY IN MIND Ceramic Studio, emphasizing individual instruction in creative ceramics, will open Monday at 95 Mitchell Boulevard, Northgate Industrial Park, in space formerly occupied by the Ceramic Center.

Kay and Joey Haudel of Fairfax took over the old Ceramic Center from Nick Laufenberg of Sleepy Hollow four months ago and have been remodeling the place for conversion into a studio for beginning and advanced students of ceramic.

Mrs. Haudel has a master's degree in ceramics from University of Missouri. Her husband operated an antique business and did building and contracting for about four years in Boston. They came to San Francisco a year and a half ago and to Fairfax six months ago.

Students will be taught how to mix and apply glazes as well as to load and fire a kiln. "We have a separate room for wheel throwing, and a separate room for hand building," said Mrs. Haudel. "The courses stress idea development, not production pottery."

The studio will have a display area and periodic sales of student work. Eventually, it will add a retail section for sale of ceramics, but for the moment, the emphasis is on teaching with attention to individual creativity, said Mrs. Haudel.

RONALD H. SCHOFIELD of Rohnert Park has been named operations officer in Wells Fargo Bank's Novato office.

Jaguar Recall Is Announced

I-J Special Report

LEONIA, N.J. — British Leyland Motors Inc. has advised owners of late 1972 and early 1973 Jaguar sedans to have them checked for a possible steering assembly defect.

There is a small chance, the company says, that a locating device, a tapered metal plug, in the assembly may not be properly positioned. This could lead to variations in steering alignmentand directional control should the car be driven over extremely rough surfaces or hit a bump.

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold stock in Ecodyne which has been listed recently on the American Stock Exchange. Will this stock eventually move to the Big Board? Would you discuss the differences, if any, in listing requirements between the two exchanges? — G. J.

A. Although there are about the same number of issues listed on these two major exchanges, there is a considerable difference in the dollar and share volume of trading. In fact, ASE share volume currently averages only 25 per cent of that on the NYSE. The prestige and nationwide exposure of Big Board listing prompted 94 companies to apply for and be accepted by the NYSE during 1972.

Listing requirements for the two markets include most of the same criteria with differences occurring primarily in the amounts specified. For an issue to be initially listed on the Big Board pre-tax earnings must have reached $2.5 million annually with $2 million in each of the preceding two years. Amex requires $500,000 in pretax and $300,000 after tax net income.

While a company may join the ASE with only 300,000 publicly held shares, the NYSE has an 800,000 minimum. Of the mandatory 2,000 public shareholders, 1,800 must hold 100 shares each for Big Board listing, whereas Amex specifies 900 and 600, respectively. A $5 minimum share price is called for by the ASE with no minimum share price set on the New York.

Net tangible assets and aggregate market value of publicly held shares are both $14 million for New York listing and $3 million and $2 million, respectively, for the American. It is entirely probable that Ecodyne, if it continues to grow, will at some future date apply for NYSE listing, since today this is the natural progression. However, tradition may be shattered if the proposed Central Market System becomes a reality. The first step along the way, a composite stock ticker system, is yet to be realized.

Congress will begin hearings this year on the subject of a central market structure.

Monetary Float Plays Market Role

Most analysts expected the condition to last at least until investors have some idea of how the new monetary float in Europe is going to work. The full impact of the float may be seen next Monday, when official European monetary exchanges are reopened.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks was 0.75 lower at 978.10 shortly before noon (EST). Declines led advances, 538 to 485, among the 1,471 issues crossing the tape.

San Diego Gas & Electric was most active, unchanged at 18 ⅛ on 67,200 shares.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange. Most active was Guard Mortgage Investors warrants, unchanged at 8 ⅝ on turnover of 39,000.

Big Board oil stocks generally were higher with Superior adding 2 ¼ and Mountain Fuel Supply 1 ⅛.

Glamors were mixed as Wrigley added 3, Schlumberger 1 ¼ and Xerox 1. Polaroid lost 1 ⅜.

CLAY IN MIND Ceramic Studio, emphasizing individual instruction in creative ceramics, will open Monday at 95 Mitchell Boulevard, Northgate Industrial Park, in space formerly occupied by the Ceramic Center.

Kay and Joey Haudel of Fairfax took over the old Ceramic Center from Nick Laufenberg of Sleepy Hollow four months ago and have been remodeling the place for conversion into a studio for beginning and advanced students of ceramic.

Mrs. Haudel has a master's degree in ceramics from University of Missouri. Her husband operated an antique business and did building and contracting for about four years in Boston. They came to San Francisco a year and a half ago and to Fairfax six months ago.

Students will be taught how to mix and apply glazes as well as to load and fire a kiln. "We have a separate room for wheel throwing, and a separate room for hand building," said Mrs. Haudel. "The courses stress idea development, not production pottery."

The studio will have a display area and periodic sales of student work. Eventually, it will add a retail section for sale of ceramics, but for the moment, the emphasis is on teaching with attention to individual creativity, said Mrs. Haudel.

Jaguar Recall Is Announced

I-J Special Report

LEONIA, N.J. — British Leyland Motors Inc. has advised owners of late 1972 and early 1973 Jaguar sedans to have them checked for a possible steering assembly defect.

There is a small chance, the company says, that a locating device, a tapered metal plug, in the assembly may not be properly positioned. This could lead to variations in steering alignmentand directional control should the car be driven over extremely rough surfaces or hit a bump.

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold stock in Ecodyne which has been listed recently on the American Stock Exchange. Will this stock eventually move to the Big Board? Would you discuss the differences, if any, in listing requirements between the two exchanges? — G. J.

A. Although there are about the same number of issues listed on these two major exchanges, there is a considerable difference in the dollar and share volume of trading. In fact, ASE share volume currently averages only 25 per cent of that on the NYSE. The prestige and nationwide exposure of Big Board listing prompted 94 companies to apply for and be accepted by the NYSE during 1972.

Listing requirements for the two markets include most of the same criteria with differences occurring primarily in the amounts specified. For an issue to be initially listed on the Big Board pre-tax earnings must have reached $2.5 million annually with $2 million in each of the preceding two years. Amex requires $500,000 in pretax and $300,000 after tax net income.

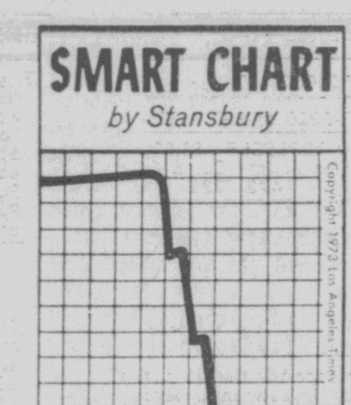
While a company may join the ASE with only 300,000 publicly held shares, the NYSE has an 800,000 minimum. Of the mandatory 2,000 public shareholders, 1,800 must hold 100 shares each for Big Board listing, whereas Amex specifies 900 and 600, respectively. A $5 minimum share price is called for by the ASE with no minimum share price set on the New York.

Net tangible assets and aggregate market value of publicly held shares are both $14 million for New York listing and $3 million and $2 million, respectively, for the American. It is entirely probable that Ecodyne, if it continues to grow, will at some future date apply for NYSE listing, since today this is the natural progression. However, tradition may be shattered if the proposed Central Market System becomes a reality. The first step along the way, a composite stock ticker system, is yet to be realized.

Congress will begin hearings this year on the subject of a central market structure.

SMART CHART

by Stansbury



"No, I DO NOT remember your telling me that risk of loss existed right in there with chance of gain."

Monetary Float Plays Market Role

Most analysts expected the condition to last at least until investors have some idea of how the new monetary float in Europe is going to work. The full impact of the float may be seen next Monday, when official European monetary exchanges are reopened.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks was 0.75 lower at 978.10 shortly before noon (EST). Declines led advances, 538 to 485, among the 1,471 issues crossing the tape.

San Diego Gas & Electric was most active, unchanged at 18 ⅛ on 67,200 shares.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange. Most active was Guard Mortgage Investors warrants, unchanged at 8 ⅝ on turnover of 39,000.

Big Board oil stocks generally were higher with Superior adding 2 ¼ and Mountain Fuel Supply 1 ⅛.

Glamors were mixed as Wrigley added 3, Schlumberger 1 ¼ and Xerox 1. Polaroid lost 1 ⅜.

Hardeman heads the Golden Gate chapter of American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air Conditioning Engineers, which sponsored the seminar. Since 1955, he has headed C.S. Hardeman Inc. of San Francisco, a licensed mechanical and general building contractor company.

CLAY IN MIND Ceramic Studio, emphasizing individual instruction in creative ceramics, will open Monday at 95 Mitchell Boulevard, Northgate Industrial Park, in space formerly occupied by the Ceramic Center.

Kay and Joey Haudel of Fairfax took over the old Ceramic Center from Nick Laufenberg of Sleepy Hollow four months ago and have been remodeling the place for conversion into a studio for beginning and advanced students of ceramic.

Mrs. Haudel has a master's degree in ceramics from University of Missouri. Her husband operated an antique business and did building and contracting for about four years in Boston. They came to San Francisco a year and a half ago and to Fairfax six months ago.

Students will be taught how to mix and apply glazes as well as to load and fire a kiln. "We have a separate room for wheel throwing, and a separate room for hand building," said Mrs. Haudel. "The courses stress idea development, not production pottery."

The studio will have a display area and periodic sales of student work. Eventually, it will add a retail section for sale of ceramics, but for the moment, the emphasis is on teaching with attention to individual creativity, said Mrs. Haudel.

RONALD H. SCHOFIELD of Rohnert Park has been named operations officer in Wells Fargo Bank's Novato office.

Schofield joined Wells Fargo in 1970 and was operations officer in the San Jose office before his assignment to Novato.

WILLIAM W. SILER of Novato has joined Waldron & Co. Inc. investment securities firm in San Rafael as an account executive. Siler came to Marin about a month ago from Belleville, Ill., where he had been in the securities field for about eight years.

Jaguar Recall Is Announced

I-J Special Report

LEONIA, N.J. — British Leyland Motors Inc. has advised owners of late 1972 and early 1973 Jaguar sedans to have them checked for a possible steering assembly defect.

There is a small chance, the company says, that a locating device, a tapered metal plug, in the assembly may not be properly positioned. This could lead to variations in steering alignmentand directional control should the car be driven over extremely rough surfaces or hit a bump.

Teacher Finds He Wasn't Eating Beef

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Schoolteacher Edward Rooney thought he was dining on beef for the last three years, but his wife and nine children were feeding him horsemeat.

The truth emerged this week when Mrs. Rooney was pictured on the front page of the Portland newspaper, The Oregonian, buying at a market specializing in horsemeat. She said that eating horsemeat kept the family's grocery budget manageable in the face of skyrocketing meat prices.

Rooney said his 16-year-old daughter tried to hide the newspaper's front section but he finally got hold of it. He said the family secret was more a surprise than a shock and the more he thought about it, "the less I thought about it."

Ballots Offered Absent Voters

Absentee ballots may be procured by mail from: Elections Division, Civic Center, room 152, San Rafael, 94903, or in person between Mar. 19 and April 10.

Those who apply in person can vote at the same time. Ballots must be returned by April 10.

Methadone Users Taking Cocaine

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Almost one in 10 drug addicts undergoing methadone maintenance across the country is using cocaine, according to the manufacturer of a new cocaine detection method.

Syva Company, a joint venture of Syntex Laboratories and Varian Associates, said the figure is as high as 17.5 per cent in one clinic, as high as the number of addicts reported backsliding to heroin.

Syva tested 3,500 addicts in San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Washington and other cities by using a new cocaine screening system that detects the presence in urine of benzoyl ecgonine, a substance produced by the body after cocaine is ingested.

Traffic Deaths Showing Decline

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Traffic deaths during the first two months of 1973 were down slightly from 1972, says the California Highway Patrol.

During the first 66 days of the year, the CHP said yesterday, traffic deaths totaled 740 in California. For the same period in 1972, the figure was 750.

Teacher Finds He Wasn't Eating Beef

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Schoolteacher Edward Rooney thought he was dining on beef for the last three years, but his wife and nine children were feeding him horsemeat.

The truth emerged this week when Mrs. Rooney was pictured on the front page of the Portland newspaper, The Oregonian, buying at a market specializing in horsemeat. She said that eating horsemeat kept the family's grocery budget manageable in the face of skyrocketing meat prices.

Rooney said his 16-year-old daughter tried to hide the newspaper's front section but he finally got hold of it. He said the family secret was more a surprise than a shock and the more he thought about it, "the less I thought about it."

Ballots Offered Absent Voters

Because the April 17 school board elections fall during spring vacation, many voters may be away from Marin County.

Absentee ballots may be procured by mail from: Elections Division, Civic Center, room 152, San Rafael, 94903, or in person between Mar. 19 and April 10.

Those who apply in person can vote at the same time. Ballots must be returned by April 10.

Methadone Users Taking Cocaine

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Almost one in 10 drug addicts undergoing methadone maintenance across the country is using cocaine, according to the manufacturer of a new cocaine detection method.

Syva Company, a joint venture of Syntex Laboratories and Varian Associates, said the figure is as high as 17.5 per cent in one clinic, as high as the number of addicts reported backsliding to heroin.

Syva tested 3,500 addicts in San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Washington and other cities by using a new cocaine screening system that detects the presence in urine of benzoyl ecgonine, a substance produced by the body after cocaine is ingested.

Traffic Deaths Showing Decline

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Traffic deaths during the first two months of 1973 were down slightly from 1972, says the California Highway Patrol.

During the first 66 days of the year, the CHP said yesterday, traffic deaths totaled 740 in California. For the same period in 1972, the figure was 750.

Teacher Finds He Wasn't Eating Beef

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Schoolteacher Edward Rooney thought he was dining on beef for the last three years, but his wife and nine children were feeding him horsemeat.

The truth emerged this week when Mrs. Rooney was pictured on the front page of the Portland newspaper, The Oregonian, buying at a market specializing in horsemeat. She said that eating horsemeat kept the family's grocery budget manageable in the face of skyrocketing meat prices.

Rooney said his 16-year-old daughter tried to hide the newspaper's front section but he finally got hold of it. He said the family secret was more a surprise than a shock and the more he thought about it, "the less I thought about it."

Absentee ballots may be procured by mail from: Elections Division, Civic Center, room 152, San Rafael, 94903, or in person between Mar. 19 and April 10.

Those who apply in person can vote at the same time. Ballots must be returned by April 10.

Methadone Users Taking Cocaine

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Almost one in 10 drug addicts undergoing methadone maintenance across the country is using cocaine, according to the manufacturer of a new cocaine detection method.

Syva Company, a joint venture of Syntex Laboratories and Varian Associates, said the figure is as high as 17.5 per cent in one clinic, as high as the number of addicts reported backsliding to heroin.

Syva tested 3,500 addicts in San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Washington and other cities by using a new cocaine screening system that detects the presence in urine of benzoyl ecgonine, a substance produced by the body after cocaine is ingested.

Traffic Deaths Showing Decline

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Traffic deaths during the first two months of 1973 were down slightly from 1972, says the California Highway Patrol.

During the first 66 days of the year, the CHP said yesterday, traffic deaths totaled 740 in California. For the same period in 1972, the figure was 750.

OLD COUNTRY TRADITIONS

The traditions of European clothiers, quality of material and design, can still be found at Giovanni's of Italy, Town and Country Village. Owner, Gabriele Mariotti, takes exact measurements of shop patron in advance of the final-approval of a custom tailored suit selected in his shop for the warm weather ahead. Gabriele brings the flavor of his Italian culture to the Village, and was one of the first businesses to move into the center during the sixties.

Village Shops To Observe St. Patrick's Tomorrow

St. Patrick's Day has long been observed as the national festival of Ireland. While its beginnings are vague, it is observed with total enthusiasm in Ireland where it renews and intensifies the patriotism of the Irish people.

The Irish national flower, the Shamrock, symbolizes the use of the plant by St. Patrick as one stem bearing three leaves, a symbol of the mystery of the Trinity.

The meaning of Ireland expressed by their poets meant poetry, legend, folklore and song, rich music of speech and even richer beauty of face and figure, and the tragedy of heart and love, humor and infinite passion. "Fur the whole world is Irish on the Seventeenth o' March," extolled poet T. A. Daly. Throughout America the great day is celebrated and enjoyed in the towns and villages with parade and party.

The spirit of this grand occasion will be enjoyed at Marin Music Center in Strawberry Town and Country Village on Friday. Shamrocks will be given away to every visitor.

THE RIGHT CHOICE

Waterbed Store Manager Sees 'Excellent' Growth

Town and Country Village welcomes new manager, Frank Rieger, to Decorator Waterbeds.

After spending several years in New Orleans, Rieger traveled to New York to marry his fiance, Natasha. A honeymoon tour of the United States was made before settling in Marin. They now live in San Rafael.

In discussion of the waterbed business, Rieger reports that the East Coast has not realized the full potential of the waterbed as an intergral part of the everyday living experience.

"However, waterbeds have taken hold of the imagination of California people," he said "although the waterbed industry here is still in its infancy with excellent predictions for future growth."

The traditional bed manufacturers report that the waterbed concept is just a passing fad. However, according to current sales figures, which are remaining stable in this new industry, the waterbed is widely accepted as an alternate to traditional sleeping accommodations.

To those interested in experiencing a waterbed before purchase, Rieger suggests that on the next overnight trip check into a motel that offers waterbed sleeping accommodations to fully appreciate the enjoyable and relaxing sensations over a prolonged period of time.

Porsche-Audi Agency Opens Near Center

On March 1 the new auto agency, Felton Porsche-Audi, opened at 900 Redwood Highway in Mill Valley, adjacent to the Strawberry Town and Country Village. The agency was known for the past eight years as Mill Valley Volkswagen.

The agency is owned by Leon C. Felton who also operates the Volkswagen agency in San Rafael. All mechanics are factory trained and a giant inventory of parts is now available. A comprehensive leasing department is now available to Marin County residents.

Students To Play During Art Show

Several, young, semiprofessional musicians will be donating their musical talents for a "minimusical" to be performed at Strawberry's Town and Country Village April 7, during the Spring Art Festival.

The musicians will be raising funds for the Marin Music Chest, which is a non-profit organization. Four, $200, musical scholarships are awarded annually to talented, young, Marin students.

In 1932 musically minded women joined together to form a society that could bring the world's greatest music to the largest number of people at the lowest possible admission cost. Thus, began the Marin Music Chest.

Music Chest members will attend the musical performance at Town and Country Village to distribute information about their organization and sell tickets for the upcoming concert season.

Headphones To Be Displayed

Town and Country Village TV will be the scene of a special visit from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. March 28, by the Koss traveling display.

Peter Straube, owner of the Strawberry shop, invites everyone to preview the special demonstration of the Koss headphone line.

In a recent interview by the decorating industry's magazine, "Decorating Retailer," Patricia Rist, co-owner of Hues and Views in Strawberry Town and Country Village, had several statements to make about women's changing consumer attitudes and their buying habits.

Mrs. Rist was appointed to the 18-member National Decorator Products Association's board of directors last fall. She is the first woman to be honored in this manner by the 25-year-old organization.

"Consumers are expressing their individuality through their purchases in an attempt to break the 'numbers-game' of our society — people as human beings with individual likes and dislikes, not just social security numbers or selective service numbers of faceless masses. The homes of today are an expression of individuality, a part of America's freedom of expression." she wrote.

Mrs. Rist, who is an interior decorator consultant, stated that today's woman will take the initiative in decorating her own home instead of having it done as in the past.

KQED Fun Fair Set At Village

Mrs. Felix Kolb, area publicity chairman for the KQED Auction, will hold a special event, the KQED Fun Fair May 12, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Strawberry's Town and Country Village.

A special carnival will be held and Art contests will be featured for the children.

Other members of the publicity committee are: Mrs. Charles Sugarman and Mrs. Gerald Berman of Mill Valley; Mrs. Douglas Herst, Greenbrae; Mrs. Harvey Gould of Tiburon; Mrs. Frank Battat, San Rafael; Mrs. Pat Watts of Novato, and also Mrs. Jay Schwarz of Tiburon.

One of the purposes of the event is to raise funds to support KQED (Channel 9) and to offer information about the station's programs. The KQED Auction will be held on June 1 through 10, at the Cow Palace. Already scheduled for the auction are a Ferrari, a replica of the "Kon Tiki", and 100 shares of mystery stock.

KQED (Channel 9) is the community-supported, non-commercial public television station for the San Francisco Bay Area and Northern California. Under terms of its license from the Federal Communications Commission it cannot accept advertising.

KQED is owned and operated by the Bay Area Educational Television Association, a nonprofit corporation whose governing board of 27 directors is elected by the general membership. Currently, there are 58,000 members. Membership is open to all individuals, associations, corporations and institutions contributing $15 or more annually.

As a noncommercial television station, KQED provides a program service not generally available on commercial channels. In its simplest form, this means a program service to satisfy a wide variety of "minority" interest, as contrasted with the "mass" interests served by commercial television.

This year KQED will rely totally on broad-based, community financial support.

Art Show Deadline Is Announced

Applications for entering the 1973 Town and Country Village Spring Art Show in April should be mailed no later than March 25. The show, unter the direction of Glenn H. Cochran, will run April 6, 7, and 8 from 10 a.m. until dark and will be free to the public.

Over 250 artists are expected to attend the outdoor exhibit from southern and northern California. The art show has received wide acclaim through news coverage and art patrons alike rating the show as one of the best in the Bay Area and Northern California, according to a spokesman. A variety of art forms will be represented, including traditional oil paintings, watercolors and acrylics. Sculptures and pottery will be included with craft areas in leather works, custom jewelry and unusually designed wall hangings.

For further information, correspondence may be directed to Town and Country Village Art Festival, Box 182, Berkeley, Calif. 94701.

The Audi - One of the newest cars in America (although it has been produced and sold in Europe for over 40 years) a quality built, luxury class family size sedan that moves, stops, and turns differently from just about every other car.

But telling you about our cars won't give you a true appreciation of their precision engineering and superior quality. So we'd like you to accept this invitation to come in and look them over first hand. Better yet, take one for a free test drive. After you do, we're sure you'll find it hard to forget their names - which means you'll find it easy to remember ours.
